POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW.

Whatever your occupation may be, and however crowded your hours with affairs, do not fail to secure at least a few minutes every day for refreshment of your inner life with a bit of poetry.—Prof. Charles Eliot Norton.

VIA SOLITARIA.

BY O. M. CONOVER.

This poem by Prof. O. M. Conover of the chair of ancient languages in the University of Wisconsin was written in 1863 shortly after the death of his wife, and was at first attributed to Longfellow.

Alone I walk the peopled city,
Where each seems happy with his own;
O, friends, I ask not for your pity—
I walk alone.

No more for me yon lake rejoices,
Though wooed by loving airs of June;
O, birds, your sweet and piping voices
Are out of tune.

In vain for me the elm tree arches
Its plumes in many a feathery spray;
In vain the evening's starry marches
And sunlit day;

In vain your beauty, summer flowers;
Ye cannot greet those cordial eyes;
They gaze on other fields than ours—
On other skies.

The gold is rifled from the coffer,
The blade is stolen from the sheath;
Life has but one more boon to offer,
And that is death.

Yet well I know the voice of duty,
And therefore life and health must crave,
Though she who gave the world its beauty
Is in her grave.

I live, O, lost one! for the living
Who drew their earliest life from thee,
And wait until, with glad thanksgiving,
I shall be free.

For life to me is as a station
Wherein apart a traveler stands—
One absent long from home and nation,
In other lands.

And I, as he who stands and listens,
Amid the twilight's chill and gloom,
To hear, approaching in the distance,
The train for home.

For death shall bring another mating,
Beyond the shadows of the tomb,
On yonder shore a bride is waiting
Until I come.

In yonder fields are children playing,
And there—O vision of delight!
I see a child and mother straying
In robes of white.

Thou, then, the longing heart that breakest,
Stealing its treasures one by one,
I'll call thee blessed when thou makest
The parted—one.

PRICE IS PUT ON SLAYERS' HEADS.

Reward of $1,000 an Incentive for Police to Search for the City Railway Barn Murderers.

TWO ARE SHOT TO DEATH.

Car Line Employes Lose Their Lives When Three Robbers Attack Them and Secure $3,000.

With the incentive of a $1,000 reward, and urged on by Chief of Police O'Neill, who has taken personal charge of the case, every member of the police department was on the alert last night to capture three men who committed a double murder in the barns of the Chicago City railway company at 3 o'clock yesterday morning and then escaped with approximately $3,000 in cash.

The depredation—the scene was the barns at Sixty-first and State streets—is the boldest with which the police have had to deal in years. Not only were two men murdered, but a third was shot in the leg and another sustained a severe scalp wound while fleeing from the robbers.

The men, all employés of the City railway company, were attacked without warning, one of them being shot to death as he attempted to arise from a bench, where he had been sleeping.

The Dead.

JOHNSON, JAMES B., motorman, 35 years old, 6223 Justine street, shot through head in the outer office as he was rising from bench; died instantly.

STEWART, FRANCIS W., 19 years old, 6339 Parnell avenue, assistant clerk in cashier's office; shot through body below the heart while standing at desk; died twenty minutes later.

The Injured.

[illegible] Kerry, 25 years old, 5917 State street, cashier; scalp wound while fleeing from robbers.

Edmond, William [illegible], receiving cashier, 42 years old, 223 Sixty-fifth street, shot in left leg while at desk; will recover.

May Have Slain Others.

The police have reason to believe that the slayers are the same men who on the night of Aug. 1 shot and killed B. G. La Gross while in his saloon at 2120 North avenue. These robbers also shot Adolph Johnson, a customer, in La Gross' place, and he died from his wound next day.

The bullets fired at La Gross and Johnson were of a peculiar pattern and are discharged from a particularly destructive revolver which was put on the market recently.

From the walls of the City railway office a number of bullets were dug yesterday and they were identical with those fired during the North avenue holdup.

Suspects Under Arrest.

Up to midnight the police had made a score of arrests, but they were not satisfied with the guilt of any of the prisoners. Chief O'Neill and his subordinates suspect that the slayers are paroled prisoners from the Pontiac reformatory and the police are under orders to arrest all such youths they can locate.

The men held by the Englewood police are John Sleuder, George McLeroy, John Blake, Daniel Lynch, James Doyle, Lawrence Doyle, and Tony Scapardino. Three men have been detained by the Woodlawn police, but their names are being withheld.

Sleuder, one of the suspects, is said to have contradicted himself several times. He is a former employé of the City Railway company.

Two Arrested in St. Louis.

In East St. Louis last night the police arrested two men, who gave their names as James Mason and Edmund Fahey. Mason made a desperate resistance, but was finally knocked senseless.

Baggage checks were found, which showed that the pair had left Chicago Sunday morning arriving in East St. Louis in the evening. Three hundred dollars in money and two large revolvers were taken from the prisoners.

The arrests are considered by the Chicago police to be important.

Twice Bereft by Slayers.

A tragic feature of the City railway raid is that Mrs. Johnson, wife of the murdered conductor, has twice been made a widow by holdup men. Her former husband, Clarence Higgins, was shot to death seven years ago while serving as a conductor on a south side car.

"O, my God! Has Jim gone the same way that Clarence did?" was Mrs. Johnson's exclamation yesterday when informed that her husband had been murdered.

There is a $1,200 mortgage on the cottage occupied by the Johnsons, and what is even more there are three small children.

Young Stewart, the other victim of the double murder, was a graduate of the Englewood High school, and was attending Armour institute during the days, his work being by night. His father, Robert Stewart, is barn boss for the City railway company.

Cowardly Attack by Robbers.

Few men were in the office or barns of the City railway company when the robbers made their attack. Johnson, the motorman, was asleep on a bench just outside the office, waiting [illegible] to be called to go out on his run. The cashier, was stooping to return a file book to its case; Stewart, his assistant, was standing near him; and Edmond, the receiving clerk, was sitting on a stool in the corner of the room.

Suddenly two masked faces appeared at the window, and before the three men in the office had time to move a revolver shot was fired. Young Stewart, mortally wounded, threw up his hands and fell to the floor.

"I'm done for, boys. Fight, fight back for your lives!" he cried, but the advice, well given, was not so easily complied with.

No more had the words been uttered by the wounded youth than the two robbers dropped to their knees, deliberately rested their revolvers on the ledge of the cashier's window, and began pouring volleys of bullets in the direction of the defenseless men inside.

Biehl, the cashier, rushed into an adjoining room and threw himself inside a wardrobe, striking his head against the door and sustaining a painful scalp wound as he did so. But even before he had made his flight he saw Edmond topple from his stool, a bullet wound in his leg. Not until Edmond was prone on the floor did the robbers cease firing.

Next there was a commotion outside the cashier's office, followed by a shot. Johnson, the motorman, had been awakened by the revolver shots, and had staggered to his feet only to be shot down by one of the rob-

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS AT BIRD CENTER.

Mrs. Riley Withersby's Grand Social Function.

Perhaps never before in the history of Bird Center has there been such a grand social function as that given last Thursday eve at the palatial residence of Mrs. Riley Withersby. All of the city's best circles were among those present and that a par excellent time was had was the universal opinion. An orchestra from Chicago rendered exquisite strains and a caterer from the same metropolis dispensed the elegant viands. The big drawing room was a scene of almost Eutopian splendor and many were the encomiums paid the charming hostess for her magnificent hospitality, which was truly on a most oriental scale of luxury. Just before refreshments were served Mrs. Withersby explained that the purpose of the gathering was to form a local culture club, similar to the famous salons of Paris, where culture could meet in wholesome communion and the feast of reason mingle with the flow of soul. The suggestion met with unanimous approval, so that throughout the coming winter all the wit and genius of our progressive city will doubtless scintillate with dazzling effulgence.

ADDITIONAL NOTES.

Mr. Chris C. Newbower was also present. Chris thought Mrs. W. was going to start a saloon and was one of the early arrivals. He spent the evening looking at the views.

Real colored waiters from Chicago served the collation.

Mine Host "Mort" Peters of the Bird Center House was not present.

It is rumored that Mrs. Withersby will soon give another function. Mr. Peters will serve and Messrs. Orville Peters and Wilbur Fry will furnish the music.

The mysterious stranger, who has been recently mystifying Bird Center, came up on the porch and solemnly surveyed the gay assemblage through a window and then disappeared.

Rev. Walpole and four of the rollicking little Walpoles were prominently seen among those present. Mrs. Walpole was not present.

Mrs. Lucile Ramona Fry-Brown, nee Miss Lucile Ramona Fry, wife of our well known artist, Mr. J. Milton Brown of the Bird Center Tintype Studios, rendered "Robin Adair" on the piano. She received many encomiums.

Ye editor's dog "Spot" was frightened out of two years' growth by the polar bear rug that adorns Mrs. Withersby's drawing room. He will probably not try to "butt" into society hereafter.

Mr. Winthrop K. Biddle of Philadelphia, Pa., was attentive to Miss Elsie Burbank of Morristown, N. J., who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Withersby.

Miss Kate Warden left early on account of a severe headache.

S. C. LOVE SUES WIFE.

Asks Divorce, Making H. R. Johnstone, Corespondent.

BUNCH OF LETTERS FOUND.

Other Man, Husband of S. W. Allerton's Daughter, and Accused by Her.

Sidney C. Love has filed a suit for divorce against his wife on statutory grounds. Hugo R. Johnstone, who was recently sued for divorce by his wife, the daughter of S. W. Allerton, she charging him with being intimate with Nina Farrington, the New York actress, is named as corespondent in the case.

Mr. and Mrs. Love separated two or three weeks ago. They left their apartments at 147 Lincoln Park boulevard, she going to the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Norval H. Pierce, who occupy apartments in the same building.

Finds Package of Letters.

Mr. Love, it is said, learned of the things that led to the filing of his suit through a package of letters he found in a New York club, addressed to Johnstone in his wife's handwriting. A stormy interview between husband and wife followed.

Various attempts at a reconciliation were made, but Mr. Love turned a deaf ear to all the pleas of mutual friends. He was Johnstone's best friend, introducing him into social and club life, and did much to put him in touch with business affairs. He could not forgive the perfidy of the man he had helped.

Wife to File Cross Bill.

Neither Mrs. Love nor her friends would discuss the case last night, but a man well acquainted with both Love and his wife stated that it was Mrs. Love's plan to file a cross bill denying all her husband's allegations and charging him with cruelty. Further than that those best acquainted with the Loves refused to talk of the matter.

Sidney C. Love, head of the stock exchange firm of Sidney C. Love & Co., has been in the brokerage business for himself in Chicago only a few years, but has built up a business that is among the largest in that line in the city. He divides his time between Chicago and New York, where he has a resident partner, Frederick Swift, and an office at 2 Wall street.

Is a Member of Many Clubs.

Mr. Love is an enthusiastic horseman. He is a member of many clubs, including the Chicago, the Union, the Chicago Athletic, and the Onwentsia and Chicago Golf clubs here, and the Metropolitan and Racquet clubs of New York. Recently he has disposed of nearly all his horses, it is stated, and leased his stable.

Mrs. Love has been married twice, a divorce separating her from her first husband.

JILTED, TRIES TO DIE.

Girl Shoots Herself Because Her Fiance Is Indifferent.

WRITES LAST TEARFUL NOTE

Clara Rosenquist Then Tries Suicide at Sweetheart's House.

Believing that with lost love had gone all the worth of life, a young woman shot herself last night standing at the door of the house in which lived the man she put above life itself. A moment before she had handed to his sister a letter in which she made a last request of her former fiancé—that he be a pallbearer at her funeral.

The young woman, Miss Clara Rosenquist, 705 East Seventieth street, just missed her heart when she fired and physicians who attended her said the wound would prove fatal.

For two years, it is said, Miss Rosenquist, who is 23 years old and of more that usual beauty, was engaged to marry Leroy Minchinton, 2505 One Hundred and Sixteenth, street, Kensington. Recently, the girl's relatives say, he became indifferent to her and she wrote him a letter asking him whether he still loved her.

Letter Breaks Her Heart.

His reply, which reached her two days ago, is said to have been that he did not care to be bothered with her.

With tear dimmed eyes the girl wrote another letter—probably her last—and with it in her hand she went to Minchinton's home.

One of the women in the house answered the bell.

"I came to see Leroy," Miss Rosenquist announced.

When told that he was not at home the girl handed the woman the letter and asked her to give it to Minchinton on his return.

"Thank you," she said, then she pressed to her left breast a revolver and fired, falling across the doorway.

Tells of Undying Love.

The police were called and the injured girl was taken to her home, while the letter which she wrote to her former lover was turned over to the police. It is addressed "To the Only One I Have Loved."

"It is hard to die," it says, "but I would a thousand times rather die than live without you and know that you no longer care for me.

"I want you to go down and tell my sister what I have done. You can tell her better than any one else, and she is the only one who will care. And I want you to be one of my pall bearers.

"Some day you will meet some one that you really love, and I hope you will be loved then as I love you now. Yours to the last.

"CLARA."

WHITES IN SLAVERY.

Father and Ten Children Bound in Peonage for $46 Debt.

STARTED WITH A CONTRACT.

Victims Tell Federal Commissioner They Were Almost Starved.

Troy, Ala., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The evidence in the case of the United States against Marion Prestwood, a wealthy planter and turpentine operator, which was heard here yesterday before Federal Commissioner Tutwiler, shows that poor whites as well as negroes are being held in slavery in Alabama.

Prestwood was charged with holding Robert English, a white man, and his family of ten children in peonage. The evidence showed that Prestwood made a contract with English in 1902 by which the former was to furnish the English family with rations in consideration of the latter working sixty acres on shares. When the crop was made, Prestwood ceased to furnish rations and seized the crop.

Arrested on False Charge.

When the English family tried to secure work to save themselves from starving, Prestwood had the old man and six boys arrested, accusing them of burning turpentine boxes valued at $46. This charge, Prestwood admitted to Commissioner Tutwiler, was groundless. After the arrest Prestwood told the men that as he controlled the magistrate he could send them to the penitentiary, but he said that if the family would sign a contract to work for him until 1905, to repay the $46, he would furnish them what they had to eat.

The father and his sons being frightened signed the contract, and have since been at work for Prestwood.

The father and his six sons who were brought before the commissioner are pitifully ignorant, and seemed to know no law above the planter, who to them was all powerful.

It required the greatest care and skill on the part of the officials to avoid frightening the witnesses into panics of absolute silence.

The seven peons were dressed in two garments each and had absolutely nothing except the clothes on their backs, worth in all possibly $1.

New courage was infused into them by a round of square meals at a local hotel.

Family Almost Starved.

The Englishs swore that they never had enough to eat, and their looks sustained the statement. They were sallow faced, hollow eyed, and their lips as white as their shirts. Prestwood was placed under heavy bond. He is worth $100,000.

Federal officers say that poor whites are being held as peons in a number of counties.

WAR SCANDALS ANGER ENGLAND.

London Press Demands the Immediate Retirement of Lord Lansdowne from the Cabinet.

STORY OF ARMY WRONGS.

All Britain Filled with Indignation Over Revelation of the Blunders of Titled Officials.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

LONDON, Aug. 31, 3 a. m.—The revelations contained in the report of the committee on the conduct of the recent war in south Africa have filled all England with consternation and indignation, and already there are vigorous demands for the resignation of Lord Lansdowne and Mr. Brodrick.

Lord Lansdowne, who was secretary of state for war during the campaign, comes in for withering criticism.

The Daily Mail says: "One lesson blazoned on every page of this report is that our national interests can no longer be intrusted to men who regard statesmanship as a pleasant occupation for the leisured classes. The day of such men as Lord Lansdowne and Mr. Brodrick in English statesmanship is over. They are courtly, dangerous luxuries. The reputation of Lord Lansdowne is blasted a hundred times over in the pages of this evidence."

Lesson Not Yet Learned.

The Times says in regard to the report: "It is a sweeping indictment of our military unpreparedness—unpreparedness, be it observed, which there is no reason to think has been materially lessened in the period since the war."

The Morning Advertiser sarcastically remarks: "There is only one thought likely to trouble the mind of the patriotic Britisher as he reads these remarkable volumes, that is the notion that they will be of greater service, possibly, to our military friends on the continent than they will be to our own war office and army."

Calls for Resignation.

The Daily Chronicle says:

"If Lord Lansdowne has any sense of decency left he will send in his resignation at once. It is not fitting that a minister who has so flagrantly mismanged one department of public business should remain in charge of another of equal importance.

"In America the memories of the embalmed beef scandals, of the buying of rotten hulks at enormous prices to serve as auxiliary gunboats or supply ships, are still fresh, as are the revelations of the state of unpreparedness of the army to undertake a war, even with Spain; but never was the war department shown to be in anything like the state of rottenness into which the British war office had fallen when the time came to back up England's words with England's might.

Two Men and a Boy.

According to the testimony of Gen. Nicholson, the intelligence section of the war office relating to south Africa before the war, was run on the two men and a boy principle. The two officers, one of them a clerk in the treasury, against the united recommendation of the war office, refused any increase, hence it is not surprising that when England went to war there was no effective maps whatever of the Orange Free State, the Transvaal, or of Natal. To quote Lord Kitchener's own testimony, the field intelligence department had to be created from the beginning.

Gen. Nicholson is responsible for the information that there practically was no valid connection between the intelligence department and the defense committee of the cabinet. Col. Altham testified that every Boer gun was known and traced after the war. The British local defense schemes were, however, based on inadequate force.

No Scheme of Mobilization.

Experts prepared a plan of a scheme of mobilization in the early summer, but the government would not vote the extra necessary money until it was forced to do so was the testimony of Gen. Sir F. Stopford, and from official memorandum and Col. Altham's testimony it is apparent that Lord Lansdowne knew there were 48,000 mounted Boers waiting to oppose the British, yet almost without exception infantry were sent.

When finally the mobilization of the First army corps was ordered it was so late that it was not possible for Sir Redvers Buller to be in a position to take the field until the end of December. The Boers, however, invaded Natal the second week in October. The hasty mobilization on the part of the British caused disorganization.

Nearly all the military witnesses, notably Gen. Kelly-Kenny, lay stress on the fact the representations of the commander in chief did not meet with sufficient compliance. Viscount Wolseley lays great stress on this and the way Lord Lansdowne treated him and his advice in 1899, which he absolutely disregarded, refusing to sanction even the most urgently needed expenditures. His refusal delayed the First army corps, nor did they send out the reinforcements he urged.

Lord Roberts also condemns the initial preparations.

Long List of Shortcomings.

The three volumes teem with war office shortcomings. The British had no quick firing guns in south Africa when the war started. Warnings from the Cape were neglected. Mobilization at home was muddled. The war office did not even know that pompoms could be used for field purposes, according to Gen. Knox, and there was grave confusion and delay in the ordnance department, which warned the government most explicitly, but in vain, of the need for early expenditure.

It was not known here until the middle of October that the Boers were using any heavy guns in the field. There were so few pontoons in this country that old ones had been sent out. Nobody spent any money till authorized by the secretary of state, who refused to sanction expenditures till September.

Supplies Thrown Away.

There seems to have been many complaints about supplies. Instead of insisting on one pound cans of meat, as was recommended by a committee sixteen years ago, the war office bought six pound cans. These being heavy the men often threw them away.

According to Col. Carr the boots sent out for the troops were distinctly bad. In 1900 they were of brown paper, at least not much better.

Owing to the inability of the troops to obtain soap half the force in south Africa, according to Col. Sir W. Richardson, became verminous.

Medical Service Breaks Down.

Of course the medical service broke down. The surgeon general of the army, Sir W. Wilson, affirms he was actually told the first week in October there would be no war, with the result that he neither made nor was asked for any special suggestion before he sailed a few days later for the cape.

Sir Frederick Treves said in regard to the army medical service:

"We were carrying about with us instruments which I should have thought would only be found in museums and medicines which had been in cumbrous bottles for possibly twenty years. We were dragging about a field hospital outfit suitable for any climate in the world, from the polar regions to the equator. We could have thrown away quite half of our outfit and never missed it."

Officers Without Training.

A large number of militia officers had never been trained at all, according to Maj. Gen. Borrett, while Lord Lovat stated that each regiment had officers who were completely worthless and could not be taken on trek. They had to be left in the different headquarters for superintending baggage and stores.

Vice Admiral Sir R. Harris tells the following delightful story: "The confusion, of course, was tremendous, owing to war all through the colony. For instance, I sent a truck load of 150 lyddite shells to Lord Methuen which was absolutely lost for three weeks. Utter confusion existed initially over the entire course of the campaign.

Buller Without Orders.

Sir Redvers Buller said he went to South Africa without any general instructions, and received none on his arrival.

Sir J. Ardagh declares the war office always contemplated the withdrawal to the south of the Tugela river on the outbreak of the war and never thought for a moment of Ladysmith being a defensive place, yet the bulk of the stores for that town were poured in until three days before the war broke out. It was then impossible to have removed them.

As to the question of coöperation of the Orange Free State with the Transvaal, the military advisers of the government had affirmed it was certain; nevertheless, speaking long after the outbreak of the war, Mr. Balfour declared the cabinet utterly was taken by surprise.

WILL RUN FOR PARLIAMENT.

Sir Harry Johnson, African Traveler, Is the Liberal Candidate for Lord Cranborne's Seat.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Sir Harry Johnson, the African traveler, has accepted the liberal nomination at Rochester, where the successor to Viscount Cranborne, who has succeeded to the title of the marquis of Salisbury, is to be elected. Sir Harry is opposed to the fiscal policy of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, and demands the radical overhauling of the war office.

As an outcome of the recent successes at the parliamentary by-elections, the labor party is organizing contests for seats in parliament at the next general elections on an unprecedentedly large scale.

Among others Mr. Chamberlain's seat for West Birmingham will be contested by the prominent labor leader, W. J. Davis, a strong free trader.

SAILS TO FIND NORDANSKJOLD.

Relief Expedition Starts in Search of Antarctic Explorer, Who Has Been Lost for a Year.

BREST, France, Aug. 30.—The steamer Français, with the antarctic expedition under Dr. John Charcot, son of the well known alienist, which will endeaver to find Nordanskjold's missing expedition, sailed from this port today. The expedition will first go to Buenos Ayres and Punta Arenas, from which point the voyage into the antarctic will be made.

Prof. Nodenskjold's south polar vessel Antarctic sailed from Gothenburg, Sweden, Oct. 16, 1901. It has not been heard from for more than a year.

The Swedish government dispatched a relief expedition on board the Frithjof Aug. 17. The Argentine government has also arranged to send a relief gunboat.

KING ALFONSO ON A TOUR.

Young Ruler of Spain Receives Homage of Peasants in Carlist Territory.

MADRID, Aug. 30.—King Alfonso, accompanied by the prince and princess of Asturias, left San Sebastian yesterday on a provincial tour. The first stop was made at Estella, Navarra, the former Carlist capital, where the king visited the scene of the battle with the Carlists, in which the marquis of Duero, the commander of the liberal army, was killed.

Everywhere the peasants, who are noted for their Carlist sympathies, gave the royal party the warmest welcome, in many cases kneeling as the cavalcade passed.

The loyalty displayed on the route is held to be a proof that Carlism is almost dead.

MEMORIAL POEM TO SALISBURY.

Alfred Austin, Poet Laureate, Writes Verses on Dead Marquis Which Are Termed "Unambitious."

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 31, 3 a. m.—Alfred Austin, the poet laureate, has a memorial poem in this morning's Standard on the late Marquis of Salisbury, who is to be buried at Hatfield this afternoon. It consists of half a dozen unambitious verses, written with real sympathy for the subject.

The last couplet says:

"Acclamations have their day,
Quiet fame is fame for aye."

VESUVIUS A GRAND SPECTACLE.

Volcano Continues to Emit Great Mass of Lava and Flame, but Fear of Danger Grows Less.

ROME, Aug. 30.—The eruption of Vesuvius continues in all its grandeur, but without apparent danger to the neighboring population. Thousands of people remain up all night long to witness the spectacle. The lava emitted is of an unusually liquid form and consequently has covered a larger area than at previous eruptions, adding much to the beauty of the scene.

Chinese Reformer a Suicide.

HONOLULU, Aug. 30.—Charles Ahi, a member of the Bow Wong society, committed suicide today by shooting himself through the head. He had recently returned from China. Persecutions there on account of his reform record caused him to come to Honolulu.

German Warships to Visit Maine.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 30.—The German warships Vineta, Gazelle, and Panther will leave here tomorrow for Bar Harbor.

News Notes from Foreign Lands.

NAPLES—Enrico Bevignani, musical conductor, died here.

THE HAGUE.—It is officially announced that the arbitration court for the Venezuelan claims will assemble Sept. 1.

PARIS—The Turkish consul general at Marseilles, M. Gaetanaki, died suddenly while preparing to give a great feast in honor of the sultan next Tuesday.

ST. PETERSBURG.—The grand duke Michael Nicolaievitch, cousin of the czar, has suffered a stroke of apoplexy, and has become partially paralyzed on the left side.

MADRID.—The minister of the interior says the report published in America that thirty officers have been arrested for conspiring to prevent the queen mother from returning to Spain from Vienna is absolutely unfounded.

ST. PETERSBURG.—The battleship Slava, one of the largest vessels in the Russian navy, was launched Saturday at the Baltic yards in the presence of the czar and the royal family. It is of 13,600 tons displacement.

PARIS—Gen. Giovaninelli died last night at Sedan after an illness lasting two days. The general distinguished himself during the French campaign in Mexico in 1863 as a lieutenant. He went through the entire siege of Metz in 1870, commanded a regiment in Tonkin in 1884, and was promoted a general before the end of the campaign.

BULGARIANS LOSE 1,000 IN BATTLE.

Six Thousand Turks Take Rebel Stronghold by Storm After Furious Fighting.

CHAOS RULES MONASTIR.

Ravages of Sultan's Troops Leave 800,000 Without Food or Shelter.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

SALONICA, Aug. 30.—The Macedonian revolt has broken out in the vilayet of Monastir with renewed violence.

A battle has been fought at Slivovo, northwest of Monastir. The Bulgarians were defeated, and 1,000 of their number killed.

The engagement was fought last Friday. The Bulgarians to the number of 3,000 occupied a position on the height, and they were attacked by 6,000 Turkish troops under command of Servet Pasha.

The Turks kept up a furious bombardment with artillery for several hours and then carried the insurgent position by storm. The Bulgarians fled, leaving 1,000 dead behind.

The Bulgarian insurgents on capturing the town of Neveska on Aug. 25 seized the arms and ammunition of the garrison, levied a contribution of $5,000 on the town and then withdrew to the mountains. The Turkish troops on their arrival bombarded the town, but receiving no response they entered the town without molesting the inhabitants.

Chaos Rules in Monastir.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 31, 3 a. m.—Chaos rules in the entire vilayet of Monastir. The area of the insurrection is spreading steadily. The uprising is being assisted partly by the scarcity of food, which is driving the neutrals into the ranks of the insurgents. Anarchy is now supreme. The Turkish troops have got beyond discipline and are wreaking vengeance alike on Greeks and Wallachians, and burning all villages, yet the insurgents continue to multiply. They claim they have killed the entire local garrison at Setina, numbering 180 men.

A vast Turkish army now is in the disturbed district. It has eaten or destroyed most all of the crops and more than 800,000 people will have to be fed somehow.

Consuls Demand Warships.

The Times correspondent at Salonica says ill concealed terror prevails in that city and fears that some incident may precipitate an indiscriminate massacre. Commerce, he says, is paralyzed and a famine is apprehended.

The ambassadors and consuls recently appealed to their governments to send warships, but the desire to avoid the appearance of encouraging the insurgents seems to be held of greater importance than precautionary measures for the protection of Europeans. Hence warships have not been sent.

Among the Turks themselves, continues the correspondent, a large and growing number professes to be ready to support European intervention to remedy the desperate condition of affairs, and even talks of murdering the foreign consuls as a means to compel foreign intervention.

There is no lack of sensational news from the interior, but all the reports are conflicting and confusing. There is much interest and anxiety regarding the fate of Klisura, which has long been besieged by the insurgents. According to the latest report, a large body of Turks sent to raise the siege has gained an important victory.

A report is current that Sept. 1, the anniversary of the sultan's accession, has been selected to begin the outbreak in the vilayet of Salonica.

One Way to Settle It.

The Constantinople correspondent of the Standard says diplomats there believe a solution of the trouble will be found in the nominal suzerainty of the sultan over an almost autonomous Christian province.

He points out that Turkey now has 196,000 troops in Macedonia and nearly 50,000 more on the borders, and is still calling out reserves, all of whom must be fed, if not paid. One regiment recently embarked with less than a dozen loaves of bread or a Turkish pound of cash. He declares at least $10,000,000 will be required for immediate necessities, and that an attempt will be made to include this in the debt unification scheme which is now being pressed forward.

Servia Is Becoming Alarmed.

A dispatch from Belgrade says the insurgents have blown up the barracks in the Levin mountains and killed 200 soldiers. They also blew up an inn at Goritza, killing fifty persons. These and other similar affairs are greatly magnified by the insurgents.

A meeting of Macedonians was held in Belgrade on Sunday, which was attended by 8,000 persons. Resolutions were adopted protesting against Turkish atrocities and demanding that the pacification of Macedonia under the sultan's sovereignty should be left to the Balkan states interested. Before the meeting dispersed some students brought forward a resolution demanding armed intervention by Servia. Two men, one a Macedonian, the other a Montenegrin, stood on the platform waving loaded revolvers and summoned the Servians to take up arms. Thereupon the intervention resolution was adopted by acclamation.

Ferdinand Leaves for Sofia.

SOFIA, Aug. 30.—Prince Ferdinand, alarmed at the growing seriousness of the situation, has left his summer home in Hungary and has started for Sofia.

The Bulgarian government has sent another regiment to strengthen the frontier forces in the neighborhood of Kostendil.

A private telegram from Rula, Bulgaria, near Kostendil, says the reservists in the frontier villages have received orders to be ready for mobilization the moment that fighting occurs at the frontier posts.

Dispatches received today from Constantinople, Salonica, Monastir, and Adrianople reveal an equally unsatisfactory condition of affairs in Macedonia. From Salonica come reports of new risings. At Monastir the insurgents are said to be masters of the situation. Telegrams from Adrianople declare that the insurgent bands are continuing their ravages.

The Dnevnik says the Servian diplomatic agent has notified the porte that two divisions of the Servian army have been mobilized without any hostile intention as regards Turkey, but they will be sent to the frontier to prevent Albanian incursions into Servia.

The total strength of the bands in the vilayet of Adrianople is estimated at 6,000 men. The insurgents have blown up the barracks at Ghioktipe, near Malkoternovo, killing sixty soldiers. They also attacked and set fire to the Turkish camps at Egripalanka, Kratovo, and Kotchana. A great panic ensued, the troops firing into each other.

Turkey Sees Better Conditions.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 30.—In official circles it is claimed that the situation in the vilayet of Monastir is improving, and the troops are gaining the upper hand.

A flying column is being formed to fight the bands in the Adrianople district, where the military authorities are requisitioning horses almost everywhere, giving vouchers payable after the restoration of order.

Precautions have been adopted to protect the Russian embassy and consulate, owing to the receipt of anonymous letters threatening them with destruction.

Garibaldi Has a Plan.

ROME, Aug. 30.—Ricciotti Garibaldi, who fought on the side of Greece against Turkey in 1897, said today:

"My plan is the independence of Albania under Italian protection, with an understanding with Greece, while contemporaneously Sarafoff would appeal to Europe for Macedonian independence, renouncing all idea of Austro-Russian intervention. If my program is accepted I will appeal to the Italian people, convinced that in twenty-four hours 20,000 volunteers would follow me to the other side of the Adriatic."

POLITICAL COUP BY CZAR.

DE WITTE PROMOTED TO HEAD OF THE RUSSIAN CABINET.

Minister of Finance Visits the Palace at Peterhof After Midnight and Is Appointed President of the Committee of Ministers—Move Is Made Secretly in Order to Forestall the Intrigues of the Friends of M. Plehve, the Minister of the Interior.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 30.—The czar executed a political coup shortly after midnight yesterday morning, by making Sergius de Witte president of the committee of ministers, and appointing M. Pleske, a subordinate of de Witte, as minister of finance. De Witte thus practically becomes the Russian premier, although no such office exists under the czar's government.

The czar's move was made with the utmost secrecy and political circles learned of it only by the publication of a rescript in the Official Gazette later in the day.

The promotion of De Witte to the head of the cabinet is the czar's answer to the intriques of the faction headed by M. Plehve, minister of the interior, whose enmity to De Witte has been the cause of serious dissension in the ministry.

Secret Meeting at Peterhof.

At 1 o'clock Saturday morning M. de Witte presented his resignation to the czar at a secret audience at Peterhof palace. The resignation was accepted and the czar at once signed a rescript appointing M. de Witte president of the committee of ministers.

The new minister of finance is M. Pleske, director of the Imperial State bank. He was appointed by the czar yesterday. He has always been a loyal subordinate of M. de Witte.

Secret Is Well Kept.

Although the resignation of M. de Witte of the post of minister of finance was expected ever since his last budget statement, which had a valedictory tone, the secret was well kept. M. de Witte went to the Peterhof after midnight in order to forestall any intrigues in the interest of some follower of M. Plehve, minister of the interior.

The rescript of the czar intrusts to M. de Witte the work of bringing to a speedy, successful conclusion the negotiations for the Russo-German commercial treaty, and with the combined supreme direction of the ministry of finance in order that his close acquaintance with the requirements of Russian commerce and industry may be fully utilized.

Repress Strikes by Force.

A special commission has been formed at the prefecture, composed of factory inspectors and various functionaries of the secret police, with orders from Minister Plehve to prevent strikes at all hazards. The commission is arresting and banishing workmen by hundreds and has been authorized to employ both preventive and repressive measures.

AUTO BOAT RACE IS STARTED.

Contest Is on the Seine from Paris to the Sea, and Fifty-seven Vessels Are Entered.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—The automobile boat race started today from Paris to the sea, a distance of 220½ miles. Fifty-seven boats started, representing the principal makers of automobiles. There will be six stages: Paris to Mantes, Elbeuf, Rouen, Caudebec, Havre, and Deuville.

The journey will take six days, owing to the numerous locks on the Seine, the finish taking place next Friday.

The contest takes place under the patronage of the minister of marine and three other members of the cabinet.

The boats carry motors of from thirty to sixty horse power and are capable of making twenty-two knots an hour. The Mercedes arrived first at Mantes, at a quarter of 7 o'clock this evening, and the Flora arrived second. All the towns along the Seine are making preparations to enthusiastically greet the competing motor boats.

SWISS SINGERS IN CONTEST.

Big Saengerfest at Detroit Opens with Grand Mass Chorus "Hoch Columbia."

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30.—Swiss-American singing societies, representing a number of the large cities of the central states, contested for prizes here this afternoon and tonight at the fourth sängerfest given by the Swiss-American Central sängerbund. The afternoon program was opened with a grand mass chorus, "Hoch Columbia," by all the Swiss singing societies of Detroit. This was followed by a praise chorus sung by the combined societies which had entered the contest for prizes.

AUSTRIAN GUNBOAT FOUNDERS.

Only Eleven of the Crew of the Sherla Are Saved in Disaster Off Cadiz, Spain.

CADIZ, Spain, Aug. 30.—The Austrian gunboat Sherla has foundered off this port. Eleven of the crew were saved by a French transatlantic steamer.

Naval records do not show an Austrian gunboat named Sherla, which name was probably a telegraphic mutilation for the Kerka, an Austrian wooden, schooner rigged gunboat, 147 feet long and of 540 tons displacement. The Kerka had a speed of nine knots and carried two 5.9 inch guns and one 2.7 inch gun. It had a crew of 104 men.

FOUR KILLED BY GEYSER.

Sightseers at New Zealand Hot Springs Swept Away by Boiling Waters.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Aug. 30.—Two women and two men, who were watching the Waimunga geyser at Lake Rotorua today, were swept away by a rush of boiling water into the boiling river and drowned.

Porto Ricans and the Convention.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Aug. 30.—The republican leaders here say Gov. Hunt's visit to Senator Hanna was to settle the admission of Porto Rican delegates to the republican national convention, to arrange for answering the democratic attacks on Porto Rico, and to discuss the possibility of running Gov. Hunt for the vice presidency.

Ecuador Election Ratified.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Aug. 30.—Congress, which annulled the election of Alfredo Baquerizo, Ecuadorean minister to the United States, as vice president of the republic Aug. 23 on the ground that it was unconstitutional, yesterday reconsidered its action and proclaimed him vice president.

Cubans Honor Italian's Memory.

ROME, Aug. 30.—Several professors of the Havana university and other Cuban literary men have sent a special address, infolded in a Cuban flag, to the widow of Prof. Bovio, the famous philosopher, who died last winter. Prof. Bovio was a strenuous defender of Cuban independence.

MOVE TO HOLD GRAIN TRADE.

Philadelphia Joins Baltimore in Effort to Stop Diversion of Western Business to Montreal.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The Philadelphia grain exporters have joined with the Baltimore merchants in the movement to prevent the further diverting of the western grain trade to Montreal and other Canadian points, and a conference will be held in Philadelphia next Tuesday and Wednesday to devise a plan of action.

New York and Boston merchants interested are also expected, and the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore and Ohio, and probably other large railroads will be interested.

The ocean steamship lines having terminals in Baltimore, New York, and Philadelphia are affected by the loss of trade. The cause assigned is that the rate on the Canadian railroads is much lower than can be secured on any seaboard line which runs into these cities.

SOUVENIR CARDS FROM THE ZIONIST CONFERENCE AT BASEL, SWITZERLAND.

These souvenir postal cards are being sent out in great numbers from the Zionist conference at Basel, Switzerland. The delegates paste on each card a stamp of the Jewish national fund in addition to the regular postage. The inscription on the top card reads: "Sixth Zionist congress in Basel. Those who sow with tears shall reap with joy." The inscription on the lower card is: "Then shall thy light burst forth like the morning dawn and thy healing sprout very soon." The designs are by Lilien.

LAY FRAUD TO COUNTESS.

MEMBER OF ITALIAN ARISTOCRACY ACCUSED OF SWINDLE.

Mme. Ubaldini Alleged to Have Secured Insurance for $5,000 Upon Life of Her Sister and Then to Have Reported Her Dead—Insured Woman Hidden in a Garret While Invalid from Hospital Was Substituted — Other Crimes Hinted At.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 31, 3 a. m.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Mail sends a remarkable story of an alleged fraud by Countess Ubaldini, a well known member of the Italian aristocracy, on a New York life insurance company.

The countess insured the life of her sister Eliza three years ago for $5,000, and a year afterward reported her death. The New York company paid its policy, but another company in Milan refused to do so. Two men made revelations which led to the discovery that Eliza was alive and being closely confined in a garret. A dying patient had been taken from one of the hospitals and she died in the house of the countess. The body was called that of Eliza and was cremated.

The countess, fearing discovery, tried to remove her sister from the garret Saturday night, with the intention, it is alleged, of poisoning her. The police stopped the carriage in which Eliza was being taken away and rescued her. It is rumored that the police found proofs of other crimes in the villa of the countess. The affair has created a great sensation in Rome.

"PINAFORE" RULES ON LAKE ENFORCED BY SAILORS' UNION.

Captain of Hiawatha Forced to Apologize for Not Saying "If You Please" to Able Seaman.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 30.—Captains of vessels who would avoid labor troubles on their craft would do well hereafter to preface their orders to the crew with "Please, sir," or some other equally polite expression. This latest union rule was brought to the notice of the captain of the steamer Hiawatha today.

When his steamer was on the way up the lakes last week the wheelman, believing the captain had used unnecessarily strenuous language to him in directing the course of the ship, packed up his dunnage and left the ship at Detroit. He was followed ashore by several of the crew, and the union refused to send men in their places, compelling the Hiawatha to come to Milwaukee shorthanded.

As soon as the steamer reached port today the union officials ordered the entire crew to quit. In order to keep his boat in commission the captain called at the union headquarters and explained that he had not sworn at the wheelsman, but had asked him civilly to hold the wheel steady. The explanation was satisfactory and the crew were ordered back to the steamer.

PRIEST HITS UNION OATH: SAYS IT INJURES LOYALTY.

Pledge of Printers Denounced in Sermon—Cutting Out of Objectionable Clause Urged on the Workers.

Marshall, Mich., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—"No known Roman Catholic can consistently take or keep the oath of some labor unions, particularly that of the Typographical union," declared the Rev. Dr. P. A. Baart, rector of St. Mary's church of this city, today.

As proof of his contention Father Baart quoted part of the oath of the typographical union, as follows:

"I hereby solemnly and sincerely swear that my fidelity to the typographical union and my duty to the members thereof shall in no sense be interfered with by any allegiance that I may now or hereafter owe to any other organization, social, political, or religious."

Father Baart said this oath placed the union before the church and before the state and distinctly impeaches the loyalty and catholicity of those who take such an oath.

"Possibly, the leaders may not have realized the full force of the words they used in their oath," he said, "but whether they did or not every patriotic citizen and every sincere, consistent Catholic should demand that such an oath be modified and that the objectionable clause be cut out."

Farmer Tortured by Robbers.

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Charles Crabbe, on a farm near Hagerstown, was visited by three masked men, who demanded money. Crabbe denied having any, whereupon the robbers bound him, pried his teeth open, and forced him to take a drug that made him sick. He directed them to the money, which they secured.

NEAR REVOLT IN PANAMA.

REJECTION OF CANAL TREATY MAY CAUSE UPRISING.

Nearly All People, It Is Said, Are in Favor of Independent Government, Which Would Insure Waterway — Only Active Measures, It Is Believed, Can Check This—Army Commander with Populace and Naval Officers Are Mostly Americans.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PANAMA, Aug. 28.—[Delayed.]—The spirit of revolution is gaining in force on the isthmus, as a result of the rejection of the canal treaty by the Colombian congress at Bogota. It is declared that the people are almost a unit for a declaration of independence which would separate the isthmus from the mainland, make easy a treaty with the United States, and insure the building of the canal. They see in such a course the establishment of commercial and agricultural prosperity in this province.

Only vigorous action on the part of the government can prevent an outbreak, and it is doubtful whether such action is possible.

Gen. Vasquez Cobos, the secretary of war who resigned his position under the criticism that followed a recent orgie, and who was stationed at this point mainly because of the fact that this is the Colombian naval rendezvous, is practically sulking in his tent. Although report has it that the government has refused to accept his resignation, it is doubtful if he can be induced to do aught to stem the tide of revolutionary feeling that pervades all classes.

Gen. Huertes, the commandant at Fort Chuiriqui, and virtually commander of all the government forces in and around Panama, is at this time the only officer to whom the government may look with any hope of checking any revolution. Even Huertes has no heart in the government's position, being a warm supporter of the canal project. It is regarded as extremely unlikely that he would turn the guns of Chuiriqui on the people of the city.

As for the naval fleet, it is practically controlled by Americans, or pro-American Englishmen. They form the gunning, navigating, and engineering forces, and it has long been known that they would be only too glad of the opportunity to slip the yoke of the Colombian government and espouse any cause that would afford the isthmus a free and independ government.

TRAIN HOLDUP IS FOILED BY GUARDS ON LOCOMOTIVE.

Great Northern Flyer Marked for Robbery by "Kid" Curry and His Gang in Montana Saved by Armed Detectives.

Havre, Mont., Aug. 30.—An attempt to hold up the west bound flyer of the Great Northern by "Kid" Curry and his gang Friday night near Malta, it has just been learned, was frustrated by detectives riding on the engine. Three men had boarded the train and two started to climb over the tender when they were met by officers, who covered them with guns and ordered them off. They promptly slid off the side of the tender, disappearing in the darkness.

For three days the train crews, mail crews, and express agents on passenger trains between Glasgow and Havre have been heavily armed and a score of detectives have been riding up and down the line, anticipating a holdup.

Several days ago the company received what it considered reliable information that Harvey Logan, alias "Kid" Curry, was back in Montana and would attempt a holdup. Malta is only a few miles from Wagner, the point where the Great Northern holdup took place two years ago.

MRS. LA FOLLETTE STRENUOUS.

Wife of Wisconsin Governor Is Leader in Outdoor Athletics at Summer Home.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. La Follette, wife of the governor of Wisconsin, has set a hard pace for the campers at Lake Kengonsa, where the family has been spending the summer in a cottage for the last two years. Mrs. La Follette is an enthusiastic dress reformer and physical culturist.

Her program is to get up between 5 and 6 in the morning, then to take a two mile run—not walk, but actual run—after which follows a plunge in the lake, all before breakfast. Sometimes she adds to this program a long walk and the other morning led a party of enthusiastic pedestrians to Stoughton and back, a distance of seven miles, in which she completely outwalked the other members of the party.

The governor himself is an ardent believer in physical culture and has had as his guest this summer a physical culturist, who has helped bring the governor back from the brink of the grave a couple of times. Gov. La Follette is now in rugged health.

WILL FIX ALASKAN LINE.

SECRETARY ROOT IN LONDON READY FOR ARBITRATION.

Entire Commission Representing the United States Now Assembled at the British Capital and Will Open Up Headquarters Today—John W. Foster Tells of the Rival Claims of America and Canada—Showing How Dominion May Lose Access to Coast.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Secretary of War Root, the third member of the Alaskan boundary commission for the United States, and John W. Foster, agent for the United States in the case, arrived here today. Senators Lodge and Turner, the other two members of the commission, are expected from the continent tomorrow. Secretary Root, accompanied by Mrs. Root and Miss Root and his secretary, L. P. Marion, is stopping at the Hyde Park hotel. Mr. Foster is at the Carlton, where offices will be established tomorrow. His staff, at the same hotel, consistts of Judge Jacob M. Dickinson and David T. Watson, a leading lawyer of Pittsburg, who are counsel for the United States before the tribunal; Mr. Hannis Taylor, former United States minister to Spain; C. P. Anderson of New York, junior counsel; Robert Lansing of Watertown, N. Y., Mr. Foster's associate in preparing the case. With the party are several typewriters and stenographers brought over from Washington for routine work.

Hope for Speedy Settlement.

Secretary Root soon after his arrival said he had a pleasant voyage, but begged to be excused from discussing the work of the commission. He, however, expressed the opinion that the work before the tribunal would be finished by the middle of the autumn.

Mr. Foster said the case for the United States filled two large volumes with maps and prints.

"The work before the commission," said Mr. Foster, "is to decide where runs the boundary line between Alaska and Canada, the main question being whether it runs across inlets or arms of the sea, for you must remember the Alaskan coast is similar to the coast of Norway, or whether it runs around them.

What Canada Claims.

"The Canadian contention is that it cuts across, leaving the United States with a lot of isolated rocky promontories. Our contention is that the line runs around all heads of inlets and therefore gives Canada no access to the ocean.

"As to the duration of the session of the commission, well this is a lawsuit. You know what a lawsuit is. Still, I anticipate this one will not take a great while." Neither Secretary Root nor Mr. Foster was able to say whether the proceedings of the commission would be public or not, though the latter thought the precedent established by the Bering sea commission, that of open sessions, would be followed.

VETERANS OF PHILIPPINES REUNITE AT ST. PAUL.

Two Thousand Soldiers of the War Fought Across the Sea in Annual Session.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 30.—Delegates are beginning to arrive for the annual reunion of the National Society of the Army of the Philippines, which will begin its sessions tomorrow afternoon in the state capitol. The reception committees expect that fully 2,000 will attend.

The St. Louis delegation has already established itself and is making a vigorous campaign for the next reunion. The city that desires the next reunion will have to make a strenuous canvass to land it, for Chicago, which has the second largest camp in the United States, is out to capture it.

Work of the Convention.

The encampment proper will open at 2 o'clock with a business session in the senate chamber of the state capitol. Two questions of vital importance to the society will be discussed at its business sessions. At present contract surgeons who serve in the army of the Philippines are not eligible to the society. Many that have served in that capacity desire to become enrolled. It is thought at this reunion that the bylaws will be so amended that the contract surgeons may become members. In addition to this question the society will consider the advisability of forming a ladies' auxiliary similar to the one in connection with the Grand Army of the Republic.

Big Parade on Wednesday.

Wednesday will be the greatest day of the encampment. At 10:30 in the morning the military parade will be held. Nearly 3,000 will be in line and the military and semi-military organizations of the city and even some from adjoining cities will make up its six divisions.

The governors of Minnesota, North Dakota, and Iowa will participate. The governor of Iowa will probably be accompanied by his staff. Gen. Kobbe and staff, Gens. Wheaton, Sommers, Merritt, MacArthur, Funston, Metcalf, and Brig. Gen. Charles King are expected to be in line. The parade committee has also extended an invitation to the eleven Minnesota regiments of the civil war which will be holding a reunion here at the same time to join them in the parade.

SON IS DEAD AND FATHER IN JAIL PENDING INQUIRY.

Complications in Domestic Affairs of Unkefer Family at Logansport, Ind., Growing Out of Family Quarrel.

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—As a result of a clandestine courtship Joseph Unkefer, father of Bertha Unkefer, and Harry Grace, her sweetheart, are in jail and Joseph Unkefer Jr. is murdered by an unknown hand.

The prisoners fought on Saturday night, when the father warned Grace to refrain from calling on his daughter, Bertha. Grace, it is alleged, threw a stone that inflicted a scalp wound on the elder Unkefer, who had Grace arrested. The elder Unkefer returned home and at 4 o'clock this morning found his only son dead, his body resting on a woodpile in the Unkefer yard.

The boy's skull had been crushed, evidently by a crowbar or a rail. Unkefer summoned the police and an investigation was made which resulted in the arrest of the father, who is held on the charge of assault on Grace, no other charge having been preferred as yet. It is said that Unkefer and his wife told conflicting stories of the finding of their son's body. The girl does not believe Grace killed her brother. Tonight Unkefer was taken from the jail by the authorities and spirited away, fearing something might happen to him.

Woman Shot by Husband Dead.

Aurora, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. John Van Fleet, who was shot by her husband on Saturday, died this morning. County Coroner Mead of Geneva was summoned and impaneled a jury, but the inquest was adjourned pending further investigation. Van Fleet shot his wife after quarreling with her the night before. The man has not been found, and the Aurora police, and the sheriff also, are scouring the country for him. They think that he has committed suicide.

Sleeping Barkeeper Slain.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 30.—Michael Hoolihan, a bartender, while sleeping in a chair in a saloon owned here by his brother, John Hoolihan, was beaten to death with a club. A heavy table leg covered with blood lay near the body. Everyone in Hoolihan's was drunk. Hoolihan's skull was crushed and his pockets had been rifled. Will Lee, a negro, has been arrested on suspicion.

New York Chautauqua Closed.

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 30.—The Chautauqua assembly closed its two months' season today. Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus of Armour institute, Chicago, preached the farewell sermon.

GERMANS RESENT AMERICAN ZEAL.

Berlin Press Angry at Turkish Incident, Claiming It Was Deliberate Scheme.

HINT AT ACT BY POWERS.

Tewfik Pasha Said to Have Urged Leishman to Have Warships Stopped.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, Aug. 31, 3 a. m.—The advent of the United States as a factor in the Turkish problem has aroused much dissatisfaction, to which the German press gives free expression. The feeling is unquestionably due to the knowledge that if the American government once legitimately interferes, respect for the status quo will not be allowed to interfere with the course of justice and the political calculations of Germany, Austria, and Russia may be rudely upset. Moreover, there is the strongest desire in Germany to maintain the integrity of the Ottoman empire in the interest of German trade, which needs an outlet in east Europe.

Tageblatt Attempts Ridicule.

Commenting on the action of the United States the Berliner Tageblatt says: "The situation certainly is complicated anew by the smart policy of the United States. America desired to vie with Russia, and therefore likewise arranged for herself the murder of a consul, although this was only done by means of an erroneous reading of a cipher dispatch. But," the paper continues, "lies in Europe have short legs, and even the bullet which hissed by the ear of the American consul at Beirut will not avail to save Americans from European derision. But if the United States really sets itself to make political capital out of this incident, which has been created by an unscrupulous power of invention, the powers would probably soon cry, 'Hands off.'"

Zeitung Doubts the Facts.

The National Zeitung goes even farther and throws doubt even on the story of the attempted assassination of Magelssen and says:

"To what extent the sensational reports about demonstrations of hostility toward foreigners in Beirut are founded on fact, time alone will decide, but it strikes one as curious that the alleged attempt on the life of Magelssen which is to serve as a prelude to government action in grandiose style, cannot even yet be regarded as an established fact. As our readers will remember, the moment the report became known the ports denied it, and in Constantinople this view is still held apparently with perfect reason."

Want Warships Turned Back.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A dispatch from Constantinople, dated Aug. 29, to the Exchange Telegraph company says it is understood that after an interview with Foreign Minister Tewfik Pasha Minister Leishman requested Washington to recall the European squadron which has been ordered to Beirut.

Shots Were Fired for Joy.

The Sofia correspondent of the Times telegraphs that it is explained that the Beirut affair was merely a wedding party indulging in a feu de joie and the shots were not directed with design against the United States vice consul, Mr. Magelssen.

Sailing of Cruisers Announced.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—Other than the advices from Admiral Cotton announcing his departure with the cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco for Beirut, there were no developments in the Turkish situation today so far as Washington is concerned.

No additional information came today from United States Minister Leishman, Secretary Hay saying tonight he had not heard from our minister to Turkey since yesterday morning.

The orders to Admiral Cotton to proceed to Beirut will not be canceled, it is authoritatively stated tonight, unless the president so directs. Such an order at this time, however, apparently would not avail anything, as the admiral is now on his way to Turkey.

Believe Minister Unduly Alarmed.

The interview with Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister, at his summer home at Sayville, Long island, was a topic of almost general discussion in official circles today. That the minister manifestly is perturbed over the situation of affairs in Turkey is fully realized here. His uneasiness over the presence of an American fleet in Turkish waters, lest it be taken by the revolutionists as an evidence of the American government's sympathy with their cause, it is thought, will not be strong enough reason for its withdrawal.

The administration regards it as a sacred duty to see that adequate and prompt assistance and protection should be given American interests in the disturbed district, and, for this reason, feels justified in having the warships sent to Turkey.

Contrary to expectation, Chekib Bey had not arrived in Washington up to 9 o'clock tonight, and inquiry at the leading hotels failed to disclose that he had telegraphed he was coming. A number of dispatches are awaiting his arrival here. Presumably some of them are from Constantinople. Secretary Hay will grant the minister an audience tomorrow if he comes to the city.

May Reach Beirut on Friday.

With the departure of the cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco for Beirut this morning, as announced by Admiral Cotton to the navy department, the entire European squadron is now on its way to the Turkish seaport, the gunboat Machias having left Genoa yesterday. The cruisers are much faster than the gunboats, and Admiral Cotton cabled that he expected they will reach Beirut by Friday next.

Renewed Zeal at Beirut.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 30.—Since the representations made by United States Minister Leishman regarding the attempt on the life of Vice Consul Magelssen the authorities at Beirut are displaying a marked activity in their efforts to find the culprit.

JEFFRIES AS A FIRE FIGHTER.

Champion Pugilist Finds Plenty of Exercise in Saving Property in Los Angeles Blaze.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Champion Jeffries was the star performer at a fire which destroyed the building occupied by the Pioneer Roll Paper company and the Lacey Manufacturing company in North Main street yesterday. Jeffries once worked as a boilermaker for Lacey and was visiting his old stamping ground when the blaze was discovered in the quarters occupied by the paper company.

"He was first on the scene of action," said one of the employés, "and he handled those 300 pound rolls of paper as if they were diplomas he was passing out to a class of graduates, and never took his coat off."

"It was warmer work than going after Corbett," said the big fighter, when it was all over, "and I am only sorry we could not head off the blaze."

WOMAN GIVES ALL TO MISSION.

Christian Alliance at Atlanta, Ga., Informed Adherent Will Devote Fortune for Building Home.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—At the session of the Christian and Missionary alliance today it was announced that a wealthy Florida woman had notified the alliance that she would sell all her property and devote the proceeds to erecting a home for the alliance in Atlanta. The officials refused to give her name, as they say her relatives would get an injunction to prevent her using her fortune for the purpose indicated. She is supposed to be Mrs. Finney of Gainesville, Fla.

LIPTON WILLING TO TRADE CREWS.

Owner of Shamrock Agrees to Unique Race to Test the Cup Yachts.

RAPS ENGLISH METHODS.

Declares His Country Is Losing Its Stride in Competition with People of America.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Sir Thomas Lipton today declared that he is willing to have a race sailed between Shamrock III. and Reliance in which the Americans would man his yacht and the crew of Shamrock go on Reliance. The suggestion has been offered frequently of late, it being desired that a test under these conditions be had to prove whetner the success in defending the America cup has been due to the superiority of the American yachts or the seamanship of their crews.

Sir Thomas said: "I understand that Mr. Iselin does not agree to this proposition. All I can say is that I am willing to do anything for the sport in this connection, and I wish to add that I think it is a shame that so many reflections have been made upon my crew. They have done the best that they could, and men could do no more than this."

Then Sir Thomas paid a high compliment to the men on the defender.

"The smartest sailors that I ever saw in my life," he said, "are those that sail Reliance."

Would Sell Shamrock for Song.

Sir Thomas crossed his legs, stroked his mustache a few moments in silence, and then said: "I have the most beautiful yacht afloat, and you can have it for a song.

"I am not blaming any one," Sir Thomas continued, "no one whatever. Mr. Fife, who designed Shamrock III., I am convinced, did his best. I must acknowledge that we, as a nation, are in a state of decay as compared with the greatest nation on earth, the American nation. We still cling to old ideas, and it does not seem as though anything could ever jar us to the knowledge that the younger nation is leaving us behind commercially and in every other way. We have got to brace up or get left. For example, there were some new bridges needed in Egypt, and bids were invited. An English firm wrote saying they would do the work in nine months. An American firm cabled and said it would do it in three. In all England there are classes, classes that do not mix. Here all are in touch."

May Be No Race Today.

Owing to the continuance of the gale which has prevailed off Sandy Hook for three days there is a chance that Reliance and Shamrock III. will not race tomorrow. The northeast wind abated but slightly towards evening, and was blowing twenty miles an hour and the sea was running high. Capt. Charles Barr of Reliance late in the afternoon said that the chances were greatly against a race, as, even if the wind abated the sea would be so high that the boats would not dare go out.

The local weather bureau received the following dispatch from Washington tonight:

"The wind over the international yacht race course on Monday will be brisk to high and mostly northeast, with cloudy and possibly rainy weather."

Will Decide This Morning.

The New York Yacht club will decide whether there will be a race or not at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Sir Thomas Lipton instructed H. Hier Davis, his personal representative in New York, to notify all guests invited on board the Erin tomorrow that he thought it not advisable for any of them to come aboard and that in consequence the tender used to convey guests from the city to the Erin would not make the usual trip.

Two days after the final race Sir Thomas will be the guest of honor at a banquet to be given at the Waldorf-Astoria by the Order of Pilgrims.

Briton Scores Cup Rules.

John Fearson, a correspondent of the London Yachting World, said tonight: "It looks as if the wind and sea will stop the cup racing again tomorrow. We of the other side feel a grim satisfaction over the outlook, because it emphasizes the necessity for changing the measurement rules that have resulted in the construction of yachts that can't stand a slight stress of weather. The rule is not of our making. The cup holder dictates the terms and holds tightly to the one I refer to. British yachting men regarded the rule of measurement as the great bar to cup racing. All the yachts produced under it are dangerous, unwieldy, expensive, and useless, and our most recent experience suggests that the most dangerous, unwieldy, expensive, and useless is also the most successful."

MURDER MAY EXPLAIN MAN'S DEATH ON RAILROAD TRACK.

Unknown's Head Is Crushed and Police Are Working on Theory That He Was Not Killed by a Train.

The finding of a man's body on the Chicago and Northwestern railway tracks near Maywood yesterday afternoon may develop into a murder mystery. The man, it was reported to the police, had been killed by a train, but after an investigation discoveries were found, according to the police, that he may have been murdered and his body placed on the track. They were led to this theory by the absence of anything in the man's pockets which might disclose his identity or give them a clew to his address.

The body was found near the rails late in the afternoon by a boy. It was not greatly mangled, and the police say this strengthens the theory that the man was not killed by a train. The body was that of a man apparently 50 years old and of medium height. The clothing, the police say, was of good quality, and, judging from his appearance, the man was not one who would have been stealing a ride on a train, nor could he be classed as a tramp.

An examination disclosed a wound on the head which, while it may have been made when the body was struck by an engine, the police say resembles that made by a club.

SHOT WHILE BUYING CIGARS.

Patron Asks for Trading Stamps, Gets None, Quarrels, and Is Seriously Injured.

Because he was refused trading stamps, Thomas Young, 91 Ninety-first street, quarreled with the proprietor of a cigar store yesterday afternoon and was shot and seriously injured. George W. Perk, 9001 Superior avenue, was arrested. He claimed he shot in self-defense.

Perk, it is alleged, refused to give Young the stamps, saying he did not give them with a small purchase. In the dispute Young is said to have seized a chair and attempted to strike Perk with it. Perk evaded the blow and the chair struck a showcase. Enraged at this, it is said, Perk ran behind the counter and seizing a revolver fired three shots at Young.

All shots took effect. Young was struck in the head, in his left shoulder, and in the right hand.

Chair Used in a Fight.

A chair was the weapon used by Walter Machewis, saloonkeeper at Elston and Milwaukee avenues, in a quarrel with Michael Carr, 25 Keith street, last night. Machewis ordered Carr to leave and the latter threw a bottle at him. Machewis then struck Carr on the head with a chair, the police say, sending him to the floor. Both were badly hurt and each was arrested.

bers, supposed to have been the third member of the party.

The motorman, like young Stewart, was given no chance for his life. As he arose from the bench, rubbing his eyes, a revolver was thrust almost into his face and fired.

The bullet entered Johnson's head, causing instant death, and the slain man fell back on the bench where a moment before he had been sleeping.

Go After the Cash.

Apparently satisfied that they had terrorized all they had not killed, the robbers then turned their attention to the loot. Breaking their way into the cashier's office with a heavy sledge, two of the robbers turned to the cash, most of which was lying loose on Edward's desk. The rest of the money was in a wooden box in the open safe.

Edmond, lying on his side on the floor, moved slightly, as if to reach into his pocket for a weapon.

"You want some more, do you?" demanded one of the robbers, stepping over the prostrate man and thrusting a revolver into his face.

Edmond faintly declared that he was out of the fight.

"Well, stay out of it then," admonished the robber. "Then over on your face and don't look up. If you make a move we'll kill you—kill you, sure."

Edmund obeyed the command, and what happened after that was viewed only by Biehl from his place of concealment, although Edmond heard the men as they speculated on the amount of money they were about to secure.

Secure Loot, Then Flee.

It was not three minutes after the first shot had been fired till the robbers were in possession of their loot. On the receiving clerk's desk was a large amount of silver coin and bills and in the open safe was even more money.

"Don't touch the silver; it's too heavy for us," commanded the robber who had threatened Edmond with death.

The robbers contented themselves with only the paper money and then, without so much as a look at their dead, dying, and wounded victims, ran out of the office and south on State street.

Biehl, cramped, half stifled, and suffering from his scalp wound, waited for perhaps a minute and then emerged from the wardrobe, running to a drawer in his office where his revolver was kept. Securing the weapon he hurried to the street and emptied it in the air as an alarm to any policeman that might be within hearing distance.

This done, Biehl sank to the ground, overcome by the excitement and weak from loss of blood.

Police Take Up Chase.

The police were on the scene in a few moments. Policeman R. J. Hogan was within a block of the car barn and heard Biehl's shots, and, taking in the situation at a glance, notified all the police stations north of Englewood to be on the watch for the robbers. Then he notified his own station, the Woodlawn.

The work of the police was so rapid that the telephone bell on the police wires and the public 'phone rang simultaneously in the Woodlawn station. The warning was being telephoned back to Woodlawn by the time that Hogan was notifying his own station.

Although the Englewood station is within three blocks of the barns the Woodlawn wagon made a run of two miles and arrived first.

Lieut. Monahan and Sergeant Brown of the Woodlawn station sent men through the surrounding district and detectives from all parts of the city joined in the hunt.

Descriptions Are Vague.

Although the robbers had been seen by several persons, no accurate description could be obtained.

Cashier Biehl's description of "a large man in gray" was the best information the police could get. This description was confirmed by two conductors who had seen a stranger in the neighborhood.

F. L. Gregory, the last conductor to pay in, left the office about two minutes to 3 o'clock, not five minutes before the shooting. He says that he noticed a short man wearing a black suit and a plain straw hat standing in the doorway. He paid no attention to him, thinking that he was waiting for a night car.

Half an hour earlier F. M. O'Brien, another conductor, saw three men, one corresponding to the description of the man in the gray suit, another answering Gregory's description, and the third a short man dressed in black and wearing a black derbyt hat.

Edmond's version of the double tragedy necessarily is incomplete, owing to the fact that his face was turned to the floor most of the time the robbers were in the office. Cashier Biehl, however, gave the police a more definite account of what happened.

"It was just after 3 a. m. when the robbers came," Biehl said. "The last conductor had handed in his sheet to me and we were just finishing up for the night and getting ready for the day force. Mr. Edmonds was in, sitting on a stool down in the southeast corner of the room. I was on my knees putting a book into a case, and Frank Stewart was standing near me.

"Suddenly I heard a noise at the window, which was closed on account of the cool weather. I looked up and saw two men looking in the window. I barely had time to realize that one was on his knees and was holding a revolver in his hand when the firing commenced.

First Shot Strikes Youth.

"The first shot struck Stewart and he fell to the floor without a word. Then I dropped down and half ran, half crawled into the wardrobe, which prevented the men at the window from seeing me. Then I saw Edmond fall and knew that he had been hit.

"Then I heard the noise in the outer office and the shot that killed Johnson. I also heard a crash against the window at which Edmond had been sitting. I heard the glass break, but the window was protected by a netting, which withstood the blow of the sledge hammer the robber had used. One of the robbers was trying to break in the window to reach the piles of money which lay on Edmond's desk.

"Then I heard him come to the door, followed by the crash of the hammer. The lock burst and the door flew open.

Robbers in the Office.

"The robber carefully laid the hammer down on a shelf outside the door and drew his revolver as he entered. He was a large man dressed in a striped gray suit, and wore a brown derby hat. His face was covered by a handkerchief.

"The robber advanced into the middle of the room with his revolver in his hand and glanced all around. He was followed by another man, wearing a black derby hat.

"The first robber turned to Edmond, who had made a move, and threatened him with death.

"'I'm out of it all right,' Edmond moaned.

"'Turn over on your face,' was the next order, and Edmond obeyed.

"After another look around the man put his revolver in his pocket, and with his companion went over to Edmond's desk. He picked up the bundles of bills lying there and piled them on his left arm, one by one. Then the two left without so much as looking towards me.

"After the robbers had been gone a minute I got up and went to the drawer and got my revolver and went outside and fired it for help."

Reward Promptly Offered.

When Robert McCulloch, general manager of the company, was notified of the robbery early yesterday morning he hurried to the home of President David G. Hamilton and held a brief conversation with him. As a result, the offer of the $1,000 reward was made for information leading to the capture of the robbers.

President Hamilton said yesterday afternoon that he knew no more of the matter than he had been told by the police and by men who were in the barn at the time.

"Mr. McCulloch came to my home early this morning and told me of the unfortunate affair," he said. "He suggested the matter of a reward, and I agreed with him that it would be the right thing. I left the matter entirely in his charge.

"At the present time we are leaving the case entirely in the hands of the police. The matter of employing private detectives has been suggested, and it is possible that some action may be taken along that line tomorrow when a meeting of the officials is held. Meanwhile the offer of a reward may have weight with private detectives."

Chief O'Neill, taking personal charge of the case, was in communication with his detectives all day. During the morning he had a long talk with Inspector Lavin and the two men discussed every detail which might lead to a clew. The chief also spent more than an hour in consultation with Capt. Hayes of the Woodlawn station, who directed the drag net operations until the chief took charge.

"It will be a matter of hard work and good luck if we succeed in capturing the men who did this job," the chief said last night. "Every trick that is known in the business of catching criminals is being used in this case, and I have received almost hourly reports from my men all over the city.

"We are paying special attention to the territory south of the city, for we believe that the men started south after the robbery. If they were at all familiar with the district in which the robbery occurred, they knew that there was less chance of meeting policemen by going south than by taking any other direction.

"If the men are captured tonight it will more than likely be in one of the suburbs south of Chicago. There is little clew to the men who carried out the robbery, but we will arrest every suspicious character we can find and take chances of getting the right men in the roundup."

Hopeful of a Capture.

"I am more than hopeful we will arrest the robbers," said Capt. Hayes of the Woodlawn station. "My opinion is that the fellows who did the job are young men from the Pontiac reformatory. They are young and rash and willing to take great chances to secure the money.

"They were cowards, for they stood outside the window in the darkness and deliberately killed their men before they ventured inside. I think the same rashness that caused them to plan the robbery will land them in the dragnet.

"Circumstances show that the robbery had been carefully planned. They waited until the last conductor had turned in his money and gone. They tampered with the wires which connect a lever under the cashier's desk with an alarm gong in the car barns. When Edmond fell with a bullet in his leg he dragged himself to the lever and attempted to give the alarm, but the signal failed to work. All this shows that the men were familiar with the scene of the robbery.

"After the robbers left the barn they ran south on State street at least three blocks. Policeman Barbour of the Englewood station picked up a couple of one dollar bills at Sixty-eighth and State streets early this morning, and I have no doubt that the slayers dropped them in their flight. I do not attach much importance to the report that a horse and wagon was seen near the scene of the robbery."

Robbery Carefully Timed.

The time chosen for the robbery was the best suited to the purpose of the holdup men that could be found, according to the officials of the company. Saturday night is always a heavy night for the street car companies, and there is never less than $2,000 in the office.

The calculations of the robbers was so close that the last man to pay in hardly had left the barn when he heard the shots fired.

The cashier's office is a large, square room in the southwest corner of the barn. The windows in the two outside walls are high, and the only entrance is a narrow door from the inside of the barn.

The inner office has a window opening into the barn. The window is protected by a heavy iron grating, but the lower corner was cut off several years ago to allow the conductors to pass transfers through. It was through this space, about six inches square, that the shots were fired which struck two of the three men in the room.

Robbers Take Careful Aim.

Louis Martin, a car washer who witnessed the shooting from another part of the barn, said that the man who did the shooting knelt and fired as deliberately as though he were in a shooting gallery.

From the place where Martin was standing he could see only two men, but he believes that the other man was inside the outer office, as he heard the shots which killed Johnson fired while he was watching the two men.

He did not see any more of the affair, as he ran to give the alarm.

CHICAGO A CITY OF MEN: WOMEN BEING A MINORITY.

Investigations Made by Health Department Show This Municipality to Be Unique in the United States.

Chicago is a city of men and boys. Investigations completed yesterday by the health department show that it has a larger proportion of male inhabitants than any other large city in the United States.

More than this, more boys are born here each year than are born in any other city, in proportion to population. For twenty years Chicago has averaged 5.3 per cent more males than females, while New York has 2.8 per cent more females than males. Philadelphia and Boston are in a class by themselves, and reports would indicate that in future years the Chicago man may be compelled to go to the eastern cities for a wife.

While the number of young women in Chicago is not in keeping with the demand, Philadelphia, Boston, and New York have many doomed to spinsterhood.

To add to their other troubles due to a shortage of men the three eastern cities have a death rate for males much larger than that reported in Chicago. The rate in this city for the last three census years is 20.5 per thousand. In New York it is 27.1 and in Boston it is 23.5. Philadelphia is more fortunate, its death rate for males being 22.9.

Chicago need not fear, however, that the men will supplant the women. The strenuous life in the western city is far more fatal to the men than to the women, and the difference is increasing each year. While the death rate for males was 10 per cent greater than the death rate for women twenty years ago, it was 18.2 greater at the last accounting. The increase is progressive and the health department asks:

"Is there anything but the less strenuous life of the eastern cities to account for this striking disparity?"

SAVES HER AGED PARENTS FROM THE FUMES OF GAS.

Miss Helen McKeon Unable to Arouse Them, So She Breaks Open Window and Finds Them Unconscious.

A daughter rescued Patrick and Maria McKeon, each 75 years old, from asphyxiation last night. Gas escaping from a partly opened jet in their residence at 3541 Michigan avenue had overcome them, and physicians say they would not have lived more than a few minutes longer.

When Miss Helen McKeon, a school teacher, came home in the evening she found the street door locked, and she was unable to enter the house. When no one answered her calls she went to a window and saw her mother and father in the room. She broke a pane of glass and detected the odor of gas.

The young woman called to her parents, but received no answer. She climbed through the window and found them unconscious. Mr. McKeon was lying on the sofa, apparently asleep, while his wife was sitting beside him with a book in her lap.

Miss McKeon summoned neighbors, and the police took the aged persons to the Provident hospital.

"My wife was reading to me," said Mr. McKeon, "and I suppose we both fell asleep. I don't know how the gas became extinguished. I did not remember anything until I recovered here at the hospital."

CROWD TO HEAR NEW THOUGHT.

Followers of Movement Pack Handel Hall at Union Meeting of the Chicago Organizations.

Crowding Handel hall, followers of the New Thought movement in Chicago last evening held their third union service. The meeting was under the auspices of twelve New Thought organizations, which have been formed in Chicago recently. The address of the evening was made by W. J. Colville of New York, whose subject was: "God Is Now Here," a phrase which is given as the basic principle of the movement.

NEGRO HONORED AT CAMBRIDGE.

Black Men Elected to Legislature, Council, and on City Boards.

COLOR NO BAR TO FAVOR.

Negress Principal of Fashionable White School in Aristocratic Section.

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Notwithstanding the fact that Cambridge is outranked by no city in the land in the culture and refinement of its inhabitants, certain it is that no American community has so honored the negro as have the people of the university city. Not only have they esteemed the black man as their equal for a half century, but they are doing it today.

Twice has Cambridge been represented in the state legislature by negroes. In each instance the successful candidate resided in a section of the city where the vote of his race was relatively small.

Seven members of the common council have been of African descent.

A negro is now at the head of the city department of bacteriology.

Another is a member of the board of trustees that directs the conduct of the public library.

A black man has been a member of the board of aldermen.

Another has been chief of the fire department. He was the only man of his race then a member of the city's fire fighting forces.

There is one negro policeman now in the service. He has been in the department for nineteen years.

A black man has been commander of a white Grand Army post.

A negress is principal of a grammar school in a fashionable section. Under her are six white teachers and several hundred white pupils.

Honored by Roosevelt.

Best known of all Cambridge negroes is William H. Lewis, recently appointed by President Roosevelt to be assistant United States district attorney for this section. Lewis first became especially prominent as a player on the Harvard football eleven. His work as center rush on the team in the early '90s has never been equaled by a Harvard man since.

Lewis was graduated from the university law school in 1895. Soon after he was admitted to the bar. Not long after that he married Miss Elizabeth Baker of the class of 1898, Wellesley.

In the years 1899, 1900, and 1901 Lewis represented Ward Five, Cambridge, in the city council. Then he went higher, his legislative district, the Fifth Middlesex, sending him as its representative to a seat in the lower house on Beacon hill. Lewis is a republican and the next year his city, normally sturdily republican, went strongly democratic and Lewis, like about every one else in his party who was running for elective office, was defeated.

As an orator, Lewis has few if any superiors in Massachusetts. He was born in Berkeley, Va., in 1868. He was the son of a Baptist clergyman. He has been president of the Amherst Alumni club and is a member of the Cambridge and Middlesex clubs.

One a Leading Attorney.

Cambridge has few more proficient attorneys than Clement G. Morgan. For five years did he represent his ward in the Cambridge city council, for two in the lower body and the next three in the board of aldermen. He, too, is a Harvard man, from which university he was graduated with distinction in the class of 1900. One of the honors that came to him upon the occasion of graduation was his election as class orator—a compliment never before accorded to one of his race at Cambridge.

When Morgan had completed his five years of service as a city father he aspired to a seat in the legislature. In this, however, he was not successful, political combinations in his district defeating his ambition. He is a native of the national capital.

On the Board of Health.

A third negro whom everybody in Cambridge has heard of, and most of whom know, is Dr. William C. Lane. For many years Dr. Lane has been conspicuous as a leader among the voters of his race in the party that makes nonpartisanship in city politics its basis. In state and national politics he is a republican.

Notwithstanding the fact that he opposed Mayor McNamee in his campaign last fall, the latter appointed him to the position that he now holds, that of chief bacteriologist in the board of health.

Dr. Lane is a capable physician, and his practice among the people of his color is a large and lucrative one. He was born in Elizabeth City, N. C., in 1854, and came to Boston in 1872, settling in Cambridge soon after. In 1888 and 1884 he was elected to the common council by the republican party. He is a member of a half dozen secret societies and social organizations.

The Rev. J. Henry Duckrey is at present a member of the board of trustees of the Cambridge public library. He was appointed to that position after having been defeated by the nonpartisans as a candidate, on the democratic ticket, for the school board.

Is a Library Trustee.

Mr. Duckrey had always been a republican. Believing, however, that his race should be represented on the school board, he went to work and secured the democratic nomination for that place. His new party and the mayor as well supported him almost unanimously, but the large number of women voters allied with the nonpartisan forces, which are often the dominant ones in Cambridge, defeated him. Mayor McNamee lost no time in placing the colored clergyman in a position which, if not the one most desired, still gave him a hand in shaping the education of the city's children, and as a library trustee the Rev. Mr. Duckrey is thoroughly esteemed by his colleagues.

Mr. Duckrey is just 40 years of age. He was born in Summit Bridge, Del., and received his earliest education in the Philadelphia schools. Later he was graduated at Lincoln university.

He left a prosperous pastorate in Delaware ten years ago to come to Cambridge. His success here has been remarkable. When he became the pastor of Mount Olive church the society was composed of twenty-five persons. Now the dorshipers are many times that number; the church has purchased 10,000 feet of land, and has erected an edifice that cost $10,000. The Rev. Mr. Duckrey is personally well to do.

Sent to the Legislature.

Cambridge sent the first black man to Beacon hill who ever sat as a member of the Massachusetts legislature. He was Joshua Bowen Smith. He served for two years in that body, and served with distinction. He had earlier won the regard of Charles Sumner and other abolition leaders.

Smith was born in Pennsylvania. He married a white woman of education and refinement, and most of his associates were white. This did not in the least deter him from working constantly, in all ways, for the betterment of his race. He was made a freemason by St. Andrew's lodge, and was the first man of his color to sit as a member of the Grand lodge of Massachusetts.

For his second term in the house Smith was nominated by acclamation; his Caucasian colleague went through the form of a ballot—evidence of the consideration which is accorded the negro in Cambridge.

Head of Agassiz School.

Miss Maria L. Baldwin, of Afro-American origin, has been at the head of the Agassiz school since 1890. There is hardly a negro pupil among her hundreds of pupils, the majority of whom come from the best families in the city.

Patrick Henry Raymond was one of the best fire chiefs that ever directed the Cambridge department. He was a negro. The National Association of Fire Chiefs elected him as its secretary.

LOW MUST SAY HE IS IN RACE.

Senator Platt Warns Mayor He Will Lose Support Unless He Declares Himself.

HAS ONLY ONE VISITOR.

Exposition of Styles for Women to Open at Madison Square Garden Today.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, Aug. 30.

Platt Warns Low He Must Declare His Candidacy.

United States Senator Platt tonight served notice upon Mayor Low that he must declare himself openly as a candidate for re-election before the fusion conference on Tuesday or he might not have the support of the republican members of the conference committee. Members from the campaign committee of the Retail Wine, Beer, and Liquor Dealers' association in a manifesto today to the leaders of the republican organization and the Citizens' union bitterly denounce Low and declare if they select him as the head of the anti-Tammany ticket they will leave no stone unturned to accomplish his defeat.

Style Exposition to Be Held at Madison Square.

For the next two weeks Madison Square garden will be given over to the display of fine dresses, the Fashion show formally opening there tomorrow night. Acting Mayor Fornes, Secretary of Commerce and Labor George B. Cortelyou, United States Senator C. M. Depew, and others will deliver brief addresses. This is the first exposition of its kind ever held in this country. Its purpose is to set styles and to establish a unity of ideas in the making of gowns between American and Parisian modistes.

Successfully to bring about this movement European modistes have contributed to the exposition 150 gowns of every style, while a large number of American designs will be displayed. Otto Adler, delegate from the Parisian dressmakers, will deliver addresses on European fashions.

Handsome girls during the afternoon and evening sessions will wear the different style of gowns on a stage. Every style of garment favored by women in outdoor life will be shown, including golf, automobile, yachting, tennis, and bicycle styles. The exhibit will show the process of making many of the articles of apparel and will include the silk loom in operation.

There will be a dispay of the proper styles to be worn at various functions, including an ideal wedding costume. The millinery exhibit will be on a large scale and the display of domestic and foreign laces will be notable.

Another feature of interest will be hairdressing, showing the proper manner of arranging the hair for morning, afternoon, and evening, and in the most becoming manner in accordance with the style of gown to be worn.

Metropolitan Sale Said to Have Caused Friction

It developed today that the transfer by sale of the control of the Metropolitan Securities company to the Metropolitan street railway interests was secretly made over a month ago. Many stockholders just put in possession of the facts are said to be dissatisfied. Many financiers believe that the disposal of the Kuhn-Loeb majority holdings to the Whitney-Ryan syndicate is not a forerunner of a great consolidation and many bankers, it is said, are dissatisfied with the transaction.

"I know nothing of the transfer from the Metropolitan Securities company by Messrs. Kuhn, Loeb & Co.," said P. A. B. Widener tonight. Mr. Widener is at Newport visiting George A. Huhn, a banker from Philadelphia. Mr. Widener, who was going out, authorized Mr. Huhn to speak further for him.

"Will it mean a great merger?" was asked.

"Mr. Widener really does not know what it means," was the reply.

"Are Philadelphians interested?"

"We are all interested, Mr. Widener, Mr. Dolan, and myself being traction directors, but we do not know anything about the sale of Metropolitan Securities or what is intended."

Lipton Assists an American Girl Violinist.

Miss Reata Winfield came over on the Philadelphia today. Miss Winfield is a southern girl of considerable talent as a violinist. She went to London February last expecting to play a number of concerts, but engagements failed her. She says starvation is staring her in the face. Her last penny spent, she was driven from the roof under which she found shelter because of lack of money to pay her rent.

"I took my little violin," said Miss Winfield, "and went out to play on the street corners, hoping to secure enough to keep life in my body. The first penny I received was given me by a colored man. You can imagine the feelings of a southern girl under such humiliation. Finally I caught a severe cold and had an attack of typhoid fever. I was cared for at Charing Cross hospital.

"When I recovered I found work at $5 a week in a restaurant. A gentleman who heard my story called the attention of Sir Thomas Lipton to my plight. He came to my assistance and through his kindness I am once more in my native land."

Convicted Labor Leader's First Sunday in Prison.

Sam Parks, the labor leader, spent his first Sunday in Sing Sing prison today. Parks at 7 o'clock fell in line with a gang of fiber workers and marched to the prison mess hall for breakfast. From there they marched to their shops, where they spent two hours lounging around and talking to each other. There were no services in the prison chapel, as the services have been discontinued during the month of August. At 10 o'clock the gang again formed in line and the men then ordered to their cells until Monday morning.

As they passed into their cells each man was given rations for dinner and supper, consisting of baked apples and three slices of bread. At 5 o'clock hot coffee was passed in through the cell bars.

The first visitor Parks has seen since he arrived in prison came this afternoon, when one of the associate counsel in his case spent ten minutes with the prisoner, standing in front of the cell door. He explained to Parks the efforts his lawyers were making in his behalf, and the prisoner was filled with hope at what the lawyer told him. Parks firmly believes he will be granted a new trial, and that his stay in Sing Sing prison will be of short duration.

Ireland Declared More Prosperous than in 30 Years.

Valentine Dillon, formerly lord mayor of Dublin, who arrived on the Arabic yesterday, tonight said that Ireland has not been more prosperous in three decades than now. "While the landlord problem is far from being settled finally, the situation is exceedingly comfortable now," he said. "The land bill pleases both sides. There is no great poverty in Ireland at present, nor is there dire suffering anywhere. I believe that immigration from Ireland will rapidly decrease, and there is undeniable evidence of growing prosperity."

Mme. Januschek Said to Be Dying in Poverty.

Mme. Janauschek, the actress, who for some time has suffered from paralysis, is said to be slowly dying at the home of Mrs. Aston, at 144 Franklin street, in Saratoga. The fund of $5,000 raised for her through a benefit performance has long since been expended and several weeks ago Mme. Janauschek was forced to sell the last of her diamonds.

New Laws Going Into Effect This Week.

Of five laws which were passed by the last legislature and which will become operative on Tuesday, probably the chief is a law to prevent discrimination against the members of the state militia. Another prevents the unauthorized use of a name or picture of any person for the purpose of trade. Junk dealers will be prevented from buying material from children less than 16 years old. Newsboys will be licensed.

Another law relates to the abandonment of children less than 14 years old. Hereafter no boy less than 10 years old will be allowed to sell papers, and the newsboys between 10 and 14 years of age must wear badges and must not work later than 10 o'clock at night. No girls less than 16 years old will be allowed to engage in this occupation at any time. Nearly 10,000 boys have filled out the preliminary application blanks.

Hundreds of children in this city have become addicted to the practice of looting abandoned houses, hence the junk law. By the Hughes law labor unions and employers are prohibited from discriminating against members of the state militia. The age limit of abandoned children is raised from 6 to 14 years.

William Fleischmann of Cincinnati, the racetrack plunger, who left Saratoga during the recent race meeting owing the bookmakers $35,000, is now in London. Since he reached London he has suffered from a stroke of paralysis.

Coal Bunkers of Training Ship Yankee on Fire.

The flagship Yankee of the naval training squadron, which is flying the flag of Rear Admiral W. C. Wise, and which has been engaged in the maneuvers off Portland, entered Newport harbor this morning with the midship bunker afire. The fire was discovered Thursday morning by smoke on the gun deck. Two hundred tons of coal were removed from the top of the bunker, leaving about 300 tons. Then the fire horse was used, and since that time the fire has been smoldering. The crew is still engaged in moving the coal from one bunker to another. The Yankee coaled at Bar Harbor on Aug. 9, and this is some of the soft coal that was taken aboard there. Admiral Wise will inspect the training station tomorrow and the training ship Monongahela. The latter vessel will then go to League island for repairs.

Electric Meters Found to Be Liable to Err.

Meters measuring electricity and patterned after the much abused gas meter have been found capable of error, and as a result of expert tests the New York Edison company has paid many rebates to large consumers, and automobile manufacturers who charge storage batteries with currents from the Edison mains, and hotels, and other large consumers who have not installed individual plants are the principal sufferers.

Columbia Will Have 6,000 Students.

When Columbia university opens for its 150th academic year on Sept. 23, it is probable the total number of persons coming under the university's influence as students will reach the enormous total of 6,000. This includes "extension students" at the teachers' college, numbering 1,200. It will give Columbia rank as the largest American university by several hundred. Without the extension students, the total probably will be in the neighborhood of 4,800, making it second only to Harvard in point of size.

Frau Wagner to Fight Conried in the Courts.

Frau Cosima Wagner is not going to let Herr Conried produce her late husband's opera "Parsifal" here this winter without making a fight in the courts here to prevent the production. She has retained Hawes & Judge, a law firm, which has been concerned in a good deal of musical litigation in the last ten years, to protect her interests.

HATS OF ALL KINDS TO BE SHOWN AT CONVENTION.

National Milliners' Association Will Begin Session in Fine Arts Building, When Poke Bonnets Will Be Shown.

Hats of all shapes and colors will be placed on exhibition in the Fine Arts building tomorrow, and for four days the Chicago woman can see the finest specimens of the milliner's skill.

The National Milliners' association, newly organized, will open its first convention, with milliners from all parts of the United States attending. Lectures will be given on styles, materials, and methods, the examples of the milliner's art being used in illustration.

Much space in the exhibit will be devoted to the poke bonnet, considered the latest thing in millinery. It has the same shape as those worn before the war and comes in black and blue velvet.

Mme. Hunt, president, will open the session. Mrs. Morse of the Art Craft institute and Miss Arrindale will make addresses on the first day. A demonstration of hats will be the feature for Wednesday.

DEDICATE SCIENCE CHURCH.

Mrs. Elizabeth Webster and Mrs. Fannie Pierce of Chicago Officiate at Marshalltown, Iowa.

Marshalltown, Ia., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The new Christian Science church erected at a cost of $7,000 was dedicated here today by Mrs. Elizabeth Webster of Chicago, who was instrumental in organizing the church, assisted by Mrs. Fannie Pierce, second reader of the First church of Chicago. The society that has just built this church is the outgrowth of a movement started by two women of Marshalltown a few years ago, and now numbers a membership of forty.

GEYSER IN TERRIFIC ERUPTION.

Several Sightseers Swept Away by a Stream of Boiling Water at Wellington, N. Z.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Aug. 30.—A terrific eruption of the big Waimanguh geyser took place today. Several sightseers were swept away by the stream of boiling water.

NO, THIS IS NOT A FORT.

It is simply a pile of wheat in Argentina waiting for shipment on the Buenos Ayres and Pacific railway. The Argentine crop is enormous, and the acreage is increasing annually.

CHARGE FEAR RULED JURY

STRANGE PLEA MADE BY LAWYERS FOR CALEB POWERS.

Assert That Deputy Sheriff Who Guarded the Jurors Told Them Friends of the Defendant Had Sought to Burn Down Boarding House They Occupied During the Trial—Accusation Will Be Made Basis for Appeal to Higher Court.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The attorneys for Caleb Powers, who was given a death sentence at Georgetown yesterday for alleged conspiracy to murder Gov. William Goebel, who was assassinated at Frankfort in January, 1900, claim that the jurors in the Powers trial were frightened into giving the defendant the extreme penalty by the officers guarding them, telling them that friends of Powers had made three attempts to burn the boarding house in which they were locked at night to sleep.

One of the jurors said here today that Deputy Sheriff Lusby told the members of the jury how near they came to being burned up and said that Deputy Robinson had been stationed at the rear of the house to stand picket during the night until the trial was over.

Juryman Wilson said that the jury was in great fear of being cremated and all were delighted when the trial was over. The attorneys for the defense say if there was an attempt made to burn the boarding house it was by friends of the prosecution to scare the jury into returning a verdict for hanging Powers.

They heard of the affair too late to offer it as a reason for a new trial, but the matter will be urged before the Court of Appeals in order to secure a new trial. The impression appears to be that Powers will be hanged, the higher court refusing to interfere, in which event the governor will fix the day of execution.

CHAINED HIS SON TO THE FLOOR.

Washington Father Adopts Unique Device to Prevent Boy from Stealing and Fails.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The police have discovered a peculiar case of oriental punishment in the house of an Arab fruit dealer named Joseph Abriziad. The man had been annoyed by having on many occasions to pay fines for his son, who would take any bicycle he found without an owner and ride it until he got tired, when he would abandon it wherever he pleased and go home.

The officers in working up a complaint of a missing wheel went to the Arab's house, and were astonished to hear from the mother that the father had "fixed the boy" so he could not steal, and consequently he could not have taken the missing bicycle. The detectives demanded to see the boy and were led upstairs, where they found him sleeping on a quilt on the floor, with a stout dog chain locked around his ankle, the other end fastened to an eyebolt in the floor. The woman said her husband had the key to the padlock in his pocket at his place of business.

When the officers went to the house to have the boy unchained the mother said he had released himself with a nail, stolen another wheel, and gone off, and she feared he would stay away.

MARINES AND CITIZENS IN RIOT.

Serious Results of Outbreak at Annapolis Averted by Commanding Officers—One Man Badly Hurt.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—There was a serious outbreak tonight of the trouble which has been brewing between the United States marines stationed here and some citizens. A crowd of about forty marines, armed with pieces of pipe and sticks, assembled on a corner with the avowed purpose of seeking revenge for the injuries inflicted last evening on Sergeant Fritz and others. Frank Denver was struck on the head and severely injured. A serious riot was averted by the arrival of several marine officers.

LEAGUE TO AID IRISHMAN.

James Lynchehaun, Alleged Fugitive from British Justice, Gets Support of Americans.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The Irish Land league of America will be at the back of James Lynchehaun, who is now under detention here on a charge of being a fugitive from British justice. Maurice Donnelly, who was delegated to visit President John F. Finerty of the land league at Chicago returned tonight. Mr. Donnelly said he had a message for the committee of Irishmen that has undertaken the defense of Lynchehaun and would say nothing of his visit until he had delivered this message at the meeting tomorrow night.

PANIC AT BUTCHERS' PICNIC.

Steer to Have Been Used in Prize Slaughtering Contest Gets Away and Four Are Badly Hurt.

Racine, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—During a panic at the annual butchers' picnic four persons were injured by a steer which broke loose in a crowd of 1,000 persons and 100 were knocked down or fainted.

Anna Schultz, aged 12 years, was cut in the head and her leg broken. Herman Schultz, 10 years old; Frank Larron, 14 years; and Henry Willsey were also seriously hurt. A slaughtering contest had been arranged between Milwaukee and Chicago butchers. Two steers were brought to the grounds in a wagon and one escaped in the midst of the crowd. Those injured were trampled upon by the crowd.

Missouri Soldiers Guests at Camp.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Twenty officers of the Missouri National Guard were guests of the officers of the Fifth regiment today. They attended church services, were entertained at dinner, witnessed the evening parade, and left for home at 7 o'clock.

Body Found in the River.

The body of Barney O'Neill, a deckhand, who fell into the river at Rush street from the railing of the steamer City of South Haven and was drowned on Aug. 26, was discovered floating near State street yesterday morning.

DETAILS OF THE PLANS FOR MONSTER LABOR UNION.

Representatives of 600,000 Workers in the Building Trades to Meet at Indianapolis on Oct. 7.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 30.—Frank Buchanan, president of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, tonight gave out the details of the plan for the amalgamation of the six powerful structural trades into a mighty national building trades council of 600,000 workmen, and the absorption by these six of the smaller building trades, such as granite cutters, marble polishers, stonecutters, etc.

The plan was first made public at a preliminary meeting in this city last Wednesday. Another meeting will be held at Indianapolis on Oct. 7 to perfect the organization. The Indianapolis meeting will be attended by national officers representing the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, the Bricklayers and Masons' International union, the United Association of Plumbers, Gasfitters, Steamfitters, and Steamfitters' Helpers, the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paperhangers, and the Building Trade Laborers' International union.

At the root of the proposed organization is a decision of its promoters to in a great measure abolish strikes. The new organization will not only not indorse a strike of any of its members that does not meet with general approval, but will refuse to permit the strike.

CHILD WIFE TELLS OF CRUELTY

Kittie Reynolds, Aged 13, Who Was Married to Gypsy, Returns to Mother's Home in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Telling a story of her husband's cruelty and neglect, 13 year old Kittie Reynolds, who was married to a gypsy, Alex. Williamson, on Aug. 5, on a special dispensation from a justice, has returned to her parents.

"My husband treated me like a dog," said the girl. "Things went well enough until we reached South Bend, Ind., when he threatened to make me peddle lace about the streets. He told me my parents did not care for me when I said I was going home, and then burned all my clothes, giving me only cotton clothes. He also took some of my jewelry.

"I wrote to my mother of my treatment, and she sent me money, and I escaped at Laporte, and will never leave my folks again." The parents of the girl say her husband will be arrested on a charge of abduction.

POLICE CLOSE CANDY STORE.

Children Pay Mournful Visits to Shop of Woman Thought to Have Killed Herself.

Children living near Twenty-fourth street and Calumet avenue paid mournful visits yesterday to the little confectionery shop of Miss Lydia Rood, 2431 Calumet avenue, whose disappearance has caused the belief she has committed suicide. The police of the Cottage Grove avenue station have removed her little stock and fastened the door of the store where the children had been accustomed to spend their pennies. Detectives Stark and Conway are unable to find a trace of the woman, and they believe she has carried out her threat.

TWO DIE IN RAILROAD WRECK.

Nickel Plate Freight Train Crashes Into Engine at Bellevue, O., and Both Engineers Are Killed.

Bellevue, O., Aug. 30.—In a freight wreck in the yards of the Nickel Plate railway this morning Engineers James Rodenberg of Bellevue and J. G. Bartholemeu of Conneaut, O., were killed. A westbound train pulled into the yards at full speed and crashed into a switch engine.

Elkhart, Ind., Aug. 30.—The westbound limited on the Lake Shore railroad crashed into a switch engine this afternoon. The engineer and fireman of the limited were slightly hurt.

AUCTION DELINQUENT DEBTS.

Iowa Editor Will Sell to the Highest Bidder All Unpaid Subscription Bills.

Iowa Falls, Ia., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—There will be an auction sale of the accounts of delinquent subscribers of the Britt Tribune. Editor E. N. Bailey has advertised the first bunch of delinquents, and will proceed with the sale of the accounts to the highest bidded on Tuesday. The accounts embrace people living in many states, and range from a few dollars to as high as $25.

TWO DROWNED IN LABOR FIGHT.

Strikers Pursuing Nonunion Man to a Boat Fall Into the Water from Gangway.

Bellaire, O., Aug. 30.—During a disturbance today between the striking machinists and those still working Fred Williams, a nonunion man, was pursued by strikers. Williams, while flourishing his revolver, ran on to a ferry boat, the gangway of which broke with his pursuers. Anthony Holleran and William Pracht were drowned.

OBITUARY.

CHARLES BOUDREAU, Chicago, died yesterday at his residence, 866 North Irving avenue, aged 61 years. Mr. Boudreau was a native of Canada and came to Chicago forty-seven years ago, securing employment as a printer. He had worked on all the Chicago daily papers and had been vice president and trustee of local No. 16 International Typographical union. Mr. Boudreaux made his home with his sister. The funeral will be from the late residence this afternoon, with burial in Rosehill.

FRED BONGE, formerly a reporter on Chicago and New York newspapers and later employed in St. Paul and Minneapolis, died yesterday in Superior, Wis., of typhoid pneumonia. Mr. Bonge was 37 years old and leaves but one immediate relative, a cloistered sister of the order of the Good Shepherd.

GET ALLEGED HOLDUP MEN

POLICE ARREST FIVE AFTER LONG STRUGGLE IN A BARN.

Two Ready to Jump from Window When Caught—Three Taken to Doctor After Battle Is Ended—Detectives Overhear Plot to Rob—Batter Down Door and Make Capture—Stolen Watch Found on One—Part of Proceeds of Burglary in Saloon.

Five alleged holdup men were captured yesterday morning after a hard battle with the police. Two were about to drop from the second story window of their hiding place when the police grasped their arms and drew them back into the building which had been raided. Three others were struggling with policemen inside. When the battle ended they were taken to a physician's office, where they had their wounds attended to.

The encounter was in the hayloft of a barn in the rear of 151 Larrabee street. The place is supposed to be a refuge for thieves, and the police have been watching it closely. Detectives McKune and Findley of the Chicago avenue station were concealed near the place when they heard a man say:

"I'll go in and 'stick him up' with this."

Police Surround the Barn.

The robber walked away, displaying a revolver. Four policeman were called to the place and waited until the men entered the barn. Then they surrounded the building, but were forced to batter down the door before they could enter. The five were waiting the coming of the police, and when the men in uniform tried to pass up the stairs they were stopped at the top. Some struck at the patrolmen and detectives, while others sought to climb out of the windows.

Two were just about to drop from the openings when McCune and Findley grappled with them and forced them to come inside. All the policemen used their clubs freely and the prisoners were badly beaten. Three were treated at the office of Dr. Anton Klinger, 207 Townsend street, and later the five were taken to the station, where they were closely questioned for an hour. Four of the men gave their names as H. Hack, Thomas Roach, Michael Gallery, and Adolph Clark.

Stolen Watch Is Found.

The other was not booked. He carried a gold watch, which, the police say, was stolen recently from August Hoagland, 108 Chicago avenue. Hoagland identified the watch as one taken from his saloon by burglars who got property worth $100.

MAN MARRIED A WEEK AGO IS RUN DOWN AND KILLED.

R. W. Kellogg, Conductor for the Calumet Electric Railway, Meets Death at the Seventy-first Street Crossing.

A bride of a week became a widow last night when R. W. Kellogg, 26 years old, a conductor on the Calumet Electric railway, was struck and killed by a Lake Shore train at the Seventy-first street crossing. Kellogg lived in Dauphin Park.

Just how the conductor came to get in the way of the train is not clear. The car was stopped a few yards from the crossing and Kellogg ran ahead to see if the tracks were clear. At that moment a passenger train dashed by and Kellogg was struck and instantly killed.

It was only last Monday that Kellogg was married and went with his bride to Dauphin Park to live. When told of her husband's death the young wife was inconsolable.

Child Killed by Train.—Emma Linder, 6 years old, 5820 Carpenter street, was struck and instantly killed yesterday by an engine on the Pennsylvania railway at the crossing of the tracks at Carpenter street. The child was playing on the track, picking up pebbles, and was not seen by the engineer till too late to stop the train.

Hurt While Leaving Car.—Frank Underleck, 156 Dearborn street, was severely injured yesterday afternoon while alighting from a moving Cottage Grove avenue cable train at Wabash avenue and Hubbard court. His left hip was fractured and his body bruised. He was taken to the Samaritan hospital.

Accuses a Gripman.—John Penny, 93 Sangamon street, 53 years old, complained to the police last evening that he had been pushed from the running board of a west bound Madison street cable car by the gripman. He was suffering from a scalp wound and a cut over the right eye, both of which wounds were dressed at the county hospital. O. B. Case is said by Penny to have been the gripman.

WRECKS STREW ENTIRE COAST.

Governor of Connecticut and Party Suffer on Sound—Big Ship Ashore and May Be Lost.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—From all points today between Cape Cod and the Virginia capes came tales of wreck and hardships at sea. On the heels of the northeast gale that has raged for two days were many brave rescues and narrow escapes from death, while the loss to shipping is reported heavy all along the coast.

For two days and two nights Gov. Chamberlain of Connecticut and his party were buffeted about the sound in the naval reserve ship Alfrida. During this time they bravely went to the rescue of several imperiled crews, and tonight only succeeded in making port near Roton Point, after thirty-six hours of misery, half starved and ill.

Three hundred passengers of the Joy line steamer Tremont, disabled in Huntington bay on Friday, were transferred to the steamer Larchmont and taken to Providence, R. I.

The 2,000 ton full rigged ship Charles S. Whitney, which ran on Constitution rock, in Long Island sound, yesterday, is in danger of pounding itself to pieces unless the storm abates. There is a big hole in the starboard quarter, and the hold is full of water. The north shore of the sound is strewn with the wreckage of small boats from City Island to Green Point.

Wreckage and box board lumber came ashore today near Barnegat station, N. J., which indicates that some vessel loaded with lumber either has been wrecked or is in trouble.

The Old Dominion liner Monroe, which arrived tonight from Norfolk, reports that the Northeast End lightship, off Cape May, signaled this morning as Monroe passed: "Have sickness aboard; want relief; please report to Philadelphia." Capt. Hulphers sent the dispatch to the lighthouse department, which will send a tender with a doctor from Philadelphia.

A launch from Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht Erin was disabled in Shrewsbury river, opposite Seabright, today. The launch drifted around helplessly for about an hour, when another launch put off from shore and took it in tow.

STEAMER DELAYED BY STORM.

City of Chicago Reaches Harbor Two and a Half Hours Late, Believing Anxiety of Many.

The steamer City of Chicago came to port two and one-half hours late last night, after a stormy trip from St. Joseph. Many anxiously awaited the arrival of the boat, and fears for its safety were entertained. Three hundred letter carriers and 200 members of the North American union went to Milwaukee in the morning on the Christopher Columbus, and the Eastland took 200 members of the Royal Arcanum to South Haven, to which place 200 members of the American Protective association also went.

BANK ROBBERY IS PREVENTED.

Chief of Police at East St. Louis Leads in Capture of Band of Safe Blowers.

East St. Louis, Ill., Aug. 30.—After a struggle with two alleged bank robbers, now behind the bars at East St. Louis, Ill., Chief of Police Purdy foiled an attempt to blow the safe of the East St. Louis Trust and Savings bank tonight. A third man jumped from one of the windows of the bank and escaped. The men arrested had burglars' tools.

ISELIN RESCUES 12 FROM WRECK.

Lends Tug to Life Crew and Passengers and Sailors of Sunken Schooner Saved.

HEROIC EFFORTS NEEDED

Victims of Ocean Disaster Drift All Night in Open Boat and Are Near Death.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Ten men and two women, passengers and crew of the schooner Henry P. Mason, which foundered off Sandy Hook last night, were rescued today after a night of peril in an open boat, through the efforts of C. Oliver Iselin, manager of the America cup defender, Reliance.

When the life saving crew found they were unable to launch their boat, Mr. Iselin furnished them with the tug Navigator to tow the lifeboat and accompanied the expedition, together with H. C. Leeds of the New York Yacht club.

When taken into a lifeboat by the Sandy Hook life saving crew this afternoon they were so exhausted by their exposure that the life savers had to pick them up bodily from the frail yawl. Capt. Charles Barr of Reliance volunteered the services of the fifty men on Reliance, but they were not needed.

The rescued are as follows:

Coffin, George, seaman, Nantucket, Mass.
Franklin, Gus, seaman, Finland.
Frost, Capt. A. W., Portland, Me.
Grover, Preston, steward, Tennants Harbor, Me.
Grover, Mrs. Preston, wife of steward, Tennants Harbor, Me.
Halverson, Michael, seaman, Norway.
Halsen, Michael, seaman, Finland.
Johnson, Charles, second mate, Baltimore, Md.
Masilous, N. G., passenger, New York.
Masilous, Mrs. N. G., sister of captain, New York.
Smiley, John H., first mate, Boston, Mass.
Roth, Henry, seaman, New York.

Struck Submerged Wreck.

The Henry P. Mason is a three masted schooner and was bound from Perth Amboy, N. J., for Portland, Me., with cargo. During the northeast gale at 10 o'clock last night, when ten miles off Galilee, it was heavily thrown on what is believed to have been a submerged wreck.

When the Mason struck the mainmast and mizen mast were broken off short and the vessel started to leak badly. At 1 o'clock an anchor was dropped overboard, but it was soon discovered that the vessel would not be kept afloat and the crew and passengers took to the yawl boat. For a time they held to the stern of the schooner, but when it was seen that the vessel was sinking they cast off and drifted. About a mile off Galilee and when near the breakers they made fast to a fish pound, where they remained until they were rescued.

Unable to Launch Lifeboat.

At daylight they were sighted by the life savers and repeated efforts were made to launch a boat to go to their assistance. The heavy seas running made this impossible and word was sent to Sandy Hook for assistance. Mr. Iselin volunteered the services of the Navigator to tow the life savers to where the small boat was momentarily in danger of being swamped.

The rescue was accomplished in as daring a manner as has been told in any sea tale. The big tug made several attempts to get near the yawl and, failing, went to windward of it and cast off the lifeboat, a line from the life savers being kept on the tug. With splendid dexterity a line was sent from the lifeboat to a pole on the fish pound, and then was paid out until the yawl was reached.

Twice the lifeboat was filled level with water, but it is a self-bailer and cleared itself. The shipwrecked ones could not help themselves and Capt. Patterson and his crew had to lift them out. First came the two women and then the sailors. Meantime, under the direction of Mr. Iselin, the Navigator's crew had thrown a dozen pails of oil overboard to the windward of the yawl, so that the sea was calmed. The women, when brought aboard, were carefully attended, Mr. Iselin having taken along a stewardess from the steam yacht Sunbeam.

Thought Women Would Die.

Capt. Frost of the Mason said that just before the Navigator arrived they had concluded that the women would die in a few hours, and they had decided to try for the beach. He said that on Saturday the passenger steamer Hamilton had offered to take the women off, and he urged them to go, but that they declined to leave without the men. The men thought the storm would abate and they would get the boat to harbor in safety.

Lake Ships Near Sinking.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 30.—After a terrible experience in the northeast gale on Lake Superior yesterday and last night, the steamer Robert R. Rhodes this morning limped into port with the barge Georger in tow. Both boats were full of water, and the crews were exhausted from steady work at the pumps to keep the vessels from foundering. None of them ever expected to reach port and stood at their work during the night with life preservers strapped about them. Several of the crew narrowly escaped being washed overboard.

The two boats were loaded with iron ore. The upper works on both boats were crushed in by the seas.

Passenger Steamer Burned.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30.—The passenger steamer Pittsburg of the Georgian Bay Transportation company, was burned to the water's edge at its dock in Sandwich, Ont., early today. The crew escaped uninjured. The loss is $60,000.

PLAY IN A BOAT: DROWNED.

Two Men and Woman Upset Small Craft While Trying to Knock Off Each Other's Hats.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 30.—Wilbur Carlson and wife and Seth Johnson of this city were drowned at White Bear lake tonight by the overturning of a rowboat. The party had been spending the day at the lake and early in the evening entered a rowboat. A short distance from the dock they began cutting up and attempted to knock off each other's hats. In the mixup the boat was overturned and all of the party were drowned before aid could reach them.

Breaks Window to Get Whisky.

Crazed by drink, the police say, John O'Brien, a tramp, last evening broke a window in the Cooperative Distilling and Rectifying company's wholesale whisky house at 203 and 205 Van Buren street and stole two cases of whisky. He was carrying the boxes to an alley at the rear of the store when he was seen. Lieut. Sullivan and several policemen arrested O'Brien after a struggle.

MARSHALL FIELD & CO

The Coming of Fall is marked in this store by extensive displays of new Fall merchandise, revealing the tendencies of the season. At this time this great institution becomes more than ever a vast exposition of rare and beautiful merchandise from all parts of the world. Especially interesting are its first displays of the most recent styles in fine apparel and materials. Here are to be found the best creations of the world's foremost designers of feminine apparel, wrought into veritable masterpieces of artistic invention. The store is permeated with an "atmosphere of style," a characteristic which not only covers the more elaborate garments, but reaches even to the most inexpensive lines we sell. The various sections are in closest touch with the best sources and resources of style origin, and the clientele of this house includes those who demand the best, thus affording a ready market for an almost unlimited number of extreme fashion ideas. The logical result is the atmosphere of style correctness in everything where style is concerned.

Blankets and Comforters.

Our Great Annual September Sale Begins Today.

"September prices are the lowest of the year." It will pay you to purchase your fall and winter supply of Blankets and Comforters during September.

Every desirable style and quality is represented in this immense stock.

All Wool Blankets
$2.50 to $56 pair.

Wool and Cotton Mixed Blankets
$1.65 to $10.80 pair.

All Cotton Blankets

SUGGESTS WAYS TO GET PURE MILK

Agricultural Department Issues Bulletin on Handling Supply in Big Cities.

NEED FOR AN IDEAL CAN.

Cleanliness and Frequent Official Inspection of Dairies Declared to Be Necessary.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The department of agriculture has issued a bulletin regarding the treatment and transportation of the milk supply of the larger cities. The bulletin goes into the subject of pasteurization, the average consumption daily, and the average price paid by consumers and obtained by producers at different seasons.

The bulletin lays some stress on the fact that the ideal milk can has not yet been devised.

Suggestions for Improvement.

Among the suggestions for the improvement of the milk supply are the following:

The registration of all dairies.

Official indorsement of properly conducted dairies.

Inspection of all herds, barns, dairy buildings, etc., once a month.

Better lighting, ventilation, drainage, and cleanliness of cows' stables.

Whitewashing the interior of stables.

Eradication of tuberculosis from dairy herds.

Branding of condemned cows.

Cows not to be given swill feed, etc.

Cows to be regularly cleaned.

Pasturage for city cows.

Aeration of milk in pure air.

Prompt cooling of milk and holding it at a low temperature until final delivery.

Shipment of milk from farms promptly after milking.

Delivery of milk and cream in sealed packages.

Uniform Laws Needed.

There are many cities and towns, says the bulletin, which have no legal regulations whatever concerning milk. The opinion is expressed that the agitation of the question has caused much unnecessary alarm. The figures show that 1,000,000,000 gallons of milk are sold annually, and the average quantity per capita consumed daily in the largest cities is somewhat less than two-thirds of a pint. The smallest consumption is in New Orleans, where it is about one-fourth of a pint.

Milk is sold from 12,000 stores in New York City, or an average of one store to every 286 persons, and it is delivered from 4,000 wagons, or an average of one wagon to every 859 persons. In cities with a population above 50,000 there is an average of one wagon to 784 persons. Some cities report several thousand cows in herds within their boundaries, and most cities have quite a number of cows kept singly for the private use of the families owning them.

The tables show a wide variation in the prices paid for milk in different parts of the country. Producers usually receive, on their farms, from two to three cents a quart in the summer and three cents or more in winter, but these limits are often exceeded. On the other hand, in some cases and in some seasons producers receive less than two cents a quart. The average price paid by consumers of milk when retailed in small quantities is about six cents in summer and seven cents in winter.

Pasteurization Needs Care.

The report then says: "The practice of pasteurization appears to be gradually extending. Yet the medical fraternity is divided in opinion as to its expediency, and the best sentiment favors natural milk produced and delivered in such a pure and protected condition as to be greatly superior to any pasteurized article.

"Too often milk is offered for sale with the claim that it has been pasteurized, when it has been actually more harmed than helped, the process to which it has been subjected being unworthy of the name. If done at all, pasteurization should be in the hands of competent persons having efficient apparatus."

INSPECTING MILK IN STORES.

Health Department Urges That School Children Buy Bottles at Luncheon Time.

The small stores near public schools are being inspected by the city health department, which suggests that when school opens children, as far as possible, purchase bottles of milk at luncheon time.

"With typhoid fever always threatening at this season and a frequently contaminated water supply," says the weekly bulletin, "no better provision for a child's luncheon could be made."

Stores Getting Milk Trade.

"Milk dealers are complaining that the stores are not sanitary and are demanding that the sale of milk from them should be suppressed," continues the bulletin. "The sale of milk and cream in stores has increased immensely since the introduction 'one delivery a day' has been in vogue. People prefer to send a block or so to a store for a bottle of guaranteed milk that has been kept at low temperature from a few minutes after milking until it is delivered to them, to having their milk delivered at their door step or window at any time that will suit the convenience of the dealer.

"Insanitary stores will not be tolerated, and the department will thank any dealer for information of the location of such; but the dealers have themselves to thank if they are doing less and the stores more business since the adoption of the once a day delivery."

There were 586 deaths from all causes, 324 men to 262 women. This is on the basis of an annual death rate of 16.20.

Statement by Dr. Reilly.

Dr. F. W. Reilly, acting health commissioner, has sent out the following statement regarding criticisms of the Citizens' association:

"Although somewhat of an Irishman myself, I can appreciate the 'bulls' of other nationalities. Louis A. Seeberger, president of the Citizens' association, and C. H. Mulliken, a director of that organization, in their assertions—either by themselves or their mouthpieces—that the efforts of the health department to compel them to comply with the sanitary ordinances of the city are acts of 'retaliation' for the association's 'prodding' the department to greater activity, display as great a genius for getting the 'cart before the horse' as Sir Boyle Roche himself.

"The Century dictionary defines 'retaliation' as 'the return of like for like, the doing of that to another which he has done to us'; in the language of the street, a 'getting back at.'

"In April last notice was served upon Mr. Seeberger by the sanitary inspection bureau of the department to abate certain nuisances upon his Sedgwick street property. The nuisances still exist, and suit was begun against Mr. Seeberger one day last week.

"Similarly as to Mulliken, notice was first served upon him last May for the abatement of unsanitary conditions on the premises at 1905 to 1915 Armour avenue, and suit was ordered June 8, but thus far service has been evaded.

"The first act of the Citizens' association in 'prodding' the sanitary inspection bureau occurred July 16, when one of its agents requested access to the records of the bureau—a request which was of course complied with. This was about three months, in the case of Mr. Seeberger and about two months in the case of Mr. Mulliken, after the bureau had begun 'prodding' these two gentlemen.

"It would be ungenerous and unmannerly to suggest that the action of the Citizens' association was in 'retaliation' of the previous action of the sanitary bureau. Therefore I shall not make such suggestion."

WANTS CATS TO HELP THE HOMELESS DOGS.

Mrs. Lindsey A. Woodward

Chicago cats are to come to the relief of their traditional enemy, the dog, and if a plan set on foot Saturday is carried to success the homeless canines of the city will be provided with a semi-public pound that promises to do away with the discomforts and horrors of the city's institution. The movement is under the auspices of the National Cat Club of America, formerly the Orange and Cream Cat Club of Chicago, one of the youngest but at the same time the strongest cat organization in this country.

At the meeting held Saturday afternoon at the new clubrooms, 67 Wabash avenue, Mrs. Lindsey A. Woodward described the crowded and unwholesome condition of the present Chicago dog pound and the club decided to devote the proceeds of the coming cat show to the purpose of building and conducting a dog pound on sanitary and humane principles.

The club is planning to lease land on the north side and build a permanent brick shell 50x100 feet, with cement floors. It is to be divided into pens with running water within and roomy runs outside. The dogs are to be well fed on meat soups, with plenty of bread, and overcrowding will not be allowed. A committee of which Mrs. Woodward is chairman was appointed and will push the matter.

In addition to the cat show popular subscriptions are to be asked in aid of the model pound movement and the officers of the club will welcome any money that may be donated.

The newly elected officers are: President, Mrs. Everett M. Davis; vice president, Mrs. W. E. Colburn; corresponding secretary, Miss Lillian M. Berry; financial secretary, Mrs. Hugh E. King; treasurer, Mrs. Baker.

UNIONS BALK AT A LEVY.

DEFENSE FUND TAX EACH MONTH CAUSES PROTEST.

Carpenters' Organization Vote to Pay One Assessment and No More—Declare Raising of Such a Great Sum Unnecessary—Plan Was to Use Cash in Fighting Labor's Legal Battle, but Recent Strikes Have Been Orderly.

Labor litigation, when paid for by a general assessment, has proved to be unpopular among the members of the trade unions affiliated with the Chicago Federation of Labor, and they are beginning to protest against the levy of 5 cents a month that has been ordered by the central organization.

Out of the fund thus raised, which was expected to reach about $15,000 a month, it was planned to fight all suits brought against organized labor. A committee of seven was appointed to have charge of the movement, superintend the work of raising the cash, and have control of its disbursement.

When the scheme was first announced it was received with hearty approval. Five cents a month seemed a small sum to give, but sentiment changed when the workers discovered that some of the locals will have to pay as high as $450 a month.

Since the assessment was started the strikes in Chicago have been orderly and capital has not had to enter the courts, the consequence being that the committee of seven has done little more than collect the assessment and draw pay for its none too onerous work.

Carpenters First to Act.

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners has considered the proposition carefully and decided that there is no immediate need of raising a large sum of money and paying seven men at least $24 a week each to watch over it. The brotherhood voted to pay the first assessment and will pay no more until there is an emergency that calls for it.

The fund committee has on its hands all of the suits resulting from the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company strike. These the carpenters are willing to see fought out, even to the Supreme court, but they have taken the ground that one assessment is sufficient.

Other unions, especially those in the building trades, are expected to follow the carpenters' example, and members of the teamsters' union asserted yesterday that they would ask their organization to take similar action.

"Before we are through with this defense fund business there is going to be trouble," said one of the conservative labor leaders yesterday. "The Chicago federation had no right to take up the matter as it did. The man who works hard for his money should not be assessed for the disturber. He is willing to aid the Kellogg strikers, but will not go further."

Printers Planning a Home.

Members of Typographical union No. 16, at their meeting yesterday in Fraternity hall, 79 Adams street, discussed definite plans for establishing a building fund and maintaining a building for the purposes of the union.

The advisability of obtaining a building of their own, to be known as "Typographical hall," was brought before the members several months ago, and a committee was appointed to frame up a plan. It reported yesterday, and its recommendations were laid over until legal advice can be had. The committee recommendations, in brief, are:

That the union appropriate $5,000, to be applied on the purchase of the property at 43 and 45 La Salle street, a portion to be paid at once as an option, the balance of the $5,000 to be paid Feb. 1, 1904, the balance of the purchase price to be paid in easy installments.

That commencing Feb. 1, 1904, $400 per month be placed to the credit of the Typographical Hall association. That so much of the pension fund of $250 per month as is not paid out in pensions be borrowed from the pension trustees, the same to be refunded when property is cleared of debt.

That the Typographical Hall association be authorized to issue $12,000 5 per cent ten year improvement bonds, to be subscribed for by the membership, in denominations of $1, $2, $5, $10, $20, and $50, interest payable semi-annually. These bonds to be a second mortgage on the property and also on the net receipts of the building.

Builders Plan New Union.

Under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor the unions connected with the building industry have met and decided to form a building trades section of that organization. Four Chicago men—Frank Buchanan of the bridge men, H. Lillen of the building laborers, G. P. Gubbins of the bricklayers, and L. W. Tilden of the plumbers are back of the movement.

The bricklayers and bridge men are not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor but are taking a vote on whether they should enter it. If they do they will send representatives to a general meeting in Indianapolis on Oct. 8, where the council will be formally organized.

SEEKING TO STOP BRAWLS

WAITERS DO AWAY WITH THE STRIKE COMMITTEES.

Plan to Have Every Union Employe Obey Strike Order Given in Circular to Be Distributed—All Not Out by 6 O'Clock Tonight Will Be Expelled from Organization at a Massmeeting—Callahan Confident They Will Obey.

Strike committees, with their spectacular tactics and wild commands, have been tabooed by Robert A. Callahan, international president of the Waiters, Cooks, and Barkeepers' union, and will not be sent out today when the Chicago organization tries to spread its strike.

Every restaurant employé working for a member of the Chicago Restaurant Keepers' association will be handed a printed command to stop work. If he refuses to quit by 6 o'clock tonight he will be expelled from the union. Callahan has declared violence undesirable.

The president and the joint board were in session all day. They decided to call Third Vice President J. K. Robinson of St. Louis to Chicago. It was agreed to set 6 o'clock tonight as the hour when all union employés must strike, and at a massmeeting in the evening the recalcitrant members will be expelled.

Circulars Give the Reason.

Representatives of the union will distribute circulars to the members of the union at noon. They are as follows:

WHY THIS STRIKE IS CALLED.

First—Because statements have been made by two members of the arbitration board that there was no arbitration, and that two of the arbitrators appointed by the Chicago restaurant keepers tried to coerce into the association proprietors who have signed our scale.

Second—Because the secretary of the association assumed authority to dictate to members of the board when they should and should not meet, and we further claim that an agreement had been made by that board that all meetings should be called by the chairman.

Third—In consideration of these facts, notice is hereby given that all members affiliated with our organization must come out of every house of the Chicago Restaurant Keepers' association by 6 o'clock tonight.

Fourth—This action is indorsed by the general executive board of the International Hotel and Restaurant Employés association and the Bartenders' International League of America. We have proof of the facts we mention.

Want to End Violence.

Arrangements were made to have warrants sworn out for every restaurant keeper who assaults or uses violence against a member of the union. Secretary T. M. Clark of the waiters' union will go before a justice today and swear out warrants for the manager of the Hofbrau café, 120 Monroe street, and his head waiter, charging assault.

"We intend to put an end to violence," said President Callahan. "We plan to get all the union employés out by peaceful means. There is no reason why the restaurant keepers should ignore us, for they have not won this strike."

Will to Have Body in State.

Relatives objected to the plan of the waiters and cooks, who sought to have the body of T. W. F. Scanlan, representative of the miscellaneous hotel employés on the joint board, lie in state in the big hall at union headquarters, 122 La Salle street. More than 500 members of the organization met to see the body, which will be sent to New York today.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR TO MEET.

Chicago Members of the Order Leave Today to Attend Conclave in Peoria.

Seven hundred Chicago Knights Templar will leave this afternoon and evening for Peoria in two special trains to attend the annual conclave of Illinois members of the order, which will be in session two days. The St. Bernard and Columbia commanderies will leave in the afternoon and the Chicago commandery this evening. A feature of the conclave will be the parade, at which it is expected there will be 1,500 uniformed men in line. Holman G. Purinton of Chicago is the present grand commander of the state, and in line for that position is A. S. Wilderman, deputy grand commander of Belleville.

SHIP SUBSIDIES OF ENGLAND BIG.

Copies of Contracts Just Received Show Terms Made with Ocean Lines.

HIGH SPEED IS REQUIRED.

May Revive Agitation in Congress for Passage of Similar Measure on This Side.

BRITISH SHIP SUBSIDY.—Copies of contracts received by department of commerce show liberal terms made by government in subsidizing vessels.

CABINET MEMBERS DEMOCRATIC.—Secretary Shaw and Secretary Wilson prefer plain boarding houses to hotels during absence of their families.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Great Britain is exceedingly liberal in the payment of steamship subsidies for carrying its mails and for creating a fleet of fast modern vessels for use by the government in the event of war. Contracts were made recently by the British admiralty with the International Mercantile Marine company, which controls many steamships, and with the Cunard Steamship company.

Copies of these contracts have been received at the department of commerce. According to one of these contracts the Cunard company has agreed to construct two ships having a speed of twenty-four to twenty-five knots an hour. These vessels will be used for the transporting of mails, but they must be constructed according to plans satisfactory to the British admiralty, which will design them so the ships can be converted into modern fighting machines within a few days. They must be officered and manned by subjects and carry a certain number of naval reserves.

The government is given the right to take possession of the vessels after giving the owners seven days' notice, and the company is forbidden to lease its ships unless the consent of the admiralty is secured.

The company also agrees to fly the British flag, and it cannot under the terms of the agreement sell any ship capable of maintaining a speed of seventeen knots.

The term of the contract is twenty years and it can be extended five years. The subsidy paid to the company for these vessels is $750,000 a year. The government agrees to advance funds for constructing them, the amount not to exceed $13,000,000, and will secure itself by a deed of trust on the steamships. The company will pay 2½ per cent interest on the loan, but the interest will not accrue until the vessels are in commission. This loan must be paid in twenty years, or at the rate of $650,000 per year.

The government will pay the company $750,000 a year for twenty years, or a total of $15,000,000. This in effect means the government will make the Cunard line a gift of two first class steamships and $2,000,000 in addition within twenty years. The contracts with the other companies are equally as advantageous, and within a few years Great Britain will have a magnificent auxiliary navy.

While the subsidy bill was killed in the last congress many of the leaders advocate the payment of a subsidy to American ships. There has always been great difficulty in securing a measure which was satisfactory.

A majority of the last congress was strongly committed to the policy of rehabilitating the American merchant marine, and the action of Great Britain will make this a live issue in the next congress and the old fight will be fought over again.

Not to be outdone by the democratic habits of Secretary Cortelyou, who takes his 10 cent luncheon at a dairy lunch room, Secretary Shaw and Secretary Wilson live in a boarding house during the absence of their families from the city for the summer. To be sure, the boarding house is one of the best to be found in the vicinity of Thomas circle, but it always has been the custom of cabinet officials to either live in some fashionable hotel, their own homes, or at one of the clubs.

Secretary Shaw and his son, however, began to take their meals at the boarding house as soon as Mrs. Shaw left Washington for her summer abroad, while Secretary Wilson pursued the same course after the departure of his daughter for the summer. They sit at the table with the other boarders. Both Secretary Shaw and Secretary Wilson enter into general conversation and take an interest in all topics and views of their table neighbors. They preserve the dignity of their high official positions without in the slightest measure holding themselves aloof from the regular boarders who live in the house.

Secretary Wilson is simple and economical in his habits and has always entertained a great dislike for hotels and restaurants, so before leaving town Miss Wilson investigated the matter and located her father and brother in a house near their Vermont avenue residence, and Secretary Shaw, who entertains a similar dislike for hotels and restaurants, took the advice of Secretary Wilson and joined him there.

"The three hole man" is what Prof. S. P. Langley is called by the caddies at the Washington Golf club, because, though they again and again prime themselves for a trip around the links, and offer bets on the endurance of the portly secretary of the Smithsonian institution, three holes seems to be his established limit. To be sure, the caddy has nothing against the secretary, as he gets paid for the trip around the links while he has but three holes to make, giving him an opportunity to work for some one else and double his fee. But these small darkies that infest all golf grounds about Washington take pride in encouraging good playing, and have antipathy for a man who tries but cannot play. While lolling about the clubhouse today and waiting for some transgressor to appear for the round of the links these pickaninny caddies fell to discussing Secretary Langley's flying machine. A visitor who professed to know said the aerodrome was expected to only fly 200 yards before striking the water, when one black fellow rolled over and said: "Den yo bet he gwiner hit de water bim fo she goes fifty feet, kase dat am jis de way Mr. Secretary plays golf."

"He sho would feel funny," ventured another, "hef dat flyin' machine got de right flop and jes went calahootin' down ribbah wid he clinging ter her back."

When later they heard of the accident to Prof. Langley's houseboat discussed, they all decided that "Hit's jess laik Mr. Sectary's playin' golf, he's boun' to gib out fore he gits started."

The international commerce conditions throughout the United States as reflected by the July report of the bureau of statistics are quite satisfactory. The receipts of live stock at five markets—Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, and St. Joseph, Mo.—this year to the end of July amounted to 17,734,847 head. Last year it was 17,232,004 head, and 18,599,883 in 1901. During 1901 a total of 374,976 cars of stock arrived at the five markets, 365,419 cars in 1902, and 341,802 cars in 1903. The total receipts of live stock for this year were divided as follows:

Chicago, 8,577,847 head in 170,565 cars; Kansas City, 2,650,837 head in 54,210 cars; Omaha, 2,781,458 head in 49,225 cars; St. Louis, 2,001,945 head in 37,773 cars; St. Joseph, 1,773,260 head in 30,029 cars.

The July receipts of cattle in Chicago this year were the heaviest since 1892, with the single exception of those of July, 1901. The increase in natives as compared with the range and Texan stock was characteristic of the July arrivals.

The state of the provision market as indicated by the stocks on hand at the five cities July 31 is significant of lowering prices. On that date in 1901 there were 297,801,345 pounds of cut meats reported. In 1902 the corresponding reserve was 209,889,087 pounds, as compared with 262,438,440 pounds in 1903.

***

Trade on the great lakes between domestic ports to the end of July has exceeded the quantity of freight handled to that date in 1902 by a million tons. In July, 1901, there were reported 7,064,685 net tons of freight, against 7,582,848 net tons in 1902, and 7,876,410 net tons in 1903. For the first seven months of the current year 26,928,513 tons of coastwise traffic were reported, compared with 25,718,825 tons last year, and 18,891,257 tons the preceding year, in which navigation opened unusually late.

The amount of registered tonnage arriving on the great lakes in coastwise trade for the season to July 31, 1902, was 35,089,876 net tons, and 35,870,635 net tons in 1903.

The registered tonnage by way of the Sault Ste. Marie canal in 1902 to the same date totaled 15,603,729 tons, compared with 13,923,506 tons in 1903. This decrease is partly explained by the tendency in freight carrying capacity through steamers to increase at a more rapid rate than their registered tonnage.

SECRETARY SHAW IN CHICAGO.

Meets St. Louis Delegation and Makes Plans for Visit to New Fair Grounds.

Secretary Shaw met officers of the Louisiana Purchase exposition in Chicago yesterday, and perfected arrangements for his inspection of the world's fair grounds in St. Louis tomorrow.

The treasury official and the St. Louis delegation will leave Chicago this evening, arriving at St. Louis tomorrow morning. The secretary will spend the forenoon at the fair grounds, where four of the buildings have been completed. He will inspect the government building and the government fisheries building.

Secretary Shaw was informed that the exposition company will have expended $10,000,000 within a week. Under the act of congress the government appropriation of $5,000,000 becomes available as soon as the exposition company has spent that amount. The secretary goes to St. Louis to see how the $10,000,000 has been spent and to consider the disbursement of the $5,000,000.

The president spent the remainder of the day quietly at Sagamore hill. No visitors were received.

FINDS HER MOTHER DYING FROM ACID POISONING.

Nine Year Old Child at 1482 Van Buren Street Discovers Mrs. Mary Long Expiring—Suicide or Accident.

Lying on the bed, gasping from the effects of carbolic acid she had swallowed, Mrs. Mary S. Long was discovered yesterday afternoon by her 9 year old daughter, Ruth. The woman did not regain consciousness, though given prompt medical attention. Whether it was a case of suicide or an accidental death will be determined today at the coroner's inquest.

The police are inclined to the suicide theory, but the woman's only brother, with whom she made her home at 1472 West Van Buren street, asserts that his sister suffered from heart trouble and took the poison by mistake.

A motive for the suicide is suggested in the fact that Mr. Long, from whom she was divorced seven years ago, was recently married again.

"I do not believe that it was a case of suicide," said the brother, R. J. Wolfe, last night. "My sister suffered from heart disease, and I believe that she took the poison thinking it medicine."

Thomas J. Gaughan, 35 years old, a teamster living at 39 Chatham court, was found unconscious on the floor in the morning by his wife. At his side lay a bottle which had contained carbolic acid and it is believed that he had swallowed some of the acid with suicidal intent. He died within an hour.

EXPLOSION FATAL TO WOMAN.

Burns Received While Lighting Gasoline Stove Cause Death of Mrs. Anna Forsen.

Burns from an explosion of gasoline caused the death of Mrs. Anna Forsen yesterday at the County hospital. Mrs. Forsen, who lived at 259 Wood street, attempted to light a gasoline stove on Saturday evening, but when she applied a match to the burner the fluid in the tank caught fire and exploded. The woman's clothing was ignited, and she was unconscious when found by neighbors coming in response to her cries.

California Excursions

Leave Chicago every week in Pullman tourist sleeping cars. Each is personally conducted by a special excursion agent of experience and ability, who does much to make the overland trip interesting and entertaining.

These excursions travel over the Burlington from Chicago to Denver, over the Denver & Rio Grande or the Colorado Midland to Salt Lake City and Ogden, and over the Southern Pacific to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

This is the most intensely interesting ride in all America—past the grand Rocky Mountain scenery by daylight, through Salt Lake City and along the shores of the great Salt Lake.

In addition to these personally conducted excursions, a Pullman palace sleeping car leaves Chicago every day for San Francisco via this route.

Reinschreiber is charged with receiving stolen property, and Joseph Budwell, employed by R. Loewenthal, 20 Desplaines street, is under arrest on the charge of larceny.

For months brass and lead have disappeared from Loewenthal's large junk concern. Detectives from the Desplaines street police station have worked on the case, but the mystery remained unsolved till yesterday. Then Budwell drove up to Reinschreiber's place with a wagon filled with junk.

TELLS OF CRAZE FOR NOVELTY.

Dr. B. S. Winchester Says an Excess of It Is Mark of Shallow Character.

"The passion for novelty" was deprecated by the Rev. B. S. Winchester in his sermon in the New England church yesterday. He said in part:

"Two types of character are distinguishable, the one restless and careless, like the Athenians described in the book of Acts, who 'spent their time in nothing else but either to tell or to hear some new thing.'

"The other type is a serious, earnest soul, perplexed, baffled, despairing, but finally trusting, hoping, rejoicing, because at last it has found its God, and all the universe and the whole of human life are his.

"Both types are confronted by the same world, the same phenomena, the same problems, and both employ the same mental processes in approaching these problems. But they differ in spirit; one has the spirit of the true scientist, who is prompted by the desire to serve, to enlarge man's horizon, to make all life richer.

"Alongside this science there exists its caricature, the haphazard busybody, seeking the latest bit of extravagance, whether in the name of science, art, or religion. It takes a morbid delight in the ghastly details of crime, and gossip, and injustice. It feeds on a day's record of commonplaces. It devours every new 'ism' and fancies itself 'religious.' This restlessness is the mark of a vain, shallow, irreligious, and irresponsible character, and the existence of it is an evidence of the hunger of the soul that knows not God."

PLAN COMPLAINT IN STREET WORK

Aldermen Preparing to Prove That the Cleaning Fund Is Divided Unfairly.

TROUBLE GREATEST NOW.

Same Charge of Discrimination Is Made Regarding Garbage Collection.

Aldermen who claim that street cleaning in Chicago, like kissing, goes by favor, are fortifying themselves with figures from the last report of City Statistician Hugo Grosser, and promise to make trouble as soon as the council meets.

Every year brings the alderman's complaint that every ward except his own gets more than it is entitled to, and the plea that his own has not half as much as it deserves. The matter is fought out when the appropriation bill is passed and is brought to notice whenever any transfers of money are suggested in the council. Always the cry is, "The members of the appropriation committee look out for their own wards and the rest of us must be satisfied with what we can get."

The trouble has been particularly acute this year, as the amount of street cleaning possible under the appropriations has been considerably less than that of last year. During the first six months of last year 53,945,723 lineal feet of streets and alleys were cleaned, while for the same time this year but 36,141,746 were cared for. Half of this was in the First ward, while last year only a little more than one-third was in that section.

The First ward is a separate territory as far as this work is concerned, as the north end of it is the front yard of Chicago and must be kept clean if the rest of the city does go dirty.

Make Charge of Favoritism.

The adjacent wards, the Twenty-first on the north and the Eighteenth on the west sides, also are given extra consideration in that they are business localities near the river, but now the aldermen complain that the Twenty-first has more than its share, being third in the list of number of lineal feet cleaned. They declare it was favored because the mayor and his friends live in it.

It is against Ald. Mavor, chairman of the finance committee, that the aldermen are most loudly declaiming. His ward, the Sixth, and that of Ald. Bennett of the committee, the Seventh, comprising the Hyde Park territory, have been especially favored, being respectively second and first after the First ward in the amount of money appropriated for this purpose. The complaint is especially strong in Lake View, where the demand for clean streets is as great as it is in Hyde Park, but where the amount of work done is much less.

Figures on Street Cleaning.

The number of lineal feet cleaned during the first six months of 1903, together with the amount of earth removed and the cost, as well as the number of feet cleaned during the same time in the same wards in 1902, is given in the following table:

Wards.	Six months, 1903. Lineal feet cleaned.	Dirt removed, loads.	Cost.	Six mos., 1902. Lineal feet cleaned.

Same Trouble Over Garbage.

Garbage collection is closely allied to street cleaning, and here again the same complaints are heard from aldermen. More garbage has been removed this year than last, the figures for the first six months of each being 712,281 cubic yards for 1903, as against 693,620 for 1902. The First ward is not an overpowering factor, as the greater part of kitchen refuse there is from hotels and restaurants, which are compelled to remove it. Here the Twenty-first looms up as "the most favored ward," and the Third, Sixth, and Seventh, with strong representation on the finance committee, are not far behind it.

"As for us," remarked Ald. Hunter of the Thirty-fifth, which is at the bottom of the list, "they seem to think we can dump our garbage in our back yards if we want to get rid of it."

Comparisons for Two Seasons.

The figures for removal of garbage for the first six months of 1903, compared with the same months of 1902, are given below:

SAYS THE WEST IS PROSPEROUS.

Senator Thomas Kearns of Utah Believes Congress Will Meet in Extra Session.

Senator Thomas Kearns of Utah arrived in Chicago yesterday on his way home from the east, and stopped at the Annex for the day.

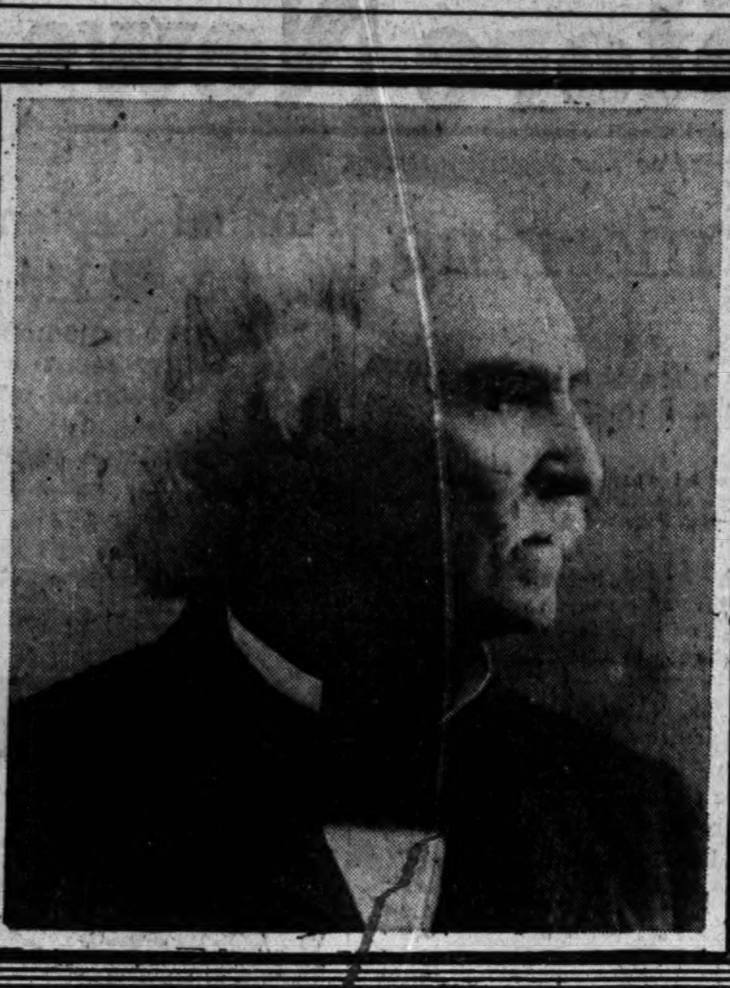

"The west," said the senator, "has never been more prosperous, and is not anxious for an extra session of congress. There does not seem to be any pressing need for financial legislation so far as the western states are concerned. Before I started back home I visited President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, and from remarks which he made I gathered that congress would be called to an extra session about the first of November for the purpose of considering financial matters and Cuba.

"As for President Roosevelt's running mate on the presidential ticket, it seems to me that the people in Utah and other western states have a decided preference for Senator Beveridge of Indiana."

PIONEER WHO GAINED WEALTH FROM LAND.

Benjamin Shurtleff.

Benjamin Shurtleff, 92 years old, is closely following preparations for the celebration of Chicago's centennial. He came from Pittsburg to this city in 1851 and invested all his capital in Lake View property. He lives at 779 Mildred avenue. For many years his picturesque old brick dwelling occupied the center of a twenty acre tract, but in the world's fair year Mr. Shurtleff sold the ten acres opposite his house for $110,000. The land is now occupied with flat buildings.

"I had confidence in the future of Chicago real estate values," said Mr. Shurtleff, "and I bought all the land I could with the $4,000 that was the extent of my wealth when I came to Chicago. I secured eighty acres at public sales conducted by the canal trustees. While waiting for this land to increase in value I built a railroad from Travers City to Benzonia, Mich. I received in part payment twenty-five sections of land, to which I added 2,000 acres costing from 75c to $1.25 an acre. I sold the plat for an average price of $10 an acre.

Mr. Shurtleff, despite his advanced age, is vigorous and takes long walks. He is a native of Canada, and has never used tobacco.

GAMBLERS ON THIN ICE.

MAYOR MAY TAKE A HAND IN THEIR FIGHT.

Political Interests Involved in the War of the Rival Bookmakers and Unless They Patch Up Their Difficulties Before the City Executive Returns Home It Is Expected That He Will Act—Both Sides Have Strong Following—Aldermen Play Part.

Mayor Harrison will have to interfere with the gamblers' fight on his return, if the fight lasts that long, or else there may be trouble in the democratic county committee. Developments of the last few days have involved the politicians in the row and untoward complications have arisen in consequence.

As long as the fight was confined to James O'Leary on the one hand and Frank McWhorter and his friends on the other it had no special political bearing. But when O'Leary attacked Tom McGinnis and Smith & Perry he stepped on toes which frequently are turned toward the city hall.

O'Leary himself has always had strong political backing among a certain class of democratic leaders, and has it yet. In the old days at the stockyards he was able to run a poolroom when no one else could and profited by his opportunities. He was closely allied with the men who controlled matters political there then and has kept up his alliances.

O'Leary and Carey Friendly.

Among the men with whom O'Leary has been on friendly terms for years are Ald. Tom Carey, now chairman of the democratic county committee, and certain adherents of Carey who still are on top politically in the town of Lake. The alderman himself is interested in the racehorse game, having invested in a stable of horses last year and run them at New Orleans with considerable success. O'Leary for years has had enough of a political following in the stockyards to make his wishes respected by Carey or any one else managing politics in that peculiar and stormy territory.

McWhorter was O'Leary's antagonist for years in the Town of Lake and finally left there when O'Leary got too strong for him, establishing his headquarters at Cottage Grove avenue and Thirty-ninth street. He has not had any special political backing for a long time.

So long, therefore, as the fight was only between O'Leary and McWhorter the politicians around the city hall took little interest in it. When Tom McGinnis' gambling house was raided, however, and the Smith & Perry people were attacked the matter took on a different phase.

Other Side Strong, Too.

McGinnis and his friends are as strong politically in the First ward as O'Leary and his friends are at the stockyards. Ald. Coughlin and Kenna are as much bound to look after McGinnis' interests as Ald. Carey is to look after O'Leary's if there are to be no costly struggles on primary days. Ald. Coughlin and Kenna are as well received at the city hall as is Ald. Carey, and both of them helped to make the majority which put Ald. Carey at the head of the county committee.

So when O'Leary had McGinnis' gambling house in State street raided and interfered with the bookmaking privileges of Smith & Perry, all in the First ward, he carried the war into Flanders with a vengeance, and the attacked persons are simply waiting until the mayor and their aldermen get back to find out what it all means.

In the meantime Sam Wagner, who is outside of any of the combinations, has some political backing on the democratic committee on his own account. He is interested with Ald. John Powers in the Worth racetrack, and the interference with his accustomed privileges makes a three cornered fight of it.

Powers has no special standing at the city hall, but he is a member of the democratic county committee, and there are a number of votes back of him there—enough to make serious trouble if the majority should split up on any proposition.

YATES MEN IN DILEMMA.

APPOINTEES MUST SOON MAKE THEIR ATTITUDE KNOWN.

Undecided Whether or Not to Support Governor for Nomination—Few Are Likely to Get Places in Convention—Officeholders Think Posts Were Paid For in Advance—All Look to Lorimer, Who Is of the Same Opinion—Holds Other Man as Debtor.

Yates appointees in Chicago are beginning to wonder what stand they would better take regarding the next gubernatorial nomination. Intimations have come from Springfield that they will be expected to declare themselves soon, and they do not like the prospect. They must act when the governor formally declares himself a candidate.

As a rule the appointees in Cook county are not strong politically and cannot be depended upon to get into a state convention. Col. J. H. Strong, public administrator and member of the staff, is the governor's main reliance in Chicago. He lives in the Second ward and has no chance of being a delegate. That ward will be split between Deneen and Lowden.

Col. Walter Fieldhouse, also a member of the staff and secretary of the west park board, is more apt to have a gallery seat in the convention than wear a delegate's badge. Park Commissioner Hirsch, who voted for Yates in the last convention, is hardly likely to do so again. James Pease thinks he has decided this. The commissioner lives in Lake View, where Yates is not popular among "the people."

R. M. Patterson, assistant pure food commissioner, and companion of the governor during the last campaign, lives in the First ward and is objectionable to both factions there.

Some Have Power Still.

But there are state officeholders in Chicago who will sit in the state convention and have delegates back of them. At their head is Chief Grain Inspector Bidwill, boss of the Eleventh ward. With him is West Park Superintendent "Billy" Cooke, whose brother, the Circuit court clerk, controls republican politics in the Ninth ward and is a main cog in the Lorimer machine.

Appointees of this character are being questioned as to what can be expected of them at the convention and whether they will be faithful to the fortunes of the governor to whom they owe their jobs. They are not in the habit of tying themselves to candidates whom they describe as "dead ones." If William Lorimer declared in favor of Yates the matter would be different.

Bidwill thinks he owes Yates nothing. He holds that his office was paid for at Peoria, when he gave Yates the votes of the Ninth ward. He asked to be made member of the board of railway commissioners, and the refusal did not suit him. He would like to continue in office until the end of his term, and having to take sides now might be awkward.

All Look to Lorimer.

Cooke can be depended upon to do anything which Congressman Lorimer may ask of him. Lorimer got him his place, and his political vision goes no farther.

The governor's Chicago friends are still depending upon Lorimer to give them substantial aid and assistance in Cook county. They argue that the governor has done everything Lorimer wanted him to; that by appointments he has strengthened the position of the congressman, not only in Chicago but throughout the state; and that Lorimer ought to return favors by giving him all the delegates he can muster in Cook county.

Lorimer, however, has refused to commit himself. The only word he has given was to tell the governor recently the Deneen boom was getting too strong in Cook county, and that it was necessary to head it off by uniting on some other Chicago candidate. He suggested Col. Frank O. Lowden, but the suggestion was not acceptable, and the governor has shown his distrust of the Lowden movement ever since.

Thinks He Owes Nothing.

Lorimer holds that the debt of gratitude is on the other side of the ledger, as his efforts at the Peoria convention had most to due with making Yates governor, and all favors from Springfield were paid for in advance.

While the governor will not be at the Rockford meeting tomorrow he will be represented by several state officeholders and have a representative there in the person of Richard Sullivan of Springfield. Sullivan recently was elected treasurer of Sangamon county and is the governor's reliance in that territory.

BRYAN CANCELS OHIO DATES.

Nebraskan Upsets Tom Johnson's Plans for Harmonizing Democratic Factions in the State.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—William J. Bryan has upset Tom L. Johnson's calculations for the harmonizing of the silver men in the Ohio democratic party by declining to come here and make speeches. Mr. Bryan was scheduled to make six speeches this week. At Napoleon he was to speak with John H. Clarke, Johnson's indorsed candidate for United States senator, who, in 1896, denounced the Chicago platform and said that Bryan's election would be a calamity to the country. Johnson's purpose in asking Bryan to come to Ohio was to make it appear that the Nebraskan had given his approval to the Clarke candidacy. Tonight Bryan sent a telegram to Johnson canceling his Ohio engagements.

POLITICS WORKS RUIN TO PARKS.

Tax for Each Acre of West Side System Greater than That of South or North.

UNION IS IN BAD SHAPE.

Stagnation and Neglect the Rule, Though Progress Is Made Elsewhere.

Residents of the west side are grumbling again over the condition of their parks. The park tax in this section is twice that assessed on the south side and much more than the tax on the north, but results would indicate the reverse.

The expense of caring for each acre of land is 50 per cent higher than the cost of the work done by the south park officials, and is more than the cost of Lincoln park work outside of the expenses of the "zoo." Notwithstanding this, pleasure grounds on the north and south sides are kept in order and improved, while those on the west side are becoming worse each year.

Trouble Due to Politics.

The explanation given is that while politics has never interfered with the South park management and has been taken from the Lincoln park board, it still has full swing in park affairs on the west side, and men are put on the pay rolls for work at primaries, and not for work on the people's pleasure grounds.

The shining example is William Cooke, superintendent of the west side system. Cooke never claimed any experience fitting him for the work. His knowledge of things horticultural is nothing. His acquaintance with the commonest principles underlying the improvement of park property likewise is nothing. If any one were to talk to him about landscape gardening he probably would ask what it means. Appointments under him have been made with the aim of getting men who could deliver their precincts on primary day. A competent horticulturist recently was dismissed from charge of Humboldt park. He had no political pull.

Cooke is a brother of John Cooke, clerk of the Circuit court, and between them they control republican politics in the Ninth ward. This makes him eminently fitted for the place.

Cooke does not meddle unnecessarily with the park system. He is rarely where his duties are supposed to require his presence. He can be found downtown more often than in the parks, and his friends claim he does no harm.

Parks on the west side are showing the effect of neglect. In spite of the large sums of money spent on them they are in practically the condition of years ago. No improvements are to be noticed, and in spots there is decay. While Garfield and Humboldt parks have not become worse, they have not advanced, and some of the smaller pleasure grounds, the ones most helpful to the people, are nearly useless.

Different on South Side.

On the south side the commissioners constantly are adding to the beauty and extent of the parks. Not a summer goes by but Washington and Jackson parks take on new features and afford more opportunities to visitors.

During the last three years Lincoln park has been changed from what promised to be a neglected waste to a most attractive park, and this with little money for the work. The regeneration came and improvements were begun when the personnel of the park board was changed and when political influences were eliminated.

The west parks have practically stood still. Some territory has been added to Garfield park, but no new features have gone with it. Humboldt shows no notable improvements on its condition of several years ago. In essential features these parks have stood still. Retrogation often has shown a marked lack of attention to details.

Union park was once the most popular breathing spot on the west side. It was maintained by the city and possessed the foundation of a "zoo," a pretty little lake, an ornamental bridge, cement walks, and well kept lawns.

Then the city turned the park over to the west park commission and that body established its headquarters there. Even the fact that the offices of the board are inside the park has not saved it. The walks now are broken and dangerous and the bridge has lost its beauty. The lake is still there, but the cement walks around it are crumbling. Seats are hard to find, the lawns have lost their attractiveness, the "zoo" has disappeared, and the park is in a condition far worse than it was thirty years ago. Every time the park commissioners go to a board meeting they have to visit this park.

Douglas Park an Example.

The people living near Douglas park are complaining of the conditions there. They say it is fast becoming a ruin, that seats broken down are never replaced, that weeds are growing up on the lawns, that rubbish is fast accummulating and never removed, that proper police protection is wanting, and that there is an entire lack of attention from employés.

Yet the park tax on the west side is higher than in any other division of the city. It is the park tax which makes the west side rate higher than that of the south or the north sides.

SUDDEN DEATH ENDS A VISIT.

Peter Ogert Comes from Aurora to Meet Son and Succumbs an Hour Later.

Coming to visit his son in Chicago, Peter Ogert, 76 years old, died an hour after his arrival, while sitting at a table with the younger man. Ogert and his wife arrived from Aurora in the morning and went directly to the residence of their son at 134 Desplaines street. Ogert then went for a walk and stopped at John A. Vogel's saloon, 141 West Harrison street, where he dropped dead. He was talking with his son only a few moments before. The body was removed to the county morgue.

Letter Carriers Go to Convention.

Seventy letter carriers from the Chicago postoffice and branch stations left on a special train for Syracuse yesterday afternoon to attend the convention of their national organization. The delegation was headed by President James F. Nolan. The convention will last all this week, and delegates will consider the proposition to retire old carriers on pension.

AUTO RAIDS IN CHICAGO.

FIVE CHAUFFEURS CAUGHT BY LINCOLN PARK POLICE.

Vow Vengeance on Captors and Declare They Were Not Exceeding the Legal Speed — All Taken by Three Who Were Waiting in Sheridan Road—Patrolmen on Bicycles Accompany Vehicles to Station—Crusade to Be Continued Next Sunday.

Five automobilists arrested yesterday by the Lincoln park police are vowing vengeance this morning on their captors of yesterday. One and all, the prisoners declared they were not violating the speed law, and asserted the policemen who took them to the station should suffer for their act.

Men Caught by Police.

The five men arrested were:

Roy Sebree, merchant, 1502 Waveland avenue.
Fred Westermann, manufacturer, 1638 Briar place.
Herbert E. Bell, coal dealer, 3170 Malden avenue.
Dr. George N. Pratt, 1606 Kenmore avenue.
W. W. Low, manufacturer, 79 East Forty-eighth street.

The arrests were made by Park Policemen Casey, Loos, and Doherty, who went to Sheridan road shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Policeman Loos waited at the northeast corner of Sheridan road and Addison avenue, while the others stood two blocks north.

The policemen, dressed in plain clothing, soon saw two automobilists approaching. When the chauffeurs were told they were under arrest they became angry.

"How do you know we are violating the speed ordinance? Have you anything to show our machines were going faster than the park ordinance allows?" asked one of the men.

The policemen were forced to ride rapidly on their bicycles while accompanying the automobiles to the stations. One of the men arrested delayed the policemen for some minutes when he told them his machine had broken down. They waited with determination until Casey threatened to get into the automobile to learn if the machine were really out of order.

New Crusade Next Sunday.

The policemen abandoned their task at 5 o'clock, to renew it next Sunday afternoon. For that day, it is said, the Lincoln park commissioners will detail fifteen policemen along the Lake Shore drive, Sheridan road, Diversey boulevard, and other streets.

Evanston police waited in vain to arrest automobilists going faster than eight miles an hour.

SENATOR HANNA MUCH BETTER.

Hopes to Be Well Enough to Attend a Conference of Political Leaders Today.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 30.—Senator M. A. Hanna, who was taken suddenly ill a few days ago in his office, was much improved today, and will try to go to his office tomorrow to attend a political conference with state leaders. Senator Hanna was not permitted to go for a drive this afternoon, his physician advising that he not extend his exertions further than the house veranda and a short walk on the senator's lawn.

Deep price cuts in Oriental Rugs.

IN nearly every other class of merchandise, styles come and styles go—become old, passe and undesirable. The older and more ancient an Oriental rug gets, the more valuable it grows.

Most clearance sales are conducted to close out goods while they are still in style. This cannot be the motive for a clearance sale of Oriental rugs. Our reason for the reductions we announce today is this: We want our stock to be an ever-changing one, and when patterns are here a certain length of time, out they go—sometimes minus profit, often at a loss, and frequently at a great loss.

If there is any one article that can always be used to good advantage in the home, it is another rug. By looking around you will discover places rugs would nicely adorn. For cozy corners and draperies there is nothing better and certainly nothing prettier than Oriental rugs.

Another item worthy of special mention is a lot of 150 Turkish rugs, average size 3x4 feet, every one a choice example of the Oriental rug weaver's art. We've been selling them at 6.50; today we offer them at $4.

Our September Sale of Fine Cut Glass

ARE you thinking of buying a gift? Of course, it is puzzling to decide what to get. Let us answer the question for you. Buy cut glass; 'tis one of the few things one can't have too much of. And for adorning the home, nothing could be more beautiful for the buffet, the china closet or the table.

The best time of all the year to buy is during this September sale; not only because the stock is so suggestive of all that's beautiful and every piece is of rich American cut glass, but because the prices are so greatly reduced. There's not a piece in the entire lot that is not marked at a goodly saving.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT—Upon request goods purchased today will be charged on your September account.

Great September sale of furniture begins this morning.

Savings of 25% to 50% on an immense stock.

TODAY we inaugurate that great furniture sale that Chicago people have come to watch for every fall, as a time when the best furniture made can be bought at a remarkable saving. This year we are pleased to tell you that we have thousands of dollars' worth more to offer, that the values are greater, and the variety to select from the best that we have ever presented.

Three floors filled with fine furniture.

Carloads of fine furniture at from one-half to three-quarters the regular price. Think of it! Great sample lines of parlor and mission furniture, the whole surplus stock of one of America's greatest manufacturers of bedroom furniture, and an immense number of new pieces made to our special order—that's what we have to show you today.

We are able to offer this immense quantity of fine furniture for about half price, because we keep the best furniture makers in the country busy during their dull season. Skilled cabinet-makers are so much in demand that the furniture manufacturers are willing to sacrifice profits in order to have work enough on hand to keep their organization intact during naturally slack periods, and by placing orders for carloads to be made at this time we are able to offer furniture bargains that would be simply impossible in any other way.

Every piece of furniture in this year's sale is carefully constructed from thoroughly seasoned wood, and has our personal guarantee for reliability. We won't sell poorly constructed furniture at any price. Every piece, too, is new, made this year, and is artistic. Low price doesn't bar artistic effect.

If you see any piece or pieces of furniture that you want, but for some reason aren't ready to have it delivered now, we will store your purchase for you until you wish it.

Annual September sale of women's $1 & $2 kid gloves at 50c pair.

ALL who remember the corresponding sales of one and two years ago will be on the alert to purchase our gloves for fall wear. It's the great glove event of the autumn season—an unprecedented offering of the finest kid gloves at from one-third to one-half their actual value.

10,000 pairs of $1 and $2 kid gloves at 50 cents a pair.

"Why is the price so low?" you ask. Simply because this is a fixed glove event, for which we make extensive preparations every year, bringing all the price-lowering power of our vast business organization to bear.

About two-thirds of these gloves are a special purchase made from noted French manufacturers, who always turn to us as an outlet for their surplus stock—are willing to sell them for less than cost of making in order to close their books for the year. Then, there are thousands of pairs of "mended" gloves—gloves in which the inspector at the factory detected a missing stitch or a slight rip, and sent back to be repaired. These, while practically perfect and only to be told from "firsts" by an expert, are always sold at a loss to the maker.

Thirdly, there are a number of small lots and odd pairs of perfect $1 and $2 gloves from our regular lines, which we are willing to close out at 50 cents a pair in order to keep our own stock shipshape. Gloves for street and evening wear, while they last, 50c.

Annual August sale furs.

PRICES will positively be advanced tomorrow. Styles for the coming season are fully determined. Our stock of furs and skins is now at its best. Make your selection today and save 25%.

The variety of coats, scarfs and small furs we offer is without an equal, the styles are faultlessly correct, the furs themselves of the finest quality.

Fine quality seal coats, high collar, cuffs, plain brown or fancy linings, 24 inches long, all sizes. You ought to place your order today for one of these coats—prices will surely advance tomorrow, and, quality considered, these are the best genuine seal coats ever offered at the price—very special, $165.

Leipzig dyed Persian lamb coats, 22 inches long, high storm collar, plain black satin lining, all sizes, today only 42.50.

Best quality nearseal coats, with beaver collar, revers and cuffs, fancy lining, 24 inches long, special $50.

Persian lamb coats trimmed with mink collar, revers and cuffs, 22 inches long, plain brown satin lining, $65.

This is the last day of our 20% discount sale of fine shoes.

All our new fall lines are included.

A new runabout suit for $25.

ILLUSTRATION fails to show the details of style and workmanship that make the new long coat suit such a favorite among fashion's closest followers, yet from the accompanying illustration you can see that this is a suit of more than usual beauty and grace.

The distinctive feature of this runabout suit is the new military vest. This makes it an ideal suit for autumn wear, as the coat can be worn open. The suit is made of cheviot, trimmed with novelty braid; the jacket is satin lined, and has the new flare gore shape.

If you wish to secure one of the season's jauntiest novelties, something as smart as the dressiest tailor suits that will be produced this year at twice the price, this suit will certainly please you. It has all the exclusive elegance and style-beauty that critical purchasers have come to expect in a Mandel garment. Price (for suit like cut), $25.

$25 $25

New cheviot instep suit, long frock coat, handsomely stitched, taffeta lined, new flare skirt with stitched lap seams, $20.

New zibeline long skirt blouse suit, blouse and sleeves plaited, fancy revers trimmed with fancy silk braid, new shape skirt with triple foot plait flounce, lined with fancy silk drop skirt, all colors, $30.

Misses' and small ladies' new long coat suits, coat trimmed with wide stitched straps and leather belt, foot plait skirt with straps to match skirt. Come in blue and black cheviot and mixtures, 13.50.

New zibeline blouse suit for misses and small ladies, blouse trimmed with braid ornaments and shoulder cape, fancy sleeves, plaited skirt, mixed colors only, $25.

New rain coat of best cravenette, has twelve inch cape and three box plaits in back, pouch sleeves, a very stylish, well-made garment—price 17.50.

Black and blue cheviot, and mixed tweed walking skirts, $10.

New dress skirts of cheviot and broadcloth, unlined, gored, full flare bottom, special value at $10.

Basement: $10 walking skirts for $5—250 skirts made from fancy men's-wear mixtures, plain and pebble cheviots, Sicilians and meltons—newest modes in flounce, flare and kilt styles—at $5.

Sale of rich cut glass at half.

ONE of the leading glass cutters of America came to us last week with the proposition that we take a large order of his finest pieces at about half.

We investigated—found that the glass itself could scarcely be better—so we wired him to send on the goods.

In the lot are bowls of all sizes, vases, jugs, comports, nappies, celery holders, water bottles, ice-cream trays, cologne bottles, spoon trays, mayonnaise bowls and plates, etc.

Sterling silver mounted salt and pepper shakers—50c value—25c.

Individual sugar bowls without covers—$1 values, 75c.

$2 nappies, $1.

5.50 celery trays, 2.75.

16.50 orange bowls, 8.50 $10 pitchers, 4.95. 1.50 nappies, 75c.

6.50 vases, 3.95. 8.50 mayonnaise bowls, with plates, 3.95.

$5 salad or fruit bowls, 2.75. 7.50 sugar and cream sets, $5.

27 inch black Shanghai pongee, 35c.

IMPORTED to sell for 85 cents a yard, but the importer had a few hundred yards left after filling his orders, and offered it to our representative in New York last week at half what it cost.

This is a special purchase of full 27 inch heavy black Shanghai pongees, 85c quality—a limited quantity only for today at, per yard, 35c.

10,000 yards new fall fancy silks at less than cost—even and fancy checks, novelty hairline and snowflake effects—the new pointelle taffetas in latest fall shades, a wonderful range of styles and colors, your choice in three grand lots, at 68c, 58c and 50c.

Basement: All white and colored corded wash silks to close at 12½c.

Magnificent showing new autumn dress goods.

IMPORTED novelties of the finest sort are shown in our dress goods section today—the leading European and American manufacturers have sent their choicest products to make this opening display a signal success.

The new broadtail and Persian lamb zibelines that New York's smart set are fairly wild over are shown in a great variety of new Paris shades. We have all grades and colors, in weights varying from 12 to 20 ounces, at, yard, 2.50 to $5.

The new Scotch tweeds are here in abundance—those rich, dashing effects so distinctive of the English and Scotch looms—nothing more correct for a tailored suit or skirt. 50 pieces of the very latest design, all 54 inches wide, go on sale today at 1.50 per yard.

On the bargain square—remnants of 85c flannel waistings, 29c.

75c Extra special—30 pieces of French volle in all the latest autumn shades for street and evening dresses—sky, reseda, cadet, French gray, royal, navy, tan, brown, cream, castor, etc., all 44 inches wide, bargains of the most positive kind, at 75c yard. 75c

New English nun's veilings, 29c—The balance of that 1,000 piece purchase we told you about last week—plenty of all the staple and fancy shades for street and house dresses, waists, etc.

Note—That great sale of imported dress fabrics purchased from a Fifth Avenue importer at 25c on the dollar still continues. For a modish tailored suit ask to see these $2, $3 and $4 goods at 1.15.

New fall dress linings.

30c for "Spick Span" moire skirting, beautiful soft, silky finish, 50 different colors, including fast black.

10c for 15c percaline, in fast black and colors, 36 inches wide.

20c for genuine spun glass, name stamped on selvage of every yard, over 60 colors and fast black. Spun glass is the nearest approach to taffeta silk in any fancy fabric.

Economy basement: 5,000 yards mill ends best linings and drop skirtings, mercerized sateen, beetled percaline, mercerized Italian cloth, etc., values 12½c to 40c—all strictly new linings, lengths 1 to 7 yards, in three lots at 5c, 9c and 12½c.

5c 9c

New fall shirt waists, 1.25.

YOU'LL find them even more attractive than those for last year—the tailored effects are more pronounced, and there's a smart dash and newness to them that's strictly in keeping with the mannish long coat suit which they are to accompany.

They are washable, therefore neat and crisp, yet just as warm as the flannels which so long reigned supreme for cold weather wear.

The new fall waists, in all the new cotton materials, handsome novelty vestings in many exclusive designs, in white grounds with dainty figures, dots, etc., other beautiful new ideas in basket cloths, cheviots, mattings and heavy madras. These are the embodiment of extreme style—with novelty stocks and cuffs—graduated buttons, large and small plaits, dainty pipings, etc., splendid values—range of prices—1.25, 1.95, 2.50, 2.95, 3.50 to 7.50.

Silk waists—The silks are rich and soft—the colors are white, light blue, soft pink, tan, and black; the designs almost entirely exclusive—trimmed beautifully with hand-stitching, choice lace medallions in various designs, fancy tuckings and pipings. A perfect assortment at 4.50, $5, 7.50, 10.75 and up to $35.

$20 sheer white waists, special values to close, $10.

18.50 white silk and mousseline de soie waists, to close, 7.65.

Basement: Women's $2 white shirt waists at $1.

Sale of new fall trimmed hats at 3.50 and $5.

LOW enough price for a jaunty autumn hat, but we don't expect profit on the August output of our millinery workrooms, although they are new fall styles.

Many of these hats are copies of much higher priced creations, and have the typical note of the Parisian shops.

For the "between season" hat you need just at this juncture, you couldn't do better than select one of these at 3.50 or $5.

Annual sale of lace curtains.

WE welcome you today to our great annual September sale of lace and muslin curtains—an event upon preparations for which we have for months been concentrating our energies—an occasion when the finest grades of both European and American curtains are offered at the lowest prices ever quoted on equal qualities in Chicago.

Fine Cluny lace curtains are here in profusion. Real Renaissance curtains, superb Battenberg bed sets, elegant colored applique curtains, exquisite curtains in Irish point lace—almost every desirable style of curtain the markets of the world can afford, and September prices are the lowest of all the year.

90c pair for ruffled muslin curtains, with stripes and figures, 40 inches wide and 3 yards long, suitable for chamber windows.

4.50 per pair—colored applique curtains in red—full width and length. These curtains are our own importation and the colors are positively fast—suitable for dining room, hall and den windows.

7.50 per pair—real Renaissance hand made Arabian and Brussels curtains. You will be able to choose startling bargains from this wonderful lot of parlor curtains.

7.85 for real Battenberg bedspread and bolster cover for metal beds. They would be splendid values at double the price.

$5 for 7.50 real Irish point lace curtains. $5

5,000 pairs for the great annual event—the handsomest and richest effects ever brought to this country—a rare opportunity to secure fine parlor curtains—for these curtains are conceded to be the highest expression of the lace curtain maker's art.

1.75 for ruffled Saxony net curtains—a great lot, secured when the demand was not so brisk—dealers would be glad to pay 2.25 for every pair we own.

3.50 per pair—Cluny lace curtains, real linen lace edge and insertion, made with double hems, heavy French net foundation—charming curtains for parlor, dining room or chamber windows—come in Arabian color and white.

Basement: Ruffled muslin curtains, 49c pair. Basement: Ruffled net curtains, 1.59 pair.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

SPECIAL SALE OF SLIGHTLY USED PIANOS.

Opportunity to buy a Steinway, Knabe, or other well known pianos at very small cost.

EASY PAYMENTS.

Following our annual custom, we announce a special sale of slightly used pianos. Here and there in our stock are pianos that are not quite of the latest model, or have been slightly used, or have been taken in exchange. All these Steinways, Knabes, and other instruments have been placed one side and marked for immediate sale. We wish to avoid carrying even one of them over into next season's stock.

Piano seekers would do well to examine these pianos before purchasing an instrument at ordinary valuations. We enumerate a few only:

Steinway small upright, ebonized case, good as new. Steinway small upright, same as above, walnut case. Steinway medium size upright, mahogany case, rented short time. Steinway, same as above, in ebony case. Steinway cabinet grand upright, ebony case, in excellent condition. Steinway small upright, in good playing order. Knabe cabinet grand, mahogany case, used for concert purposes only. Knabe cabinet grand upright, very slightly shopworn. Knabe medium sized upright, mahogany case, rented but a short time, in every way good as new. Knabe cabinet grand, without case, in perfect condition, and many others.

Also closing out sale of our entire stock of Mason & Hamlin pianos, as we desire to discontinue the agency, owing to the assignment of the Mason & Hamlin Co. An opportunity to secure one of these magnificent highest grade instruments at a marked reduction.

We are also showing some attractive bargains in a carload of specimen uprights from good makers, bought up recently in New York by our eastern buyer. They are of intrinsically good musical value and will be closed out at prices between $185 and $235.

A special lot of new and attractive uprights, all woods, greatest value in Chicago, at $145.

Also a room full of new and slightly used uprights, your choice at $195, either cash or long time payments. Many of these pianos have been held at $300. Several leading makes are included.

A number of very fine pianos from a musical standpoint will be found in the collection. The extreme dullness of the summer makes it peremptory upon us to reduce this stock at once.

Visitors are always cordially welcome to our salesrooms. From 8 a. m. until 6 p. m. groups of piano customers will always be found upon our piano floors, but we have such ample facilities and such a large corps of salesmen that we can sell twenty different instruments simultaneously without the least delay.

EASY PAYMENTS—Pianos may be secured from us on very easy terms. No advance in price when paid for by installments. Pianos of all descriptions included in this offer.

Buyers at a distance should write for special bargain list and also our schedule of freight rates on pianos.

We ship pianos everywhere.

Inexpensive pianos bought from us may be exchanged later toward the purchase of a Steinway or Knabe.

A HANDSOME PIANO BOOK, ILLUSTRATED, FREE.

New pianos to rent, $3.50 per month.

LYON & HEALY, Wabash-av. and Adams-st. The business of Lyon & Healy largely exceeds in volume and value that of any other musical establishment in either Europe or America.

SEPTEMBER

PIANO SALE by the MANUFACTURERS.

KIMBALL WAREROOMS contain unusual display and offer special inducements for ONE MONTH ONLY.

Beginning MONDAY, AUG. 31, piano seekers of Chicago and vicinity will have a MONEY SAVING OPPORTUNITY.

The summer quiet in all branches of trade has become proverbial. It causes many instruments to accumulate from various sources, some having been rented for a short time by musicians.

All these show a most substantial MARKING DOWN in price and are exceptional bargains.

A good selection of eastern made pianos is also shown. These were purchased at practically LIQUIDATION PRICES and are offered as low as $120.

Many standard made pianos, such as "Hallet & Davis," "Weber," "Chickering," "Steinway," etc., taken in exchange for Kimballs, and showing little use, are also included.

Plain figures on each instrument offered in the Kimball warerooms are known to be conclusive as to price.

These figures show a reduction for this sale of a good many dollars on each instrument, and on some, slightly used, NEARLY ONE-HALF.

THE KIMBALL PIANO PLAYER.

Is an instrument which enables any one, without musical knowledge and with but a few moments' practice, to render either simple or elaborate compositions with the utmost precision and delicacy of expression.

MANUFACTURERS' PRICE includes with each player A FINE MUSICAL LIBRARY, giving the purchaser also library privileges not offered elsewhere.

A number of these players, not of latest design of case and a few used in concert work, show HEAVY REDUCTIONS IN PRICE for this sale.

EVERY ONE INVITED TO VISIT OUR WAREROOMS. DAILY CONCERTS.

CASH OR EASY PAYMENTS ON EACH SALE.

W. W. KIMBALL CO. [established 1857], S. w. cor. Jackson and Wabash.

BAUER PIANOS. BAUER PIANOS. In addition to a magnificent new stock of uprights and grands, we offer at present an unusual variety of second hand and slightly used pianos of our make. Excellent instruments—used for years, but thoroughly renovated at our factory, and now as good as ever—as low as $200. More modern ones, some in walnut, mahogany, oak, etc., at $225, $250, and up. Some of our latest designs, used but a short time, at $300 to $350.

We also offer real bargains in the following makes: Decker Bros., Adam Schaaf, Kimball, Story & Clark, Schiller, Gibson, Peck & Son, Bradford, etc.

PIANOS TO RENT—We make a specialty of renting high grade pianos and offer good BAUER UPRIGHTS in great variety at from $3.50 per month and up.

The "CHASE & BAKER" continues to delight numerous purchasers and music lovers. It is rapidly becoming known as THE piano player.

Daily demonstrations. Visitors always welcome. JULIUS BAUER & CO. Established 1857. 250-252 Wabash-av.

MANUFACTURER OF PIANOFORTES.

THE STANDARD OF THE WORLD.

DON'T IMAGINE THAT PIANOS ARE ALL ALIKE. Quite the contrary. Some have a good tone and look well at first, but soon give out, because not honestly made. The ADAM SCHAAF pianos sound and look well at first and continue to sound and look well, because they are honestly made. We guarantee our pianos against all defects that may arise from faulty material or workmanship, and our guarantee is good. We have always met the people's wishes as to price, terms, designs, etc., thereby gaining their confidence and a good reputation. We are satisfied after 30 years' experience that we can build the best piano in the world.

In order to make room for our new fall stock we offer for sale 200 upright pianos, late designs, in all kinds of natural, fancy figured, light wood cases—odd styles dropped from our catalogue, returned from rental, concerts, etc., which must be closed out at once.

AT THE VOSE STORE

Quality reigns supreme.

YOU DO NOT BUY A PIANO EVERY DAY—When you do, look first at the quality—the tone. You will find the acme of tone quality in Vose Pianos.

TONE IS THE MEASURE OF WORTH IN A musical instrument. You cannot get tone without having quality. You can buy appearances without getting either tone or quality—but not at the Vose Store.

VOSE PIANOS ARE THE RESULT OF OVER fifty years of study and achievement. The name Vose is a guarantee of excellence—but you pay nothing for the name—you pay only for the quality in Vose Pianos.

PUT A VOSE PIANO BY THE SIDE OF ANY other make, and the superiority of the Vose tone is at once apparent. And Vose Pianos retain the exquisite charm of the original Vose tone as long as the piano lasts—fifty years is not the limit of usefulness for a Vose Piano.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO INSPECT our New Fall Stock, including the latest designs in Colonial, Empire, and Renaissance patterns in the celebrated Vose Pianos.

ALSO MANY SPLENDID BARGAINS IN SECond hand pianos of standard makes. One Steinway Square, $40.00. Several fine upright pianos at $75.00 upwards.

SELEE'S MEN TRIM CINCINNATI TEAM.

Colts Beat Reds in First Game, 3 to 2—Rain Stops Second in Third Inning.

EXTRA ROUND NECESSARY

Locals Outbat Visitors, but Have Hard Time Winning Because of Poor Baserunning.

The Colts took a fall out of Cincinnati yesterday in spite of the weatherman. It required ten innings for them to beat the Ohioans, 3 to 2, because of a lot of bad base running by themselves and a moment of ballooning by Taylor in the middle of the contest. The second game went only two and a half innings, when a driving mist stopped the play and it was called off by Umpire Johnstone on account of darkness. The score at the time stood 3 to 2, in Cincinnati's favor, with one out in Chicago's half of the third.

The first game was remarkable for the difficulty which Chicago had in winning it, although the Colts outbatted the reds nearly three to one. All Selee's men could get with eleven hits up to the tenth inning was two runs, and the visitors had made the same number on five hits. It required three hits and an error to finally make the winning run in the tenth, but the margin of victory would have been a lot bigger if necessary. Chance's hit, which ended the game victoriously, was good for at least two bases and would have scored three runs easily, as the bases were full with none out when he made it.

Poor Work on the Bases.

Ewing came near pulling off a victory in spite of the freedom with which he allowed base hits, for he was tighter than a diver's suit when men were waiting to score, as a rule, and several times the Colts helped him out of holes by poor work on bases. Tinker and Williams being the most glaring offenders. In the fourth Tinker allowed himself to be caught by the motheaten bluff throw to second when Kling went down from first. And in the fifth Williams overran third so far on Chance's hit over second that Tom Daly, who had made a great stop of the hit, too late to get the batter, had an easy chance to retire Williams and accepted it.

The Colts landed in the lead in the second inning, when Jones scratched a single, which Ewing partly blocked. Tinker sacrificed him to second and Kling let him jog home on a double over Seymour's head, the next two batters going out. In the fifth, with two gone, Slagle hit a liner, which Beckley stuck his hands against, but the ball declined to stick and Jake's intended robbery was foiled. Jimmy sneaked down to second on a short passed b[all] and scored when Williams "Texas leaguered" in short right, Otto going down to second on the throw home. Then it was that Chance trundled a fast one over second and Daly made a great stop, but too late to get his man. Seeing Williams overrunning third, however, Tom shot the ball to Steinfeldt and the inning was over.

Reds Tie the Score.

The reds could get only two hits in five innings, then Taylor became possessed of a generous spirit or something worse and passed both Kelley and Seymour at the beginning of the sixth. These two are a good pair to have on bases with nobody out and batters like Dolan, Beckley, and Steinfeldt following them, as the ex-brakeman found out, for a single by Dolan and a long fly by Beckley tied the game up in a minute and Taylor had to work overtime to undo his own tangle.

He pitched baseball from then on, but it was not until the tenth that the Colts could break the tie. Taylor opened that round with a single. Slagle hit to Corcoran, who snapped the ball to second ahead of Taylor, but Tom dropped the ball. Williams bunted and Ewing fell down as he grasped the ball, filling the corners, with nobody out. Chance was next, and after a few fouls the captain stung one for fair, landing it close to the bleachers in deep right center, scoring the winning run and several more.

The second game promised to be more prolific in tallies, as both Wicker and Poole were getting their bumps and were unsteady into the bargain. The Colts scored one in the first inning on a pass and a single with a bunt in between. With two out in the first half of the second Wicker went to the bad and filled up the bases with passes. Seymour scored two men with a drive to right, but was out himself trying to steal second.

Umpire Stops the Game.

The Colts tied this up in their half with another pass, a wild pitch, and a single, but the reds scored one more run in the third, and Williams opened Chicago's half by fanning out in the semi-darkness. Just then the rain came and Johnstone, knowing it would be too dark to finish, even if the rain let up within the prescribed thirty minutes, called it all off. Scores:

Notes of the Colts' Game.

Cincinnati again today and tomorrow.

Casey was in uniform, limping around the coaching lines. He hopes to get into the game this week. Harley has lumbago.

Kelley thought he could steal third on Kling in the first inning, but John relieved the red leader's mind of the false impression by beating him several yards.

That was a Pfeffer-Burns play Tom Daly sprung on Williams in the fifth inning, but Otto probably had never heard of the two old Chicago stars when he broke into the game.

A foul from Tinker's bat burst the umpire's protector in the sixth inning, and after trying to substitute Kling's breast pad Johnstone gave it up and went behind the pitcher.

The crowd was a monster, considering the weather, which not only threatened at any minute, but was cold enough to keep many at home. It was a big tribute to the popularity of Selee's team.

Yesterday's second game will be played off on Tuesday, which is an open date in the schedule for both clubs. The reds had other arrangements, but consented to cancel them rather than play a double header today.

Tinker saved the first game by a sensational stab and catch of Beckley's high liner in the ninth inning. He jumped and nailed the ball with his mitt. If that had gone safe it would have been a sure double, and Daly's hit would have scored the run which would have won.

The reds made an unusual double play in the first inning of the uncompleted game. Chance was at third and Jones at first with one out. Tinker hit to Steinfeldt and Chance tried to score on it. He was caught in a block, but turned back as if to give Jones a chance to get around to third. He changed his mind, and butted into the ball at the plate in time to allow Peitz to throw to third ahead of Jones. Davy turned back, but found the ball awaiting him in Daly's hands.

LEADERS SHUT OUT ST. LOUIS.

Pittsburg Wins Through the Good Pitching of Doheny—Ritchey Makes a Star Play.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 30.—Pittsburg defeated St. Louis in a snappy game by a score of 3 to 0. Pitcher Eddie Doheny of the Pittsburg team was in rare form and let the locals down with six hits. A pretty running stop by Ritchey was the feature. Attendance, 5,800. Score:

Pittsburg Releases Falkenberg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Fred Falkenberg, the long pitcher of the Pittsburg baseball team, was last night given his ten days' notice of release. Falkenberg has failed to make good this year, and, according to his employers, did not give promise of being what they had hoped. The ambition of Falkenberg tended toward a college professorship rather than to excellency in baseball pitching. It is said Falkenberg will become a professor in a western college next fall. He will return to his home in Chicago at once.

Milwaukee Loses One Game at Louisville and Forfeits Another—Columbus Wins.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 30.—After playing one game and losing Manager Cantillon of the Milwaukee team refused to play the second game and left the grounds. Umpire Foreman gave the game to Louisville, 9 to 0. In the first game Egan and Elliott engaged in a pitchers' battle, in which the local twirler had a shade the better of it. Both teams fielded brilliantly. Attendance, 9,000. Score:

WHITE SOX EVEN ON DAY'S WORK.

Chicago Loses the First Game to Detroit, but Wins the Second.

RAIN TERMINATES PLAY.

Flaherty Is Beaten 3 to 2, but White Conquers 6 to 2 in Seven Innings.

Chicago White Stockings managed to break even with Detroit at the south side grounds yesterday, losing the first game of the double header in a close contest by a count of 3 to 2 and winning the second, which a drizzling rain finally brought to a close after seven innings, the score being 6 to 2.

It was hard luck Comiskey's men did not capture both contests. The White Stockings had the opening game well in hand up to the seventh, when the Tigers fell on Mr. Flaherty and bumped out a quartet of singles which turned the tide in their favor and gave them enough runs to win. Flaherty pitched an excellent game up to this time, holding the visitors to two stingy little singles, which did not even serve to give the Tigers any encouragement.

Opposed to Flaherty was Mullen, and it was a pretty even battle between the two up to the seventh, although the man from Michigan had a little the better of the argument as far as real pitching goes. He put the ball over the plate with clocklike precision and the efforts of the Sox to connect with his benders were amusing. One bingle in the first four innings, which, however, netted one run, and three more in the fifth, which added one more, was the limit of the exertions of Callahan's men. That kind of hitting will not win many games.

First Run by Holmes.

In the first inning Holmes walked, was sacrificed to second, and completed the circuit when Jones cracked out a single. Magoon opened the fifth with a single, was sacrificed to second by Tannehill, scoring on Slattery's single to right. Flaherty also bumped the sphere into safe territory, but after Slattery had stolen third Holmes and Isbell could not aid a good cause.

There was nothing doing after this until the seventh, when the Tigers began to straighten out Flaherty's benders. After Crawford had struck out Carr, McAllister, Yeager, and Long all in a row, he poked the ball into unoccupied ground, and because Green let Yeager's get through him, three runs registered. That put the visitors one to the good, and the White Sox had no chance to do anything more in the way of run getting, so well did Mullen pitch to the end.

Second Game Much Different.

Although the second game lasted only seven innings, Comiskey's men did enough batting in that time to have almost won both games. They started in looking for revenge. Kitson happened to be the chosen object, and before Umpire Sheridan had deigned to call them off the Sox had bumped out an unlucky thirteen hits, two of which were good for two bases.

While all this was happening Dr. White was not escaping unscathed. He was bumped dangerously hard in two different innings, in one of which Detroit made the two runs which prevented a shutout, and again in the seventh, when the Sox held a fair lead, they got after him again, getting two men on bases with only one down. But White settled in nice shape and the Tigers were unable to register.

The White Stocking started the run getting in the first inning. After Holmes was dead, Isbell singled. Jones struck out, and when Green planked a pretty double out to the fence in right field "Issy" came home. One more scored in the third, when, after Holmes was out, Isbell cracked out a two baser. Jones repeated his strike out performance, and Danny Green again came to the rescue with a single, on which Isbell rode to the plate.

White Sox Resume Operations.

The usual intermission came in the fourth and in the next round Callahan's men continued operations. Isbell again started it, this time with a single and he sailed to third on Jones' perfect bunt, because no one covered third base. Green's single again came in handy and Isbell scored, for the third time. Callahan fanned and Magoon fouled out, but Tannehill dropped a single into right, and Jones counted.

Detroit got its two runs in the sixth, as the result of a single by Barrett, and doubles in succession by Lush and Crawford, on which Barrett and Lush scored.

At this juncture a drizzling rain began to fall, but to cinch matters the White Stockings pounded out two more runs in the sixth. Neither side had a chance in the seventh and Sheridan called it off for the day. Scores:

Notes of the White Sox Games.

The White Sox will play their next game here with St. Louis on Wednesday.

Jones struck out once in the first game and twice in the second, but made two hits.

Flaherty pitched a good game, but when they started pounding him the jig was up. White showed better work in the pinches.

The White Stockings will go to Clinton, Ia., today, where exhibition games will be played today and tomorrow with the Clinton team.

Two double plays came up in the first game. Isbell executed the first one, while Tannehill, after making a good stop, performed the second. He was also in the one in the second contest.

A spectator forced his way through the wire gate on to the grounds near the players' bench and instructed the players to stop playing because it was raining. Sheridan squelched him quickly.

Green was easy for Mullen. Four times he faced the Detroit twirler, and he struck out three times and walked once. He more than evened up for it in the second game, however, by getting three hits, one of them a double, in four times up, and just when they were needed.

Slattery presented Barrett with a hit in the sixth inning of the second game. Barrett dropped the ball down in front of the plate, but Slattery did not seem to think he could get it, and let Callahan try for it. Barrett was across the bag before "Cal" could even get to the ball.

BIG HANDICAP OF NEXT WEEK.

Many Horses Training for the Harlem Twentieth Century Handicap.

CLAUDE TO BE A STARTER

Other Horses May Come from the East for the Race—Stake Event Today.

Harlem park's big summer race, the $8,000 Twentieth Century handicap, is now attracting attention among owners and trainers, and there are indications this year's race will be a greater contest than in previous years, which is saying a good deal when the quality of the field that finished behind Scintillant last year is recalled.

Of the 132 entries only one out of every six can be regarded as a probable starter, but that forecasts a large number of prospective candidates—nearly a score. It is not to be expected twenty horses will run in the race, though Secretary Nathanson had nineteen starters for the Harlem National handicap last spring. It is said there are over twenty horses being pointed for the $8,000 event, now close at hand, and a good many of them may be counted on to go to the post.

It has been intimated to the Harlem park secretary that some crack horses are to come here from the east for the big race that is to be run next Monday.

McChesney is entered, and may possibly come back to Chicago to run in the big race next Monday.

M. J. Daly's Claude, winner of four Derbys and second in the American Derby to The Picket, to which he was giving twelve pounds, is another famous horse getting ready for the Twentieth Century. He takes little getting ready, as he has been campaigning steadily since the beginning of the year.

Corrigan, Burns & Waterhouse's popular stake winner, also is to be sent here for Chicago's next big race. He has been getting his "prep" at Saratoga, where he started last week for the first time since he ended his highly successful campaign in San Francisco last winter.

Claude at present is at Buffalo, and another Twentieth Century candidate likely to be shipped from there with him is Harding, owned by F. Bruhns & Co.

There are other horses in the east eligible for next Monday's rich stake, but the above four are the most likely to come here for the race. Their presence will add materially to the interest in it, and they will be pitted against the best handicap horses now on edge in the west.

Gregor K. to Run Today.

For winning Saturday's two mile race Charlie Ellison's good colt Judge Himes, which now is coming into his own after being off color ever since his grueling race in the Hawthorne handicap at the end of May, will have to carry 125 pounds in the Oak Park handicap at Harlem park this afternoon if he starts, and his people say he surely will. Gregor K. also will be a starter in the event, so Walter Hedges informed Secretary Nathanson at the track yesterday afternoon. The gelding's weight is 106 pounds.

Harlem's meeting is scheduled to run thirteen days. This is a day longer than most people supposed, but the dates allotted by the Western Jockey club early in the year for this meeting are from Aug. 21 to Sept. 14, inclusive.

The meeting will open on a Monday and close on a Monday, two weeks hence. This will shorten the fall meeting at Hawthorne by one day.

A change is made in the time for beginning the afternoon's sport, the first race being set for 2:15 p. m. Corresponding changes have been made in the times of all special trains.

Stagg Calls Out His Men.

Preliminary football practice at the University of Chicago will commence tomorrow. Coach Stagg has issued a call to the old men now at the university and to the candidates from local high schools to report at Marshall field in the afternoon. He expects to have ten or a dozen men out during the first few days. The practice will be light to get the stiffness out of the men and to harden their muscles for more strenuous effort later on. Study of the new rules and the new styles of play they require will be an important part of the curriculum.

MINORS REJECT COMPACT.

SMALL LEAGUES WILL NOT ACCEPT BUFFALO AGREEMENT.

After a Session at New York Attended by a Large Number of Officials from Organizations in Many Parts of the Country It Is Voted to Present an Amended Paper for Consideration of the Major Baseball Rulers—Pulliam Is Not Surprised.

New York, Aug. 30.—A meeting of the National Association of Baseball Clubs was held in this city today.

Among those present were: T. J. Hickey of the American association; M. H. Sexton of the Western league; W. M. Kavanaugh of the Southern league; P. T. Powers of the Eastern league; E. C. Packard of the Western league; James J. O'Rourke, Thomas L. Riley, and C. J. Danaher of the Connecticut State league; T. H. Murnane of the New England league; W. H. Reck of the "Three Eye" league; W. W. Pierce and T. J. O'Brien of the Buffalo club; Edward Hanlon of the Baltimore club; A. H. Howe Jr. of the former Worcester club; P. H. Hurley and J. T. Nevins of the Jersey City club; M. B. Puder and W. W. Burnham of the Newark, N. J., club; Joseph Applegate of the Toronto club; George M. Kunzech of the Syracuse club; and J. H. Farrell of Auburn, the secretary of the association.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss an answer to the big leagues concerning the position the small leagues will take regarding the national agreement. The bone of contention is a membership on the national board.

Claims of the Minors.

The minor leagues claim they are the bone and sinew of baseball, have a larger following all over the country than the two major leagues, and therefore should be represented on the national board. The other articles of agreement that do not suit the minor leagues are the drafting law and the method of paying for players drafted.

Under the new agreement the major leagues have from Aug. 15 until Oct. 15 to select their players. Under the old agreement they had but one month. Under the new agreement the players are to be paid for in three equal installments, while under the old agreement the full purchase price was paid down.

After the meeting Secretary Farrell gave out the following statement:

The meeting unanimously decided that it could not subscribe to the agreement presented at Buffalo, and the national association committee was authorized to present the Buffalo agreement in amended form to the Buffalo commission.

A resolution was adopted that it was the sense of the members of the national association present that we adhere to the terms of the Lucas resolution unanimously adopted at the annual meeting of the association held last October.

Want Equal Power.

The Lucas agreement provided that in the event of a joint invitation being extended to the national association to confer with the board of directors of the National and the American leagues in the interest of a tripartite agreement, the national board of the national association should preserve to the national association its present form of government, and its individual organization supreme and intact, and it was also resolved that the instructions were mandatory and compulsory.

What the amended form of agreement the national association would present to the Buffalo commission will be Mr. Farrell refused to say. It is not thought Ban Johnson, president of the American league, will hear of any other form of agreement than that formulated at the Buffalo meeting.

President Pulliam of the National league, when Secretary Farrell's announcement was shown him, said:

"I have not heard of the matter officially and therefore can say nothing on the subject."

The fact that the minor leagues had rejected the agreement did not surprise him, however.

AFTERMATH OF THE FUTURITY.

John E. Madden Says the Best Entry Won the Big Race of Saturday.

DISAPPOINTED IN ADBELL

Plaudit Colt Fails to Run Up to Expectations—Eastern Gossip.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The result of the Futurity was the chief topic discussed by turfmen today, and among them was general regret that the big race could not have been run over a dry track in bright weather. From Hamburg Belle's performance it must not be inferred that the mud was especially an advantage for her over the colts and fillies she defeated, for she has been a phenomenal sprinter on a dry track and has always showed a preference for that kind of going. With this fact in mind, therefore, it should be remembered that if the Futurity had been run over a dry track Hamburg Belle would probably have run much faster and with perhaps more gameness than otherwise. It is true that she did not like the whip and swerved under punishment, but she was full of pluck, inasmuch as she was kicked at the post and received a slight cut on the near hind leg.

Madden Praises the Winner.

John E. Madden, in speaking today of the race, said: "It is my firm belief that Hamburg Belle was the best horse at the weights. She is a grand filly, and one of the gamest I ever saw. The way she went to the front after a slow beginning and then stood a drive from the last quarter pole stamps her as a high class racehorse and one of the best 2 year olds of the year."

There is no doubt Madden was keenly disappointed over the failure of Adbell to run up to expectations. Since the sudden death of the young sire Mirthful, Madden has been expressing the belief that his stallion Plaudit would make even a better record in the stud. Adbell, in Madden's estimation, is one of the best colts that have sprung from Plaudit's loins, and his crushing defeat yesterday was a hard blow. It was mud that caused Adbell's downfall, so the railbirds believe, and the colt will be looked for the next time he goes on a dry track.

Breeding of Hamburg Belle.

Much interest was manifested today in the story of the breeding of Hamburg Belle. The filly's dam was Isiac, a royally bred English mare by Rosebery—Isiac, by Ben d'Or. She was barren for four years and was finally broken to wagon prior to producing Hamburg Belle. Isiac dropped Ishtar and Iskander, by San Lucas and Imp. Inverness, respectively.

Hamburg Belle is the third filly to win the Futurity, the others being L'Alouette and Butterflies.

The announced retirement of Julius Fleischmann from the turf is the cause of regret. Fleishmann's horses always have run without scandal attached to them and have enjoyed the supreme confidence of the public. Mayor Fleischmann spent a great deal of his time on the eastern tracks this year, where his horses have been only fairly successful. It was said some time ago that he intended to sell out, but those who heard the rumor placed no credence in it. Tom Welch, trainer of the Fleischhmann stable, will probably sign with another racing stable as soon as he relinquishes the present engagement. Jockey Jack Martin will be in demand also.

The stake attractions at Sheepshead bay this week are numerous and with pleasant weather there probably will be some big crowds.

Today's Sheepshead Bay Entries.

First race, 6 furlongs, on main track—Gay Boy, Cassville, 123 pounds; King Pepper, 122; Runnels, Olympian, Slidell, 120; Worry, 117; Lenora Loring, Wealth, Irene Lindsey, 115; Sir Voorhies, Canajoharie, 111; Ocean Tide, 102; San Remo, 85.

CALUMET WINS PEWAUKEE RACE

Defeats a Fleet of Six Yachts in Contest for the Waukesha Beach Cup.

Pewaukee, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The twelfth regatta for the Waukesha Beach cup was won by Calumet today after a spirited contest with Mercury, the latter losing by but sixteen seconds. The wind was brisk from the north.

The start at 3 o'clock was made in a heavy rain, seven boats going over the line in close order, with Dora, Calumet, and Mercury in the lead. The first leg was a close reach, and Calumet showed superiority. At the west buoy Calumet led with Mercury thirty seconds behind. Aspirante was third, followed by Dora, Allimac, Argo, and Elkburning in the order named.

On the second leg, which was another reach, Calumet held its lead and beat Mercury around the mark thirty-six seconds. Argo overtook and passed Allimac, and rounded fifth. The last leg was a free run, and spinnakers and balloon jibs were used to advantage. Mercury proved to be a better drifter than Calumet and cut down the lead twenty seconds. Summaries:

Calumet, J. W. Scheets	3:34:09	100
Mercury, A. W. Pawling	3:34:25	85 5-7
Aspirante, Louis Wollaeger	3:35:24	71 3-7
Dora, W. H. Meyer	3:35:44	57 1-7
Argo, R. Giljoann	3:36:35	42 6-7
Allimac, Kopmeyer Bros	3:36:45	28 4-7
Elk, F. Luenzmann	3:38:27	14 2-7

The officials were F. Luenzmann, A. Nelson, and E. E. White.

VANENNA-VENCEDOR MATCH.

Yachtsmen Are Much Interested in the Outcome of the Approaching Yacht Race.

The interest of local yachtsmen is centered on the approaching contest between the big cutters Vanenna and Vencedor, owned respectively by W. F. Cameron and F. A. Price. Towards the close of last season these fast racers fought it out, and the result was a victory for Vanenna.

The yachts have met only twice this summer, and honors are easy. On the fourth of July the Vencedor during the race was crippled by carrying away its throat halliard block and Vanenna captured the Pabst cup. Later, on July 25, they came together again, and after a most exciting struggle Vencedor won by the narrow margin of fifteen seconds. The Cameron boat was, however, not a little handicapped on this occasion by damage to its bowsprit, which prevented excessive wind pressure on the head sails.

The big event, which will come off about the middle of September, is to decide the championship of the lake for the fifty-two foot cutter class. The races—best two out of three—will be under the management of the Chicago Yacht club, which has donated a fine cup for the occasion. The dates, course, and other detail will be settled soon.

Legals, 10; Rosehill Stars, 5.

The Legals defeated the Rosehill Stars by a score of 10 to 5.

THE TRIBUNE TRULY REPRESENTATIVE.

[From the Mail Order Journal.]

THE TRIBUNE is the truly representative morning and Sunday newspaper of Chicago. It wields as great a prestige and influence today as it has at any time in its successful history. The large dry goods houses and the big retail emporiums use more space in it than in any other morning paper, and did it accept all the medical and get-rich-quick advertising copy it would have to add, on Sundays especially, another big supplement.

A DESTRUCTIVE AGE.

The White Star liner Britannic, which thirty years ago was considered a wonder for size and speed, is sailing its last voyage. When it reaches its destination it will be broken up. This is an illustration of what the men of an earlier generation would have called wanton waste. That generation had no "scrap heap." It threw out no machinery which could be persuaded to run. It broke up no ship which would float, and tore down no building which was habitable. It was most reluctant to make improvements which involved throwing anything away.

The progressive men of this day have got bravely rid of the false economic ideas of their fathers and make money by practices which would have horrified the latter. Year after year Chicagoans see the tearing down of buildings which are comparatively new and in fair condition, and which were considered when erected good for half a century at least. So they would have been had they been put up in a city which is not growing so rapidly in almost every way as Chicago is. That growth makes land in the business district so valuable that in order to utilize it to the best advantage a large building must be pulled down to make room for a larger one.

Manufacturers buy costly machinery one year and get rid of it in a twelvemonth, though it is about as good as it ever was, merely because something better has been devised which will enable them to save an infinitesimal fraction of a cent on the cost of production of each unit of output. Railroads put on one side rolling stock which is still serviceable but which is not up to the times. The old wooden line of battleship "braved the battle and the breeze" for more than half a century. The far more costly ironclad becomes obsolete or unfit for repairs at the end of twenty years. It is not to be wondered at that the ocean flyer of 1874 should be broken up. At the time when it was built, however, no vessel in such good condition as it is would have been dealt with in that fashion.

This is an age in which buildings, ships, and machinery cannot look for a long tenure of life. The age is a destructive one, but it destroys intelligently and makes money by it.

BOYS AND STREET LIFE.

No practical, prosperous business man will allow his 10 year old son to peddle papers in the downtown district. He knows what boys learn in that district.

Nevertheless he can sit in his office and look out of his window and see other men's sons peddling papers and say to the "pestilent reformer": "O, this street life is good for a boy. It brings him up against the world. It sharpens his wits. It makes a man of him. He learns how to do things. He becomes capable and effective."

But what did Ernest Poole and Helen Marot find when they made their study of newsboy life in New York? What did the Liverpool authorities find when they made their inquiries into "street trading" in Liverpool? What did the London school board find when it investigated the street boys of London? What did the parliamentary committee find when it got its material for its 500 page blue book on the juvenile street traders of all England?

This: The newsboy, the average newsboy (geniuses don't count), learns nothing definitely; he is erratic and undisciplined; his mind is jerky and discontinuous; he loses his power of concentration; he becomes dissipated; he eats and sleeps at irregular hours; he uses cigarets, coffee, whisky, and cocaine; he lies, swears, and cheats; he is exposed at the age of 10 to vices which usually just fail to wreck the ordinary youth who is exposed to them at the age of 20; he sees, and hears, and learns all the wickedness of a downtown district at a period of his life when he has neither the physical nor the moral development for resistance; in short, he is a forced product, with all that charm of precocity and all that prospect of collapse which forced products always have.

Let New York be congratulated, therefore, that it now has a newsboy law. The terms of this law are not so rigid as those of the Liverpool law, but they are rigid enough to do much good. They are mainly these:

No boys under 10 shall sell papers under any circumstances. No boys under 14 shall sell papers after 10 o'clock at night. Every boy between 10 and 14 who sells papers shall have a license and a badge from the board of education.

This means that in future all New York newsboys, because of their licenses and badges, will be under strict supervision and control. To New York add Boston. Boston has had a license and badge law for more than ten years. At least two American cities have outgrown the superstition that street life develops the moral and intellectual faculties of young children.

"HIGH POLITICS."

The Macedonian situation is a labyrinth reeking with blood. There may be a clew which, if carefully followed, will show the way out. But the clew has not yet been found. The Turk remains in Europe by reason of a political equilibrium due to the pressure of equal and rival forces. He stands in the middle, beset on every side by hostile pressure. But the pressure from one side is nullified by that from an opposing side. The fact that the Turk has so many enemies is his greatest safeguard. If he had fewer enemies, but the few opposed him from one direction, his downfall would be speedy. The Turk cleverly stands in the exact middle of the balance of power, and whenever he sees the scales tilting too far in one direction he throws his own by no means inconsiderable weight the other way. Thus the great powers that would like to drive the Turk out of Europe because they are European, civilized, and Christian, while he is Asiatic, uncivilized, and Mohammedan, constantly checkmate each other.

Alternative solutions to the absorption of what is left of European Turkey by the great powers present themselves: Macedonia might become an independent state. But there is no Macedonian people. The inhabitants of Macedonia are Albanians, Serbs, Greeks, Bulgarians, Roumanians, Jews, and Turks, who hate each other far worse than they hate the Turks. They would soon perpetrate a history compared to which the history of Central American republics would be an Arcadian idyl of peace.

To forbid the great powers to absorb Macedonia and to turn it over to the little Balkan states instead would be absurd, for in that contingency not only would the new strip be put under an alien rule without its consent but it would not receive in return therefor the compensatory advantages of peace and security. Furthermore, the same jealousies which have vetoed a peaceable apportionment of the region among the great powers forbid it among the puny ones. In the words of an English writer: "A greater Bulgaria or a greater Greece is ruled out of court by the character of little Bulgaria and the esurient Greeklings, while Servian aspirations were adjourned sine die last June."

There remains the status quo. And the status quo seems apt to remain for some time. The sultan has promised Russia and Austria to institute reforms. He is being allowed to suppress the revolt in his dominions in his own way if he can. After the suppression he will give the world another proof, if that be needed, that he cannot govern well if he would and would not if he could.

The preservation of the status quo means slaughter, rapine, and burnings for both the Mussulman and Christian inhabitants of European Turkey. Any alternative to the status quo has apparently insurmountable diplomatic objections. But merely from the standpoint of humanity, leaving aside high politics, almost any alternative would be preferable to the status quo.

MURDERED IN COLD BLOOD.

The ordinary robber does not wish to stain his hands with blood and commit two crimes. He gives his victim a chance for his life if he will only throw up his hands and let himself be plundered. The men who murdered the employés of the City railway company early Sunday morning shot first, without notice, to protect themselves against any possibility of resistance. The crime was a deliberate, atrocious one. It is the impression of the police that the men who committed it are Pontiac graduates. That is not unlikely. Young criminals are fully as savage and bloodthirsty as older ones, and often more so, and, having less experience, are more reckless. The older criminal does not hesitate to kill when he thinks he will be caught if he does not. The younger one often is ready to kill at any time and under almost any circumstances.

The police may have little to work on as yet. They may have to begin by resorting to dragnet methods, arresting all the suspicious characters they know of and questioning them as to their whereabouts early yesterday morning. If the police have no definite information now they will have soon. Before long they will get hints which will put them on the track of the murderers. Some lesser criminal will suspect them and inform on them.

The perpetrators of Sunday's crime got about $3,000. That seems a large sum to young criminals. It will set many to searching for opportunities to enrich themselves by murder and robbery. There should be more precautions against reckless offenders. The City railway company did not take enough. It put its employés in a wire cage which protected neither them nor the company's money. They should have been put where it was impossible for criminals to get at them with ease and shoot them down. Money and the men who handle it cannot be too safely guarded in a city where there are so many desperate criminals who are ready to kill in order to get a few dollars.

"PROHIBITED AREAS."

If the report of the British alien immigration commission is followed there will be a department of immigration. This department will supervise immigration and will attempt to exclude the bad alien and the pauper alien. In this it will be proceeding along the lines of action which have for many years been advocated in the United States. No country wants bad aliens or pauper aliens. Their exclusion is a reasonable national policy. It will be interesting to notice which country, England or the United States, meets with greater success in applying a policy which both countries are trying to put into practical form.

In one respect the English policy will diverge from ours. It will include a system of "prohibited areas." At any rate this is what the report of the parliamentary commission suggests.

Alien immigration into England has reached such proportions that its greatest danger is now seen to lie in "urban overcrowding." The east end of London is popular with immigrants. They have succeeded in some parts of the east end in displacing the English. They are able to do this because they are willing to live under crowded conditions which even the east enders cannot tolerate. It is the old story of the survival of the worst. The alien lowers the standard of comfort to a point where the native cannot follow him. He is then left master of the field. The employer praises him for his industry and his thrift. The native hates him wildly and promiscuously for his nasty ways. And the community is debased.

The parliamentary commission proposes to change all this by forbidding aliens to enter certain "prohibited areas." Whatever overcrowding there is will then be natural English overcrowding. The English will have no one to blame for overcrowding except themselves.

Interesting as this idea is, it could not be imported into the United States. Our congress has no power to delimit "prohibited areas" in the sovereign states of which our union is composed, and as for the state legislatures, their action would be impeded by almost insuperable social, political, and legal obstacles.

ASSESS THE WATERED STOCK.

A Philadelphian, who is interested in the Union Traction company, is quoted by the Wall Street Journal as saying that it will take nearer $20,000,000 than $12,000,000 to put the system in condition to give first-class service. Evidently he knows something about the situation, for he says: "In the last few years the property has been allowed to go down hill fast, physically, and some of the equipment might well decorate the scrap heap."

The Philadelphian says there are two ways of raising the money—one is to sell bonds and the other to assess the stock. Common stock to the amount of $20,000,000 was given as a bonus to the subscribers to the preferred stock. The company did not receive one cent on account of it. It is alleged that the $12,000,000 of preferred stock was paid for "in cash at par." Perhaps it was, but the general impression is that only about $7,000,000 in cash was actually paid in.

The sensible suggestion is made by the man quoted by the Wall Street Journal that the common stock be assessed to raise the money needed to reconstruct the road. If this were done it would be a new and gratifying departure. The holders of the common stock could then say with truth that it was not all water and had some value. If any owners of stock now quoted at 5 cents on the dollar did not wish to pay a substantial assessment their stock could be canceled and the total volume of common reduced. If the assessment of common stock did not bring in enough money the holders of the preferred should be called on. To raise money by the sale of bonds which probably could not be floated at par would be to add to the already too large fixed charges of the Union Traction system. The money should be obtained by assessing the water out of the stock.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1903: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

KING PETER has made a direct appeal to President Roosevelt and to King Edward to restore diplomatic relations between their respective governments and that of Servia, and I understand that his application has met with favorable consideration, and that United States Minister Jackson and the British envoy, Sir George Bonham, will shortly arrive at Belgrade for the purpose of presenting their letters of credence to King Peter, thus restoring those diplomatic relations which were broken off at the time of the murder of King Alexander and Queen Draga.

The United States and British governments seem to have come to the conclusion that Peter personally was innocent of all responsibility for the assassination of his predecessor, and that, inasmuch as he is doing his best to endow Servia with a respectable government, it is impolitic to increase the serious difficulties that confront him by subjecting him to the indignity of refusing to maintain diplomatic relations with his court. All the other powers have resumed diplomatic relations with Servia, and the United States and England are the only two that have held back until now. True, King Peter has not yet punished the murderers of King Alexander, nor has he even eliminated them from his councils. But it is taken for granted that he will do this as soon as his hands have been sufficiently strengthened to admit of his taking any such action.

Meanwhile the German and Austrian and Russian emperors, while manifesting the utmost consideration and regard for King Peter personally, have indicated their sentiments with regard to the Servian army by forbidding the officers of their own military forces to hold any kind of intercourse, official or social, with Servian officers, and by declining to permit Servian military officers to appear anywhere in their dominions in uniform. Indeed, Servian army officers are subjected at the present moment to the most severe ostracism by the officers of the other European armies, who decline to regard them any longer as comrades, as possessed of the proper sense of military honor, or as fit associates.

Not only is King Peter face to face with an empty national treasury but he has no resources of his own left, and for the last three weeks one of his emissaries has been vainly endeavoring at Vienna, Buda-Pesth, Paris, Berlin, and London to raise funds on the strength of acceptances bearing the signature of the Servian monarch. Everywhere King Peter's representative meets with the same response—namely: that the Servian throne is too insecure to admit of the signature of its occupant being considered as a valid security.

Old Admiral Bogle of the British navy, whose death has just taken place in Italy, enjoyed the unusual distinction of receiving while still a mere midshipman the thanks of the United States government for his plucky rescue of an American brig from the hands of pirates at the mouth of the Congo river on the west coast of Africa. That was a little over fifty years ago, and he was rewarded by his own government with promotion with the rank of sublieutenant. He was in command of the big cutter belonging to the British cruiser stationed on the west coast, and, although a mere boy, carried out the rescue with a skill and pluck worthy of Marryat's hero. Indeed, the entire naval career of this gallant old officer, so full of stirring incidents, reads like a Marryat novel.

Germany's future emperor has made his début on the turf, and his racing stable has carried off a victory in two of the chief events at the great military steeplechase meeting, which took place the other day at Doeberitz. The crown prince, who likewise gave two valuable cups to be run for at the meeting, has registered his racing colors and has announced his intention of entering horses for several of the nonmilitary flat races. He has already collected what is regarded by experts as quite a promising string of horses, and has his father's full approval and support in his creation of a racing stable.

The emperor, however, would not permit him to carry out his intention of riding his own horses at the steeplechase at Doeberitz the other day. In fact, the only heir apparent whom I have ever known to don the silk shirt and cap of a gentleman rider in a steeplechase carrying his horse to victory was the late duke of Clarence, eldest son of King Edward. Prince Eddie was a shy, nervous, and delicate looking lad, whose appearance did not convey the impression that he was in any sense of the word a sportsman. And yet he was passionately fond of horses, a splendid rider, and absolutely fearless when in the saddle.

Young King Alfonso, in deference to the advice of his premier, Señor Villaverde, has issued a proclamation of amnesty, granting a royal pardon to all those serving terms of imprisonment or awaiting trial for offenses in connection with the labor strikes and labor disturbances that have taken place during the last eighteen months—that is to say, since he attained his majority. This act of clemency, however, does not extend to those guilty of homicide, arson, and robbery. Directions have likewise been given to quash and abandon all criminal proceedings now pending in the Spanish courts in connection with labor disturbances, and it is evident that an endeavor is being made by the present cabinet to propitiate the labor element.

The present administration is a conservative one. But it represents the most liberal branch of the conservatives and is entitled to the consideration of all true friends and well wishers of Spain, by reason of the fact that the statesmen composing it are those who severed themselves from the former Clivela conservative government, in consequence of its refusal to introduce any of the long promised economies and administrative reforms.

Señor Villaverde represents the party that is committed to a policy of severe retrenchment, to a reduction of taxation, and to a balancing of the budget. This, of course, has antagonized the army, the church, whose fiscal immunities it is proposed to reduce, and the government officials, as those of the latter who are superfluous are in danger of dismissal. The merchant and industrial classes, however, are favorably disposed towards the new premier, and the royal proclamation of amnesty just issued is likely to win for him the good will of the labor element.

The provincial governors have, however, been informed by the premier that nothing in the royal proclamation is to be construed in the light of indulgence towards the anarchists, increased severity against whom is directed, and the governors are further instructed to expell from the kingdom without hesitation all foreigners suspected of anarchist leanings, and who have not obtained from the local authorities that "permis de sejour" with which every alien living in Spain is required to provide himself.

I may add that the prime minister has issued a peremptory and sharply worded denial of the stories recently circulated by the revolutionary and Carlist press in Spain to the effect that the young king is afflicted with tuberculosis of the lungs in an advanced degree and is about to undergo a prolonged term of treatment in a sanitarium for consumptives. The premier threatens drastic punishment for all newspapers circulating lies of this character, and in the case of their being circulated in foreign newspapers, the representatives of the latter at Madrid will be expelled by the police from Spain.

THE BOYDAYS

"As I was in the days of my youth."—Job xxix., 4.

THE boydays—the boydays—they were the best of all!
Through all the hushes of the years the boydays over call;
Out of the darkness of the night resplendestly they shine;
And what a wreath of memories for one and all they twine!
No matter what of baser stuff the later years may hold
We may look up and back and see the boydays all were gold.

The boydays—the boydays—when come the threads of gray,
You may live in Tomorrow, but you dream of Yesterday;
You may look in the mirror, but the only face you see
Is one that has the semblance of the boy you used to be;
And, musing, you may stumble on a broken bit of song
That wanders from the boydays in a cadence sweet and strong.

The boydays—a picture with not a hue to fade;
The glamour of the grasses where the summer sunshine played;
The sparkle of the ripple in some jolly little stream
Whose song was built of jewels of a never dying gleam;
The nodding of the roses; and the whiteness of the snow—
They blend across the picture of the long and long ago.

The boydays—the boydays—we never lose them all;
The best of all the memories, they come at fancy's call.
Somehow they are made perfect by the alchemy of years,
Which keeps alive the smiles they held and never finds the tears.
The heart is but a treasure chest our precious things to hold,
And chiefest of the goodly store is all the boydays' gold.

"WE follow fashions in literature, just as we do in furniture and architecture," declares Mr. Bliss Perry. Advance fall styles indicate that the fad for taking a historical skeleton and padding it profusely is dying out. The prevailing modes in walking and street stories, however, continue in the yellowback style. New ideas in dressing sack stories show two elopements and a mysterious disappearance in the first ten chapters. For Sunday wear stories will be bound in tasteful, dark patterns. The Life & Works of Hercules

"HERC," as he came to be called later in life, was born in a Wisconsin lake about 133 miles from Chicago. If he had been given his way he would have spent the remainder of his existence exactly 133 miles away, but fate in the form of a fisherman had designed other things for him.

Up to his fourth year he had lived in peace and quietude, and by successful practicing of cannibalism had increased in weight and girth until his graceful curves contained just three and a half pounds of meat.

One afternoon last week fate, in the form of a fisherman, cast a minnow just at the edge of his nose as he lay in a sunken, hollow log. "Herc" felt no real need of that minnow to complete his happiness, but it was there, and so he decided to take what the gods had provided for him. He arose and struck. Then he put up a fight which warmed the fisherman's heart to its cockles, and at the finish of it the bass lay panting at the bottom of the boat.

Presently he was sweet and peaceful in death. His life had finished, but his "works" had just begun.

The fisherman looked at him at the close of the day's sport and picked him out from the others with the remark:

"I'll just give this fellow to that skeptical Hawkins, who thinks I'm lying every time I say I've caught a fish."

That remark accounts for the fact that "Herc," neatly wrapped in grass, moss, and ice, and all done around in brown paper with a handle, was delivered to the skeptical Mr. Hawkins, who accepted with many thanks. He immediately telephoned to Mrs. Hawkins that his good and kind friend had presented him with a magnificent specimen of bass, which would grace their festive board at a later date. He also took occasion to remark that he might not be home that night.

"Herc" was handed over to the steward at Mr. Hawkins' club and deposited in the ice chest. Mr. Hawkins went about the important business which he feared would detain him overnight. It did. The next morning the business had resolved itself into that state known as a "left over," and the business man spent a large portion of the day on a leather couch at the club. As evening approached he arose and transacted more business, starting for home at 2 a. m. in a tolerably civilized condition of being.

He remembered "Herc" before he reached the elevated station and retraced his steps to the club. With the assistance of one of the "bellhops" he located the bass in the ice chest.

"He's kind of ripe," remarked the bellhop, sniffing.

"He does seem to be getting strong," admitted Mr. Hawkins, holding "Herc" out at arm's length, "but he's a fine fish."

With the bass held firmly by the handle of the bundle Mr. Hawkins set out for his vine and fig tree once more. His line of march led west in Madison street to Fifth avenue, where it started to ascend the steps to the platform.

He succeeded in reaching the third step from the top when "Herc" suddenly seemed to come to life. He deliberately twisted himself out of Mr. Hawkins' hands and took off down the steps in wild confusion. His brown paper wrapper, with the moss and grass, came off him, and he finished his wild career by plumping in the gutter, entirely free from his confining bonds.

Mr. Hawkins was close behind him, also taking the steps in a disordered and disorganized manner. "Herc" had left a trail of paper, moss, and grass leading to the spot where he quietly reposed in the gutter, and Mr. Hawkins found him.

"You naughty, naughty bass," said Mr. Hawkins, reprovingly. "Naughty to roll down the steps in that fashion."

He picked up "Herc" and looked about for the wrapping. It was impossible, obviously, to return the fish to his former state, but, being determined to get him home, Mr. Hawkins began to reascend the steps, swinging the bass by the tail.

As he walked up he stopped, catching a whiff of a permeating odor.

"Why, Hercules," he exclaimed, "how strong you have become." Which was the first time "Herc" had been given his name. The ticket seller at the gate allowed him to pass through quickly, and on the platform he ran into a theater party, the members of which avoided him with scorn.

Mr. Hawkins' face was set resolutely by this time. He had told Mrs. Hawkins he would bring home a fish, and a fish he intended to deliver. He took a seat in the car the object of derision on all sides. He met this with silent contempt and sat bent over, swinging "Herc" by the tail. As the train rounded a sharp curve the bass left his hands again suddenly and took refuge in the lap of a nicely dressed woman, who shrieked and threw him to the floor.

"Madam," said Mr. Hawkins, arising with dignity, "when you have finished I should be obliged to you if you would return that fish."

There being no objection he recovered possession and returned to his moody state of dignity, swinging "Herc" by the tail. At Belmont avenue he got up and left the train. The other passengers expressed their relief in audible terms. Several women returned smelling salts to their reticules.

"Never you mind, Herc," said Mr. Hawkins. "If the rest of the world does treat you with contumely, I'll stick to you. I'll stick."

He regained the street, secured his bearings, and started for home.

Within two blocks of his residence he saw a man on the grass, outstretched and evidently sleeping soundly, if the snores could be accepted in evidence.

"What a sad sight," exclaimed Mr. Hawkins, stopping to moralize. "Such is the deceit of men. He should be home in the bosom of his family, and here he lies. Drunk, I'll bet. O, miserable wretch."

Mr. Hawkins' feelings overpowered him, and he sat down on the curbstone to reflect. The longer he moralized the more his angry emotions arose against this man who wasted the night hours sleeping in front of other persons' homes.

Suddenly he stepped back four feet, raised "Herc" in the air by the tail, took careful aim at the sleeper's face, and projected the bass through the air.

"Herc" landed full on the target. Mr. Hawkins started down the street, touching only the high places in his mad flight. The sleeper awoke with a shriek of terror. Mr. Hawkins, glancing over his shoulder once, saw the victim wildly fighting "Herc," who seemed to have him fastened down to the ground. He heard one despairing cry.

"Take it away, take it away."

Then he bounded into his doorway, and, using the key with more expedition than he had before, he let himself in.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

W. M. BOWACK WRITES OF ANOTHER VIEW OF INDUSTRIALISM.

Author Takes for His Particular Standpoint Schopenhauer's "The Will and Idea"—The Prime Object of Industry Is to Get a Living—He Believes That the Will Binds the Universe Together as It Binds Industrialism.

The author of "ANOTHER VIEW OF INDUSTRIALISM" (E. P. Dutton & Co.), an English writer, looking over his list of "over 400 works of reputation" on the same general subject, hits upon a convenient title for his own work, simply calling it "Another View." Does the fact that a teeming press has issued so many books of late on economics show that there can be no need for another? By no means, reasons this author. That fact is evidence rather of a prevalent dissatisfaction with what has already been produced; nobody has so stated the case as to quite meet and satisfy the common judgment.

The "other view" of industrialism takes for its particular standpoint that of "Will and Idea"—the "subjective of Schopenhauer."

The prime object of industry is to get a living. It takes no little industry for men generally to do that. But to do this implies purposeful activity. The underlying fact is the constant potentiality of the will. Back of industrialism as an organic world movement is the "unifying principle of will." Says the author at the end of his book of 400 pages: "Is will a true universal? Does it bind the universe together as it binds industrialism? We think it does. We think will not only a true universal, but the Universal. And there we leave it."

Not a wonderful conclusion, either—that the world's industry implies the activity of the human purpose, more or less intelligent, more or less worthy, more or less strenuous and absorbing, more or less adequate and successful.

The unsophisticated reader will likely enough wonder why so obvious a proposition should have needed 400 pages for its elucidation. One does not see why a tolerably resourceful talker might not go on in this way forever, at least until human industry gets out of breath. Meanwhile it may happen, as with this writer, that the talker will every now and then hit upon some point that is pertinent and worth talking about.

THE BIBLE IN SHAKSPEARE.

By William Burgess. The Winona Publishing company.

Mr. Burgess has made a useful contribution to the study of Shakspeare in his book, "THE BIBLE IN SHAKSPEARE." Apart from the two essays, the one on Shakspeare as a Chrisfian, the other on the ministry of the poet, he has with great industry collated, giving the parallel passages from Shakspeare and from the bible. There are also classified citations under the headings, God in Shakspeare; bible characters; scripture facts, incidents, places, etc.; and Shakspeare as an interpreter of bible words.

In Shakspeare's time, as Mr. Burgess remarks, the bible was the one book, almost the only book, within the reach of the common people. Erasmus had said only a few years before: "I long for the day when the husbandman shall sing portions of the scripture to himself as he follows the plow, when the weaver shall hum them to the tune of her shuttle, when the traveler shall while away with their stories the weariness of his journey."

What Green in his "History of the English People" says of England as at that time the people of a book, and that book the bible, is familiar to all. The whole word effect, he says, which is produced nowadays by the religious newspaper, the essay, the lecture, the missionary report, the sermon was there produced by the bible alone, and its effect in this way was simply amazing. The whole temper of the nation was changed. That Shakspeare should have become so saturated with the thought, the idiom, the imagery, and speech of the bible is, therefore, not strange.

In this interesting task of setting forth this comparative study of Shakspeare and the bible Mr. Burgess has done an admirable service, which cannot fail to be appreciated by students of English life and English literature generally. The whole is a good piece of literary workmanship.

SOME PLEASING POEMS.

Verses by Alice Herbert Come Near to the Heart of Things.

"Between the Lights," by Alice Herbert, is a little book of verses that come close to the heart of things. It is a volume to keep on your desk or on the table beside your bed where you can reach it when you are wakeful at night. It is full of those things that every one knows and few can tell. Among the best of the lighter verses is the following:

"When memory comes teasing you,
Trying to break your heart,
Telling of things that used to be,
And how you bore a part,
The safest Lethe you can drink
(You'll never find it wrong)
Is just the little drop of ink
That makes a little song.

When waking nights are heavy things,
And spring nights hard to bear;
When every bird that sees you sings
A melancholy air:
Then never dream and strain about
And shut your eyes and long.
But take a pen and work it out,
And make a little song.

Though every smile, however, sweet,
Should make you sick, "If only——!"
And all the throng of passing feet
Should leave you more than lonely:
Though all your cry be, "Come again!
The empty days are long,"
Perhaps you'll hardly find the pain
Outlive a little song."

LAMB'S WORKS COMPLETE.

A New Edition of All His Writings Issued by E. P. Dutton & Co.

J. M. Dent & Co. of London have begun the publication of "THE COMPLETE WORKS OF CHARLES LAMB," in twelve volumes, edited by William Macdonald. E. P. Dutton & Co. handle the work in this country. Volumes one and two, which are just out, consist, respectively, of "The Essays of Elia" and "The Last Essays of Elia." To the first he contributes a general preface, in which he humorously and yet critically points out the shortcomings of his predecessors, and for the second volume he writes a sympathetic and informative memoir of the subject. To each volume there are copious notes, and scores of excellent illustrations by C. E. Brock.

There may be those who will wonder at the expediency of printing everything Elia wrote, e. g.: those awful farces, but Mr. Macdonald believes it all has value, if not merit, and so we have a dozen volumes including every scrap of Eliana which could be raked and scraped from the obscurest magazines of the past.

One cannot but wonder how much of this Lamb, had he been his own editor, would have thrown away. It must be said, however, that Mr. Macdonald begins well and that the edition is one of the handsomest ever published.

STUDIES OF INSECT LIFE.

An Interesting Text Book by Prof. Hunter.

We do not know of any better book for the amateur student of entomology than "ELEMENTARY STUDIES OF INSECT LIFE." It contains the merits of being entertaining and practical. The general features of insect life are discussed in interesting fashion, while the two plates in colors and hundreds of illustrations from photographs make the identification of the insects an easy matter. The variety of matter and the scope of the work in spite of its 369 pages is truly remarkable. Not only are there given full details for the amateur entomologist but there are chapters telling how to destroy insect pests and others warn the farmer which bugs are his friends, telling, for instance, of the influence of bees upon the size of his apples and the productiveness of his orchard.

The author, S. G. Hunter, is associate professor of comparative zoölogy and entomology in the University of Kansas and his work seems to be peculiarly suitable for use as a text book in schools. (Crane & Co., Topeka.)

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

LESSON NO. 31—Cut Glass and Its Care.

CUT glass and silver are the high lights in table decoration, and their presence in the dining room convey cheer, elegance, and stateliness; but, like Cæsar's wife, must be above reproach.

The facets and prisms of the modern cut glass were made to scintillate, and when they cannot do this they as certainly can proclaim their dullness. "I am as clear as crystal," says the well kept glass, but "I am as mud," says the dingy. And glass, even the common jelly glass, will respond generously to a polishing and reward the caretaker, but never deceive yourself into thinking the unpolished glass will as readily hide its neglect.

The deeply cut facets and prisms of American cut glass are radiant with light. They can be also great snares for dust and dinginess and will in this latter state carry unpleasant comparisons. Cut glass is one of the household gods that must always be found smiling on its throne.

What could be a pleasanter task than to fill a generous bowl with foamy soap suds and another bowl filled with clear rinsing water and the same temperature as the suds and with a teaspoonful of ammonia in it, and go to work to give your crystal a bath?

Have a good drainer by you, and after rubbing the piece of glass vigorously over every prism with a brush about the stiffness of a nail brush, rinse thoroughly in the clear water. Let it drain well, but not until dry. Then with a round thread linen towel in each hand rub it dry. Do not use damask linen on glass. It is too soft and leaves lint.

When you have done each piece thus and are putting them back on the shelf, go over each one with a curved polishing brush, such as is used for silver, and you will have a thing of beauty in this well groomed crystal.

No cut glass should be taken down off the shelf and put upon the table without the use of this polisher and a clean towel. It is easy to always keep the brush wrapped up from the dust right upon the shelf with your glass.

The foreign makes of cut glass are not so well known in this country as they should be. They are less difficult to take care of and not so easily affected by heat and cold as our deeply cut glass, for, while this latter is marvelous in the daring reaches of its thickness and thinness, it chips and snaps easily.

The intaglio cutting in floral and arabesque designs of the French and English glass is not quite so prismatic in effect, but there is a limpid pureness to these crystals that is most beautiful and somehow one's artistic sense is appealed to immensely, as a glass cut in graceful floral curves is carried to one's lips without that sense of "bumpiness" to the touch which our prisms convey. The effects of this glass are flatter, quieter, and at times this pleases most.

For simpler living, which all should strive for physically and mentally, one should not burden oneself with the cares and annoyances of too perishable table fittings. The simpler glassware is charming, and many modern manufacturers make inexpensive simply cut glass that will lend charm to any table. The modern reproduction of our grandmother's column cut colonial crystal is easily kept in order, and the yet cheaper Austrian makes have perfect clearness and excellent shapes. Glass must bear always its strongest characteristic, clearness, and only by cleanliness can it keep this state.

Often houses and apartments do not have dust proof closets wherein to keep valuable china and glass, so here is given a practical "makeshift" glass closet of one clever housekeeper. She had some heavy cardboard cut the width and length of the closet shelves. These she covered with some cotton flannel, leaving a curtain hanging down all around, at the four corners of which she put a little bag of shot to hold these curtains down. When she had her glass put upon the shelf she would place this curtained board on top the glass and tuck it in all around, dust proof at least a few weeks, yet perfectly accessible at any time. She says seldom did the dust penetrate the cloth.

Another suggestion about the care of valuable cut glass or any other tableware is this: When you are entertaining frequently, especially with dinners when the dish washing must necessarily be long and late, make it a rule to have these valuables gathered into one place carefully covered from view and not allow the tired servants to wash that priceless property until next morning, when back and hand are rested and steady. Of course, this is not as "grandmother" may have thought good housekeeping was done, but common sense and a merciful consideration of those who do this work will keep the spirit of our maternal ancestor quiet.

Household Hints.

The Caterer Thinks—

And what this caterer thinks is worth knowing, for he has catered to good fortune and won over the fickle jade—that a boiled fish successfully served simulates swimming. This is done by propping it with a whole carrot laid inside, which gives it rigidity enough to stand upright. A pretty garnishing is with white rings of hard boiled eggs, holding sprigs of parsley, laid along the back. A slice of lemon sprinkled with and surrounded by parsley, giving the effect of a medallion, is placed against the side of the fish.

Boiled potatoes, usually served with boiled fish, garnish it gracefully if they are cut into balls and cooked so that they are supremely white and mealy. Parsley gives color and adds also a sense of freshness. It may be used in large bunches, especially when the fish is cut, or on creamed fish dishes.

Creamed fish is a feast for the eye, as well as for the tongue, when its top is golden with crumbed egg yolks. Fried fish should have a lemon tint and look clean, dry, and bright, not black or greasy. The color is secured by dipping it in milk, then rolling in flour, and frying in smoking hot fat, or, if egg and crumbs are used, having white fresh crumbs grated from the stale loaf. Fish to be fried is often cut into slices or in filets, but small fish need not be so cut. Smelts are sometimes turned into rings, or are laid open and the head drawn through a slit cut in the back. Potatoes served with fried fish are cut into balls and fried.

Lemons are sine qua nons with fried or broiled fish and are either sliced, or, better, cut into quarters so as to give more of the juice, which is needed for condiment. Lemon sprinkled with chopped parsley is pretty. Broiled fish finds a good friend in maitre d'hotel sauce, which is its best possible sauce, even better than the proverbial "hunger."

Baked fish may be beautifully twisted like the letter S to make it stand upright. If too huge to be served whole it may be cut so as to leave the head or the tail on the piece to be used, and, whether served whole or in part, should look sweetly clean. No scum from the pan should be suffered to linger upon it, and no water should drip from it into the platter.

Cucumber spirals are daintily tempting with fish. Peel cucumbers and throw them into ice water. With a thin, sharp knife cut them round and round in one long, thin paring. Pull them out to show the spiral form and arrange on a flat dish around a mound of shaved ice. Pass French dressing with them.

Watch the Green Grocer's Market—

For the latest arrivals, this summer's juicy bits of palely tinted lima beans, as sweet as flowers and fresh as dew. They do not increase in loveliness as they wax in age, so it is wise to seek them in the days of their youth. Wash and lay in cold water for some time before using. When ready to cook dip them into boiling water flavored with a nip of salt, boil until tender, which will be in about twenty minutes, drain and serve with a lump of butter and a sparse sprinkling of pepper. They are good!

If your fancy turns to vegetable ragouts you can use the beans in a toothsome hodgepodge: Parboil one carrot, one turnip, two potatoes, two ears of corn, one cup of lima beans, and the same of peas, one onion, and with them one-fourth pound of fat salt pork. Drain off the water and lay aside the pork. Slice carrots, turnips, potatoes, and onion. Put into a saucepan with a cup of some good meat soup before it has been thickened. Season well; cut the corn from the cob, and add with peas, beans, and a sliced tomato as soon as the rest are hot. Stew all together half an hour. Stir in a great lump of butter rolled in flour, stew five minutes, and serve in a deep dish. It is good, too.

And when winter comes and all the lima beans that love or money can buy are yellow with old age, soak these yellow old beans over night before you put them to boil, and when they are done to a nicety, which will be in about an hour, imitate the delicately clever Chinese chef and blanch the beans before sending them to the table, removing the outer skins, which are of the seven abominations to yours and every one else's stomach.

Or, these same yellowed lima beans you can cook until they are mashable and put through a colander, and pepper, salt, and butter like a mashed potato. Nothing is better.

But it may be unkind to the sweet young things that lima beans are today to chatter about their dotage. With lima beans, however, it is not dotage. They are always mightily good and always supremely strong in nutrition.

The Fragrance of Wildwood Violet—

Faintly and deliciously perfumes the laundry which has had a good sized piece of orris root dropped into the boiler in which it was boiled, and no drying in the sun or pressing beneath the heavy, hot iron wrests away the sweet scent.

The heavy, hot iron, by the bye, is a huge item to be reckoned with in doing up lace and neck chiffon. Be wise, and always pull these well out and lay flat on the board before attempting to touch with the iron. Of course—emphatically of course—all articles of this delicate constitution must be ironed on the wrong side, or the graceful pattern will not stand out as you want it to do. Persevere in the ironing until the articles are quite and wholly dry.

When the adorable net and lace collars which all maidens of the moment sigh for if they have them not are in danger of pulling out of their pretty shape during the washing operation, carefully fold them and sew them lightly together before drowning them in the suds.

Be unutterably gentle with them, and do not rub them. Make a suds with soap jelly and warm water. Lay the folded collars in this and leave for twenty minutes or half an hour. Then squeeze in your hand and souse up and down in the suds till clean.

Then do it all over again in another lot of suds as white and fresh as snowdrops, as many times as must be to convince yourself of the irreproachable spotlessness of your fabrics, and finally rinse in warm water and squeeze as dry and hard as you can without dislocating fingers and thumbs.

If you iron them at once on a well covered board, wrong side up, first under a cloth and then without, no starch will be needed, and mentally and physically you will be wreathed with smiles of victory.

In the Linen Closet—

That follows the dernier cri of linen ideas you will see plaited towels in white and blue or pink and blue, patterned with large conventional figures in rough weave and created solely for the bath.

You will find more and more round table covers. For the round table, being higher and higher in favor, is being fitted with cloths that fit its graceful shape.

Decorative and handsome is a pattern of Cluny in a raised floral design which borders and interweaves across the center of a superb tablecloth.

You will find bed linens magnificently embroidered; one set in finest muslin, including bedspread and pillow shams, comes little short of $100.

You will find counterpanes in the new smart mercerized cottons with patterns in gigantic flowers, and leaves, chrysanthemums, roses, and carnations, and poppies all ten times as large as they grow in the gardens and running riot over the spread in delicate hues like mauve, pink, and blue and other charming colorings.

And perhaps, if the tasteful owner of the linen closet has a particular penchant for purple and fine linen for her beds, and a particularly corpulent pocketbook, you will find a lacy wonder of a counterpane created all of alternate squares of filet lace, hand perforated and embroidered linens, and Cluny. It could not be had for less than 100 almighty dollars and it might be had for much above that.

The Toppling of Summer Prices—

Includes the falling of rates for summer furniture and great is the fall thereof, and great is the gain thereof for many a thrifty house mistress, who either lays by now for months in the country house next season or boldly and tastefully disposes of summer furniture here and there into the winter quarters, which always can successfully accommodate some choice summer pieces.

In keen rivalry, built on the lines of the celebrated mission designs, come high backed chairs with square legs, back posts, woven rush seat, and back.

There are picturesque and convenient settees six feet long, with large post legs connected with flat rungs, and with woven rush backs and seats. There are arm chairs as roomy as a barn, with wide, comfortable seats, and arms surprisingly and charmingly broad.

There are Morris chairs, big, broad, and just heavy enough, artistically tinted, and with not a whit of upholstering or cushioning to heat one's body or temper on the warm days to come before winter sets in and again when the next summer is upon the world.

Geoffrey and Marjorie In "A Country Girl"

A COUNTRY GIRL.

A Musical Play in Two Acts.

BY

JAMES TANNER and LIONEL MONCKTON.

Presented at the Illinois Theater, Chicago, by the Augustin Daly Musical Company, Aug. 30, 1903. The cast:

Geoffrey Challoner	Melville Stewart
Harry	John Slavin
The Rajah of Bhong	Hallyn Mogtyn
Sir Joseph Verity	Harold Vizard
Douglas Verity	Percy Jennings
Granfer Mummery	Clarence Harvey
Nan	Helen Marvin
Marjorie Joy	Grace Freeman
Sophie	Miss Dego
Princess Mehelaneh of Bhong	Genevieve Finlay
Mrs. Quinten Raikes	Isobel Delmont
Nurse	Marion Singer

The most pronouncedly English of the many "musical plays" London has sent to us in the course of the last score of years has arrived at the Illinois in the form of "A Country Girl," which the Augustin Daly Musical company presented there for the first time on Saturday night. The auditor who is not familiar with his London and British political conditions, and who is not up on such phrases as "week's end," "coming on," "consols," and similar expressions will find himself a bit uncertain as to the meaning of some lines and witticisms the piece contains.

For a piece that has run for nearly half a year in New York it seems peculiarly "unadapted"—the hand of the "Americanizer" appears to have been withheld in usual measure. There are stanzas in some of the topical songs which have clearly been added for United States consumption, but all of the original British stanzas appear also to have been preserved with surprising consideration and conscientiousness. The result is a failure of many of them to tickle the risibilities of their hearers. The local references they contain are largely unintelligible and the point is, of course, missed.

That certain of the stanzas, original or additional, should be eliminated is undeniable. The reference to President Roosevelt, made in the topical song in the last act, is in the worst of taste and aroused not a few of its hearers last evening to express their disapproval in hisses. And the "ping-pong ball" episode in the "Mrs. Brown" song is indecent and should certainly be cut out at once.

With these objectionable features removed and with the piece brought into the required smoothness and briskness of action which further rehearsals of a thorough kind will bring, "A Country Girl" will be an entertainment of an amusing and agreeable kind. It will never be one of the best of the musical plays, for its second act is invertebrate and is lent effectiveness only by such cleverness and talents as the performers engaged in its presentation bring to their work. Such story as the book contains ends virtually with the first curtain and all that follows is mere patchwork, elaborated to fill out a required time. The first act is picturesque, its music pleasing, its plot simple and obvious but serviceable, and its whole manner and matter attractive. But the second has little of rhyme or reason to commend it and has to have liberal padding in the shape of clowning and horseplay to make it suffice.

The saving grace in the present performance is the work done by John Slavin. He virtually has to carry the entire show, and he accomplishes the heavy task in surprising and highly commendable fashion. His rôle is that of a sailor lad who, in the service of a young captain, proves equal to every emergency, financial, social, or amatory. He is a sort of masculine Fi Fi and accomplishes almost as many wonders as does that useful person in the "Chinese Honeymoon," and with about the same jauntiness, impudence, and amusing ease. Mr. Slavin plays the part in irresistible fashion and his auditors last evening were deservedly lavish in their appreciation and approval. His dancing, singing, and snappy, crisp manner of speech are excellent, especially in the first act, and even his antics and horseplay in the last act, when he appears for no explicable reason in woman's garb, are undeniably laughter provoking.

Miss Freeman as the country girl sings prettily, has grace, and no inconsiderable beauty of face to win her favor, and her work in its entirety calls for only commendation. Miss Marvin plays Nan with good appreciation of its breeziness and its suggestion of awkwardness. Her singing is marred by a flatness and thinness of tone, but she enunciates clearly and shows intelligent grasp of the humor of both the spoken and the sung lines of the part. She is a vision of loveliness in the second act, being in a gown of yellow, relieved by one effective touch of red, a worthy subject for Mucha.

Miss Finlay is the best singer among the women, her voice being a rich mezzo and her use of it in her one solo and in the duet with the Rajah being effective. This duet is the most original number in the piece. It is written with rare cleverness, and properly scored one of the most spontaneous and pronounced successes of the performance.

Sky Farm at McVicker's.

The popularity of last season's success was attested last evening at McVicker's theater, when "Sky Farm" and its familiar characters were appreciated by an audience that made standing room only the order of the evening. From the rise of the first curtain until the final climax had been reached the interest remained undiminished, and sincere were the tributes of applause that marked the effective intervening passages.

Although Joseph R. Grismer has revised the piece since it was last seen here, the main theme remains unchanged, and the same homely characters, so true to New England's rural inhabitants, are as entertaining as ever. The opening setting of the third act, the interior of the village post-office and general store, again impressed by its faithfulness. The climax to the following scene, the maple maze, still remains a bit too much overdrawn for even a so-called miracle, but it suited the immediate needs of the heroine, and so met with the unquestioned approval of the onlookers. The final scene, the barn dance on Christmas eve, has about it a merry and rollicking air that leaves the beholder in a fit frame of mind to rejoice with the merrymakers at the happy conclusion.

New American Is Opened.

The New American theater, which began its regular season yesterday afternoon, has undergone sufficient alterations during the summer to entitle it to the descriptive adjective its name contains. The house has been decorated throughout in a combination of red, white, and gold that lends it a cheeriness and brightness it had not before possessed, a new floor has been laid, new seats placed, and a new curtain hung.

To all these improvements in the house itself may well be added the most important change of all—the radical one that has been made in the stock company. Only two of the members of last season's organization have been retained—Laura Alberta, the leading woman, and Sam C. Hunt. The new leading man is Richard Allen, and as seen yesterday in the title part in the comedy, "Mr. Barnes of New York," he proved himself possessed of abilities that promise well for satisfactory work from him in the future. There was noted occasionally a tendency to speak too rapidly, the result being indistinctness in enunciation, but this fault may have been in part due to the nerve tenseness inseparable from a first appearance. Miss Alberta played Marina with effectiveness. The part is well suited to her intense emotional style, and she threw herself with fervor into her work yesterday. Of the support, Florence Leslie attracted by graces of person and manner, Walter F. Jones brought an air of distinction and good histrionic abilities to his impersonation of Count Musso, and Laurence Dunbar was satisfactory as the Edwin of the cast.

Passing of the Dearborn.

The last matinée to be given in the Dearborn theater, the name having passed into history with last night's performance, was devoted to a benefit for the attachés of the house and consisted of an "all understudy" cast of "The Tenderfoot." We have had "all star" casts, "special" casts, carefully "selected" casts, and casts of nearly all varieties, but it is doubtful if ever before in the history of theatrical Chicago have we had an all understudy cast. It is not impossible that a goodly proportion of the auditors who filled the theater yesterday afternoon were attracted as much by curiosity to see how bad such a performance could be as by the desire to swell the receipts of the attachés' benefit. But such auditors were doomed to disappointment, for the performance, instead of being a bad one, was a thoroughly creditable one. It was, of course, but little other than a copy of the performance given by the regular principals, but the copy was skillfully made and there were all the spirit and heartiness of endeavor that would naturally accompany the work of aspiring young performers who realized that they were having their "chance." It was a bright, animated entertainment, and the people in front of the orchestra pit, as well as those behind it, entered with zest into the jolly mood of the occasion.

The afternoon served to show that the understudies include some young performers of ability.

At the Masonic Temple.

Pauline Hall is the big typed attraction at the Masonic temple this week. She donned, or doffed, three costumes yesterday afternoon in the course of a few minutes, and the assembled multitude was thus permitted to see her in pink, in white, and in the demurest of soft dove gray. The pink garb was the accepted feminine, with a skirt that trailed and clung. The white and the gray were not, for the skirt that trailed became a cloak that sometimes draped. And when it didn't drape the garment that clung was not a skirt.

The comeliness and shapeliness that Miss Hall has so long called her own are still clearly and unmistakably hers, and her other attributes as a public performer seem also about as they ever have been. She sings slightly below true pitch, just as she has done these many years; her one gesture is still her faithful medium of fervid dramatic expression, and she pronounces and phrases in the same strikingly individual and original fashion she ever has done. She is still the Pauline Hall of yore, and the audience yesterday applauded her as generously as audiences have done for these many seasons.

Ollie Young and brother do some remarkably skillful hoop rolling, Grace Gardner and company present a comedy entitled "The New Coachman," Louise Dresser and Jack Norworth give vocal selections, and the Whitney brothers, the Marco twins, and the Nichols sisters complete the list.

MORGAN NOT EASILY HURT

BIG UNDERWRITING PROFITS STAND MUCH SHRINKAGE.

Although International Mercantile Marine Securities Have Fallen $46,430,000 He Is Still Ahead—Healthy Quickening of Trade in Wholesale Lines—All Jobbing Interests Reporting General Fall Revival of Inquiry and Business.

The collapse in the prices of the securities of the International Mercantile Marine company shows how great a shrinkage in values can take place in a Morgan promotion without dissipating Mr. Morgan's profits. Those who have figured on Mr. Morgan's losses in the recent decline in stocks and bonds may find in the International Mercantile Marine a suggestion that Mr. Morgan's profits on any underwriting were so large that it may be doubted whether his losses have not been much of the paper variety.

International Mercantile Marine securities showed at the close of the week a total shrinkage of $46,430,000. The common stock in 1902, when the company was promoted, sold at 30. At the close of last week it was selling around 4. In the same length of time the preferred stock dropped from 75 to 15. The bonds declined nominally from 103 to 97½. It would have been supposed that with such falling away in values the Morgan underwriting profits would not only have been dissipated, but that in addition large losses would have been incurred. On the contrary, however, at the prices quoted last Saturday the Morgan syndicate was still $125,000 ahead, interest not considered.

The International Mercantile Marine company was organized with a capital of $48,000,000 common stock, $52,000,000 preferred stock, and $50,000,000 of 4½ per cent bonds. Mr. Morgan and his friends in the syndicate furnished the company $50,000,000 cash, and for that amount of money received the entire issue of $50,000,000 bonds, $2,500,000 of the preferred stock, and $25,000,000 of the common stock. At Saturday's prices the securities received by the syndicate were worth $50,125,000, or $125,000 more than was paid for them. On the cost price of the securities this is equal to 100¼. The $125,000, however, is all that remains of profits of $10,875,000 shown in the high prices of these securities last year, when the company was floated. This may be set forth in the appended table of the securities given the Morgan syndicate for organizing the company and paying to it $50,000,000 in cash. High prices of last year and the quotations of last week are used. The comparison follows:

	1902.	Now.
Preferred stock	1,875,000	375,000
Common stock	7,500,000	1,000,000
Total market value	$60,875,000	$50,125,000
Cost securities to syndicate	50,000,000	50,000,000
Profits	$10,875,000	$ 125,000

Last year's high prices represented a market value of 121¾ on the syndicate securities.

Bonds May Be Worth Only 75.

But while the 4½ per cent bonds are quoted at 97½, that is nominal price merely. The bonds are pooled and none of them come on the market. It appears that some venturesome bears undertook to sell these bonds on a 90 day option and when the time came to make delivery they could not secure the paper. Some time ago a stray bond was sold on the New York curb market at 75, and this was considered at the time a trick to dislodge other holdings if possible. But even if it were a trick the prices of Mercantile Marine bonds in a free market would hardly be above 75, based on prices of other industrial bonds whose stocks sell at relatively such figures as those of the Mercantile Marine.

On the basis of 75 for the bonds the showing makes the Morgan syndicate a loser by $11,125,000. Taking the stocks at the prices given above and the bonds at 75 instead of 97½, and the following market values result:

Bonds	$37,500,000
Preferred stock	375,000
Common stock	1,000,000
Total market value	$38,875,000
Cost to syndicate	50,000,000
Loss in market value	$11,125,000

At the last noted prices the investment of the underwriting syndicate stands at 77¾, against the price of par paid. The value of the same securities taken at the high of last year and the low at present on a basis of 75 for the bonds, shows a decline from 121¾ to 77¾, or a shrinkage of 44 points in market value.

The total capitalization of the company of $50,000,000 bonds, $48,000,000 of common stock, and $52,000,000 of preferred stock at the high prices of last year had a market value of $104,900,000. At last week's quotations the market value of the company's entire capitalization was $58,470,000; shrinkage $46,430,000. If a market value of 75 be taken for the bonds there is an additional shrinkage of $11,250,000, which would make the loss in market values since last year $57,680,000.

Bank Statement.

The bank statement on Saturday was not such as to afford a motive for either buying or selling in the stock market. There was a good gain in deposits, counterbalanced by the small decrease in excess reserve and an increase of $5,166,000 in loans. The cash gain was $1,215,100.

Compared with last year the excess reserve is $11,000,000 greater. The New York banks are much better off, therefore, than this time last year, when their surplus reserve was $9,742,775. Their deposits, however, are $15,800,000 less than they were then and loans are $13,000,000 greater. But with the generally good condition of the country institutions the banks may be considered in a fair position to meet the fall money requirements. The figures follow:

Loans, increased	5,166,600
Specie, increased	818,700
Legals, increased	386,400
Deposits, increased	6,341,900
Circulation, decreased	49,600

	Aug. 29, 1903.	Aug. 30, 1902.	Aug. 31, 1901.
Loans	$923,111,500	$910,040,000	$895,180,600
Deposits	920,123,900	937,288,500	968,121,900
Circulation	43,918,400	32,935,100	30,097,400
Specie	174,997,900	167,427,000	176,791,400
Legals	75,711,000	76,315,400	77,159,000
Reserve held	$250,708,900	$243,742,400	$253,950,400
Reserve required	230,030,975	733,999,625	242,030,475
Surplus reserve	$ 20,677,925	$ 9,742,775	$ 11,919,925

Colorado Springs Mining Notes.

Outside properties in the Cripple Creek district are still claiming the attention of mining men, and the boundaries of the producing area of the camp are being gradually extended. Some New York capitalists are driving a tunnel from the east side of Trachyte mountain, which is some five miles northeast of the Cripple Creek district proper. The bore has already been extended a distance of 1,200 feet. It is the belief of the men interested that they will come into some good ore when they get under the summit of the mountain. A fine outcrop appears at the crest of the mountain and the tunnel is being driven to get the vein at depth. A lessee on the Cayuga claim, also on Trachyte mountain, has driven a tunnel in fifty feet, and has already cut two good veins. Assays give returns of from $4 to $8 per ton, which will pay well if the ore is treated by the cyanide process.

The Ingham cyanide mill has found it necessary to increase the capacity of the plant. Larger elevators and additional machinery are being installed. Although the plant has been running but two weeks, it has turned out one large gold brick. The Globe cyanide mill is also treating a good daily tonnage of ore.

The Old Gold company property on Beacon hill is making an enviable record and bids fair to soon equal the record of the C. K. & N. in the same locality. Sample tests have just been made from the core of the large vein disclosed in the property, and the rock gave returns of from $728 to $1,740 per ton in gold.

The lessees on a portion of the Doctor-Jack Pot property last week marketed a car of ore which returned them $2,300. Sixteen sets of lessees are at work on the Doctor property, and the majority of them are making considerable money. The indications are that the cyanide mill of the Sioux Falls and Cripple Creek company on Copper mountain will be placed in commission the first part of September. A large amount of ore has been blocked-out, the treatment of which will be commenced immediately after the mill is completed.

Wholesale Lines Active.

General trade conditions, as reported by leading wholesale distributers and dealers, have shown material improvement within the last week. The improvement has been more in the direction of a quickening of inquiry and general fall revival of activity on the part of intending buyers than in the actual gain in business closed. Nevertheless the increase in actual business has been encouraging all along the line, no important branch being entirely free from it. In the general merchandise branches the attendance of visiting retail dealers has been increasing steadily and purchases gaining in the same ratio.

Dealers in paints and oils report the closing of the most prosperous summer season that they have ever experienced and they are looking forward to an equally good showing for the fall trade. The latter predictions are based on the orders that are already pouring in from the road salesmen. These promise to keep the paint grinders busy until the beginning of the time for preparing for spring business.

Inquiries that have been coming in to local wholesale lumber dealers indicate there is a sharp increase ahead, probably dating from about the close of vacation time or the opening week in September. In fact, the last week has shown a fair increase in trade over the rather moderate volume previously prevailing. The tone of the letters from retailers indicates a better crop outlook generally in the corn states and a little fear regarding car shortage to delay late shipments of lumber. In fact, this shortage is already apparent in the shipping of yellow pine from the southern mills. Prices are firm for northern pine lumber and hardwoods and steadier for southern pine.

Storage of Coal.

Coal men are still trying to form an estimate upon the force of the storage movement which has been in progress for a month or two and which is still the leading part of the present trade. Perhaps never before has the storage of coal been carried on so extensively as this summer. The coal sellers are beginning to inquire among themselves whether the practice is to interfere the coming winter with the usual volume of trade. Of course, it is impossible for any considerable portion of the total winter's consumption to be accumulated in midsummer, but, looking at the size of some stock piles and judging from the tonnage statements of large shippers, the total movement of this kind has been large, and an appreciable effect is likely to be produced.

Look for Cheaper Pig Iron.

In its weekly review of the iron and steel trades the Iron and Machinery World says:

"Western foundrymen have shown no greater disposition to contract for pig iron in larger quantities or for longer periods since the cut in prices last week than they did prior to that announcement. The only effect noticeable is an increase in the number of small buyers, the majority of whom have bought sufficient iron to cover their requirements thirty to sixty days ahead. The big buyers are expecting still lower prices to rule before the bottom of the market is reached, and to substantiate their opinions cite reports of offerings on the basis of $11.50 and $11.75, Birmingham, made by furnaces outside the association.

"The outlook from the seller's standpoint, however, is decidedly more encouraging, and with the commencement of September it is believed a healthier and more vigorous buying movement will set in. The buying of steel bars continues active, inquiries aggregating 20,000 tons having been received by one producer during the week under review. Many rumors are afloat regarding the order for steel bars of the leading agricultural implement manufacturer, which reports put at 40,000 to 50,000 tons. It cannot be learned definitely that this has been placed, parties who ought to know varying in their statements.

"Bar iron is weak and selling only in small lots. Much competition exists for the business offered, sales of small lots having been made at 1.55c Chicago, $1 a ton less than the week previous. Railroads continue active purchasers of rails and track supplies, and there has been a good sized tonnage in plates placed with plate mills. Merchant pipe and tubes are also active, a contract for 6,000 tons of these products having been closed with the International Harvester company. Sheets, billets, merchant steel, and structural steel are quiet. Scrap is also weaker, prices having been reduced from $1 to $1.50 a ton."

RAIN A FACTOR IN WHEAT.

PRICE ADVANCED BY CHECK TO NORTHWEST HARVEST.

Gain Is Small, However, and Not All Held, the Fear of More Liberal Marketing of Wheat in the Near Future and the Indifferent Export Demand Inclining Traders to Sell—Oats Liable to Injury by Heavy Rains—Other Markets.

The monotony of waiting for the movement of wheat to primary markets to increase or for the export demand to show unmistakable signs of improving, was varied last week by showers in the northwest, which continued for several days, threatening injury to the quality of the spring wheat crop and delay in thrashing which would in consequence result in further delay in the movement. The rains furnished enough encouragement to the bulls and caused enough uneasiness among shorts to bring about a rally of about 2c from the close of the previous week, but before it stopped raining in the northwest, and, in fact, while the rains were still continuing and the precipitation was most severe, there was heavy profit taking by southwestern and local longs and half the advance was lost.

The moderate gain was not easy to maintain for the reason the speculative trade continues narrow in character and moderate in volume. The general outside public, "the country," as the trade phrase is, displays a decided indifference to the course of prices in the wheat market and manifests no disposition to give the bull operators a helping hand in bolstering up prices. The professionals themselves are only too glad to secure small scalping profits. There is a good deal heard of the disposition of farmers to hold their wheat, particularly in the red wheat belt, where the yield was lightest and the quality fine. The trade hears constantly of this or that association of farmers organized to hold wheat for the dollar price, and a charter was issued in Oklahoma last week for a new company, which is said to include 1,500 wheat growers, with the declared object, in view of accumulating as many dollars as they have bushels of wheat.

Look for Larger Movement.

But in spite of this attitude of a few of the farmers, the movement of hard winter wheat in the southwest has shown some increase, and there is hope, or fear, according to the point of view of the market operator, the movement of spring wheat to the northwest markets will show a decided increase in a short time, regardless of weather conditions, and so, although the movement has increased but slightly, and is still much smaller than for the corresponding period either last year or two years ago, there is so much expectation of an increase in the near future that the market advances, as noted, have been small and not too well held.

England has had bad weather for part of the week, but there were signs of its clearing towards the close, and part of the early advance in the English markets was lost, in spite of the estimate of an English statistician that the crop in that country would be 10,000,000 bu less than that of last year and 13,000,000 bu less than the average of the last five years. The weather in France, on the other hand, has been favorable for harvest, and there have been sharp declines in the Paris market.

The export demand has been moderate and the wheat is not going out of the country nearly as fast as last year, exports for last week as well as for the week before being more than 2,000,000 bu smaller than for the corresponding week last year. Since the first of July exports have been 25,078,000 bu, compared with 38,382,000 bu the corresponding period last year. At this rate of outgo Europe would not take more than 151,000,000 bu from this country during the year, although other English statisticians tell us the importing countries of Europe will have to have 200,000,000 bu from the United States. The backwardness of European buyers in taking hold of the market at current prices is a consideration which makes the professional operator cautious. Wheat stocks are low at all points of accumulation; flour stocks are low and the demand for both flour and wheat will probably be good enough to keep stocks from increasing much for some time, even if the movement should become larger.

Improvement in Corn.

General reports of improvement in the corn crop, particularly in the south and the southwest, have been the main consideration in that market, and prices have tended lower in spite of occasional reactions, either on a good shipping demand developing on the breaks, which has taken corn out faster than it has been coming in, or on heavy rains through the west, with the threat of cooler temperatures, which have caused some uneasiness on the part of shorts. But the rains probably have done more good than harm, as they have been liberal in those sections of Ohio and Indiana where there had been some complaint of drought. As the precipitation ran from two inches to eight or ten inches, there is not likely to be another drought scare on this crop. The theory is still held by some with more or less confidence that the crop is so backward it will be impossible to secure better than three-fourths of an average yield, even without early frosts, and that this prospect would be cut down with frosts in September. The danger of frost and of serious damage from that cause is kept in mind, but when the weather is warm this danger seems remote and has not been much of a bar to liquidation or short selling.

Firmness in Oats.

Oats have kept firm in spite of continued heavy selling by the leading local long interest. This selling has been really the main factor in the market, and has been of such volume as to indicate either that the line was much larger than generally supposed or that the holders have got over on the short side of the market. The pit has an idea the Howe selling has aggregated fully 8,000,000 bu. The heavy rains through Illinois, Iowa, and Nebraska—rains which are assumed to have done considerable damage to oats in shock, which will impair quality and delay movement—is a bullish factor, and there has been buying on the strength of the short crop and the light weight. The country has been selling cash oats sparingly and cash prices have advanced 1@2c, while the futures have been barely holding steady, except for the September.

There have been moderate declines in all hog products for the week except September lard. A considerable increase in the export sales of lard, these amounting in one day to 18,000 tcs, and indications the big longs were arranging to take in and pay for the large stock of lard in this market, estimated now at 90,000 tcs, caused shorts some uneasiness, and there has been considerable covering of September. The claim that the large sales abroad are at a considerable sacrifice and that lard is so high in this market that it is being shipped here and will continue to be shipped here from eastern as well as from western markets have not encouraged the shorts to stand out, but it is the general belief in the trade that the speculative short interest is not large and most of the September sales will be filled by deliveries of lard, if prices in this market are sustained above other domestic markets, as is claimed to be the case at present.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKETS

Cattle and Sheep Quotations Merely Nominal—Liberal Runs Expected Today.

About the usual run of stock arrived for Saturday's market, including 200 cattle, 8,000 hogs, and 2,000 sheep. The markets for cattle and sheep were merely nominal and furnished no criterion on which to judge the market for the future. Hogs opened steady on good kinds, slow on packers, and 10c to 15c lower on the latter kinds.

General conditions of the cattle and hog trade were such last week as to naturally draw out liberal runs today, but the heavy rains throughout the country and consequent washouts on railroads will perhaps curtail arrivals.

Estimates among the trade on today's receipts differ widely, some placing cattle as low as 19,000, others as high as 26,000. Normally, under the conditions of the market prevailing, and with western rangers on the move, the number would approach 30,000. Estimates on hogs are from 25,000 to 35,000, but a run of 30,000 would prove about normal.

The following is a statement of the movement of live stock at the Chicago stockyards for the period indicated, with comparative figures. Saturday's receipts and shipments are estimated:

Cattle.

The market for cattle was nothing more than a nominal affair, confined to a few holdovers that were worked out at steady prices. Conditions of the market at the close of the week indicated about the following quotations:

Fancy steers	$5.50@6.00
Choice to good steers	5.15@5.40
Fair to good steers	4.60@5.30
Common to fair steers	3.80@4.70
Choice cows and heifers	3.75@4.50
Good to choice cows and heifers	3.00@3.50
Fair cows and heifers	2.75@3.00
Cutters	2.50@2.80
Canners	1.75@2.75
Stags	3.75@4.75
Good to choice bulls	3.75@4.25
Common to fair bologna bulls	2.75@3.40
Good to choice stockers and feeders	4.00@4.30
Medium stockers and feeders	3.25@3.75
Inferior stockers and feeders	2.50@3.00
Choice calves, 100@150 lbs	6.25@6.75
Common to choice calves, 175@400 lbs	3.00@5.50

Hogs.

The receipts of hogs were light, though about what has been coming on Saturdays of late, with a good eastern demand, and the small offerings of good to prime hogs weighing 240 lbs up that would suit this demand went at steady to strong prices, with prime 300 lb averages going at $5.75, and choice 250 lb weights making $5.82½, which are the highest prices of the week on these kinds. In the packing trade, however, the demand was of slack character, and while the bulk of hogs sold steady to a shade easier the late sales showed fully 10@15c decline from the average prices of the previous day. Lightweights were steady to strong. Pigs were lower.

Good to choice, 245@400 lbs	$5.50@5.73
Common to good, 245@440 lbs	5.10@5.50
Good to prime, 190@235 lbs	5.75@6.00
Assorted light, 150@180 lbs	6.00@6.15
Mixed, 200@245 lbs	5.15@5.55
Light mixed, 200@245 lbs	5.65@5.95
Pigs	5.25@6.20

Sheep.

There was no trading in the sheephouse of any consequence. Prices at the close of the week stood about as follows:

Good wethers	$3.25@3.70
Fair to choice ewes	3.00@3.25
Fair to good ewes	2.75@3.30
Good to choice lambs	5.00@5.75
Fair to good lambs	4.50@5.00
Common lambs	3.75@4.25
Good to choice bucks	2.00@2.50
Feeding sheep	3.00@3.40
Feeding lambs	4.20@4.40

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Despite the unfavorable weather, buyers of dry goods have shown increased disposition to operate for immediate requirements. With reference to sellers, there is an increased firmness on practically all lines which are growing more difficult to obtain on schedule time. The scarcity of many qualities is becoming a more potent factor, and predictions are growing more numerous that it will be increasingly difficult to obtain merchandise in the next few weeks.

Coffee—Futures quiet, net unchanged to 5 points lower. Sales were 3,000 bags, including September at 3.75c and May at 4.70c. Spot Rio quiet; No. 7 invoice, 5⅛c; mild quiet; Cordova, 7@11c.

NO ACTIVITY IN MARKET.

DULLNESS IS PRIME CHARACTERISTIC OF WALL STREET.

Even Range of Professional Dealings Lacks Interest — Last Week Establishes Record of Stagnation — Absence of Weakness and Liquidation Is Noted, However—Attributed to Leaven of Conservatism—Better Inquiry for High Class Bonds.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Dullness, consistent and unrelieved, was the prime characteristic of last week's trading in the stock market. Even the most ardent conservative, who deprecates speculative activity because of its possible effect on the money situation this fall could find no fault with the net result of the dealings.

The market was in fact absolutely stagnant, wholly professional, and decidedly uninteresting. Prices moved within a narrow range, even the operations of trade in squeezing profits out of fractions lacked zest. The factors, whether adverse or favorable, counted for little, and no influence, however potent, seemed to be able to galvanize into activity the speculative or the contingent outside interests.

It is a question if the week did not actually establish a new record in the way of inactivity, and it is evident that in such a market there could be few incidents of interest. The tone of the trading has been practically indefinable, traders finding nothing to call for a definite position in the market, but inclining in the main to a more cheerful view. A certain stability was manifested by the general list and there was an entire absence of liquidation or other disquieting symptoms of speculative weakness.

It is not possible to ignore the fact that there is growing confidence in the future of the market, but it is equally evident that the leaven of conservatism tends to keep it within bounds without weakening its general effectiveness. Each week brings the speculative community into a better position to judge for itself of the manner in which those influences are potent in the market.

There is a saying that a strong, active stock market invariably is preceded by a healthy tone and active trading in the bond market, and the appearance of investment buying of high grade securities. Whether this be true or not, the situation in the bond market is a valuable index to general conditions. This is by all odds the dullest month in each year, because so many of those who purchase bonds are out of town or are not anxious to bother with business, but even now there is a better inquiry for high class investment bonds than has been seen for some time. The demand is particularly for high class underlying bonds, paying good rates of interest. Low rate bonds are not in such obvious demand. Even if the exchange market has not reflected it, Europe has been a heavy buyer of our bonds, which fact can be easily attested. Conservatism has returned to those who strayed to speculative fields and again they are making inquiries for high class bonds.

HAS NEW CURE FOR DEAFNESS.

Dr. J. H. Forrest of Indiana Health Board Successfully Applies Finsen Rays.

Marion, Ind., Aug. 30.—Dr. J. H. Forrest, ex-president of the state health board, has demonstrated to his satisfaction that deafness in many forms can be cured by the use of the Finsen rays. He announces that he has successfully experimented on himself, a deaf girl, aged 17, and a boy. The girl had been deaf since birth and the boy for three years. The apparatus used by Dr. Forrest is a modification of the Finsen apparatus, the rays being induced from static electricity.

TRADE SLOW IN LONDON.

TROUBLES IN THE BALKANS HURT THE STOCK MARKETS.

England Will in the Next Few Months Have to Pay $45,000,000 in Redemption of Netherlands Railway Securities, Which Is Factor Unfavorable to Recovery in Prices—Money Likely to Advance and No Revival Is Expected Before Next Year.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Sluggishness has been a characteristic of the market this week. This is ascribed to recent events and the large increase in loans of the associated banks caused much disappointment, as it had been hoped the banks would have considerably added to the surplus reserves before the autumn outflow of cash came.

What has had a more important weight upon the market here has been the revolution in Macedonia and the reported assassination of the American vice consul at Beirut. The Statist thinks that until the situation in Macedonia is more assured than it is at present a disposition to act cautiously will continue.

There is, indeed, little prospect of any pronounced improvement in prices for some time to come. The fact that London, during the next few months, will have to pay some $45,000,000 to the continent in redemption of Netherlands railways securities would alone be a factor unfavorable to a recovery of prices in this market, and when this money has been found by those who subscribed for the new loan and who probably will have to sell other securities to make payment, it is evident there will be little improvement in the markets.

But beyond these factors is the prospect that money in London will continue to advance in value. In short, the most that can be predicted by the financial papers is that no further decline will take place, although some already see better times coming next year, when, the government losses having been concluded and a large amount of the debt redeemed, the prices of British securities are likely to advance appreciably.

One curious effect of the depressing times in Capel court is the fact that where a year ago many young Englishmen on the stock exchange used to frequent expensive restaurants and little dinner parties were the order of the evening, just now the grillrooms are more popular, and one sees many solitary diners.

The surplus of money this week has been plentiful, and rarely has more than ½ per cent been obtained for loans for a day. Better rates have been obtainable for weekly fixtures in view of the payment of $10,000,000 of treasury bills and of the end of the month's demand, but short loans usually have been obtainable at 2 per cent. The comparatively high rate at which six months' treasury bills were placed, nearly 3⅜ per cent on the average, tended to strengthen the market for long bills. Consols fluctuated within narrow limits, but became a little weaker towards the end, and show a fractional fall, compared with last week. The traffic returns of the railways are not encouraging, bad weather evidently having an adverse effect on the holiday and excursion receipts. Prices, however, are low and the settlement disclosed a healthy condition of the market, stock being in several cases in short supply.

"The belief is growing all over Europe," says the Statist, "that the worst is over in New York. There may be other breaks, of course, in stocks, and they may fall lower than they are. There may even be some failures, but the impression grows stronger every day that the worst is known. Consequently there is good buying of American securities both on the British and German account. It is not upon a large scale, but it is sufficient to strengthen the market and give America an additional control of the European money markets."

"The rejection of the Panama canal treaty by the half breed congress of Colombia," says the Daily Mail, "is having some peculiar effects, both in the states and in London. It has helped a recent rally in Pacific railroad stocks and this effect was so immediate and obvious as to have suggested the legislation of an adverse vote at Bogota. A second effect has been the sudden rally in all securities connected with the rival Nicaraguan scheme."

Rumors were current that both French and English capital again is being lent in New York, and the report published here that Secretary of the Treasury Shaw had set aside $40,000,000 to be immediately available in case of emergency in the money market there has attracted considerable attention.

PLANS WAR ON TRUSTS HERE.

People's National Protective Association of Roseville Preparing for a Campaign in Chicago.

Trusts operating in Chicago must face a "relentless war" to be waged against them by the People's National Protective association, which is preparing to organize residents of this city and pledge them to boycott all products of the trusts.

This statement is made by M. Barry, one of the orators of the association, which is incorporated, with headquarters at Roseville, Ill. Delos P. Phelps, former subtreasurer of the United States, is said to be the only Chicago man who assisted in organizing the body.

"The association was started a year ago by business men who believe combinations formed for the purpose of killing trade must be controlled," said Mr. Barry. "For the last two months we have been attempting to stir up the whole country. We have branches in twelve states and expect to have 2,000,000 members within a year. We hope many of these will live in Chicago."

CHARGES TRICKS TO LAWMAKERS.

Hoyt King Speaks in All Souls' Church of Business at Springfield.

GOOD BILLS HINDERED.

Blackmailing Measures, He Says, Have Smooth Path Up to Final Vote.

"How not to do it, and at the same time keep the public uninformed as to how it was not done," was the motto of the last legislature, says Hoyt King.

He spoke yesterday from the pulpit of All Souls' church, giving a review of the work of the general assembly, and in conclusion telling what the Legislative Voters' league, the Municipal Voters' league, and the Citizens' association are doing for reform.

In opening Mr. King repeated the story of how the civil service bill was killed by reference to hostile committees and by loading it down with impossible amendments. The local option bill's similar fate was then described.

Easier for Blackmailing Bills.

"But compare the fate of the civil service and local option bills with the fate of some of the well known blackmailing measures," continued the speaker. "They met none of the obstacles so easily placed in the way of broad, constructive legislation. The victims of such bills are surface, elevated, and steam railroads, insurance, text book, trust, gas, express, and baking powder companies, liquor dealers and distilleries, foreign corporations, banks, department stores.

"On their face they proposed to correct some evil, abolish some illegal pursuit, or remove some oppression by corporations. Public sentiment is seized upon to bring down 'protection money.' And year after year these bills do not pass, and seldom reach a roll call. No one except their sponsors displays much interest in them. If such bills reach a roll call you may be sure they fail of their real purpose.

Committees High Handed.

"Most such bills were sent to the committees on municipal corporations, corporations, railroads, and license, and halted there in the expectation of being put to sleep. The proceedings of these committees were conducted without regard to parliamentary rules or a sense of fair play. In these committees hold-up measures were killed, postponed, or reported out to suit the convenience of their sponsors. When sent to the house, through the cowardice or friendliness of a complacent speaker, they were juggled on the floor to positions of vantage that were intended to scare the financial interests affected. Yet in the few instances when such bills came to a final vote they were killed promptly by the honest majority."

Course of Telegraph Bill.

As a sample of such measures he spoke of the telegraph bill as follows:

"It was entitled a 'bill for an act to prevent telegraph and telephone lines being used to promote gambling.' A more lucid title would have been 'a bill to reduce the revenue of telegraph companies by prohibiting them from communicating dispatches to bucket shops and poolrooms.'

"Every one knew the passage of the bill would not affect poolrooms or bucket shops, for the reason that they could get their dispatches from outside the state. The bill was greeted with a smile of recognition, for under various other titles the telegraph companies had appeared in bills as victims with some regularity from year to year.

"In committee the agent of the Western Union clearly explained the futility of attempting to stop gambling by such indirect means. The police can stop such things in twenty-four hours under present laws.

Drunken Committeeman Ignored.

"One member of the committee was drunk. He wanted to postpone consideration so he could study the bill. No attention was paid to him. The bill was voted out almost unanimously. The drunken member and one decent member opposed it. It was read a first time in the house, made a special order for second reading, read a second time, and sent to third reading in eight days. A motion to refer it to the judiciary committee, a decent committee, was defeated. A clear majority of the house, while not particularly interested in the bill, clearly did not favor it. For over a month this bill held a threatening position on the calendar.

"It was finally defeated because honest members had no faith in the motives of its sponsors."

Notwithstanding all this, Mr. King said, the legislature included in its membership many good men and some of great ability and thorough independence.

EASY TO PRETEND RELIGION.

True Test of a Christian Not in Outward Forms, Says the Rev. L. A. Crandall.

"The Test of a Christian" was the topic of the Rev. L. A. Crandall's sermon in Memorial Baptist church yesterday.

"The test which Paul proposes," he said, "is not for detective purposes, that we may flash the light in the faces of our neighbors, but for personal use, that we may know ourselves. It is easy to be a nominal Christian, for a profession will accomplish that. It is difficult to be a real one, for that involves a right heart. The warning which Paul gives is made important by our constant tendency to trust in outward forms rather than in the attitude of the soul. Many people are ready to unite with a church who are far from willing to love their neighbors as themselves. It is one thing to confess that we are sinners and quite another to forsake our sins.

"Paul declares that no one is a Christian who has not the spirit of Christ. This is the ultimate and supreme test. Forms and ceremonies and religious rites have their place and value, but they cannot constitute one a Christian. They may be assumed, while the heart is full of selfishness and sin.

"It is not enough to assert that we have the spirit of Christ. That is cheap and useless. If we have in us the mind that was in Christ we cannot hide it if we would. The temper of Jesus revealed itself through absolute obedience, perfect unselfishness, universal and constant love. The man who refuses to obey God, who ignores the happiness and welfare of others, who fails to enthrone love in his heart, may bear the name of Christian, but he has no right to it."

PULPIT PRAISE FOR PRESIDENT.

Dr. J. P. Brushingham and the Rev. G. D. Cleworth Speak of Situation in Turkey.

In his sermon at the First Methodist church yesterday Dr. J. P. Brushingham spoke of the situation in Turkey. He expressed great confidence in the president, and said he believed that the republic would make itself felt in the present crisis with statesmanlike energy and discreet wisdom.

"American life and property will be protected and the flag respected in the Celestial or Ottoman empire; yes, in every spot upon this round earth," he said.

In his "quarterly rally" sermon to the Gideons in the Open church the Rev. G. D. Cleworth made a reference to the situation in Turkey.

"When Gideon lost 22,000 fearful men," said Mr. Cleworth, "there was no reduction in his army. The noble 300 with which he ultimately conquered were minute men, like those farmers who grabbed their muskets and fired at Lexington. And such men are the need of this hour. We have one as president, who acted on the instant last week and sent our war vessels to thunder at the doors of Turkey."

PRIEST DIES IN LA GRANGE.

THE REV. JAMES M. HAGAN

The Rev. James M. Hagan of St. Francis Xavier's Roman Catholic church in La Grange died at his residence yesterday morning.

Father Hagan was born in Missouri on Nov. 12, 1853, and received his education at Georgetown college and at the University of Innsbruck, Tyrol, Austria. He was ordained on July 4, 1880, by Bishop Leiss of Bilxen, and then entered the diocese of Chicago. Father Hagan served one year as assistant at the Church of the Nativity, Thirty-seventh and Halsted streets, when he was transferred to St. Columbkill's church, Paulina street and Grand avenue. In 1885 he became pastor of St. Mary's church, Maple Park, Ill., and in 1889 he was appointed to a pastorate in La Grange, where he established and built the Church of St. Francis Xavier. Father Hagan was a noted temperance lecturer, and one of the best known clergymen in the diocese of Chicago.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning from the late residence. Burial will be in Mount Carmel. A solemn pontifical mass of requiem will be celebrated at 10 o'clock tomorrow by Archbishop Quigley.

Father Hagan's resemblance to William Jennings Bryan often caused him to be mistaken for the Nebraskan.

DEDICATES NEW CHURCH.

ARCHBISHOP AT OPENING OF ITALIAN PARISH EDIFICE.

Parade of Societies to the Structure, Which Stands at Grand Avenue and Peoria Streets, Precedes the Mass and a Banquet Follows—Father Rabertaccio Celebrant, Being Assisted by Father Moreschini and Other Priests of the Diocese.

After a parade yesterday morning of Italian societies to the new Roman Catholic church of Maria Addolorata the edifice was dedicated by Archbishop Quigley.

Solemn high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Rabertaccio. Father Thomas Moreschini was deacon and Father Mueller master of ceremonies.

The parade with which the day's celebration began was managed by Joseph Albano, marshal, assisted by Nicolas Maggio and John Cavaniaro. It formed at Twelfth and Halsted streets, marched north to Grand avenue, and thence west to Peoria street, where the church stands. When the societies had entered the church the arrival of the archbishop and the visiting clergy was announced, and the archbishop's suite was met by 100 children dressed in white, who strewed the way with roses. The line of priests reached the church at 11 o'clock, and then mass was celebrated.

Volunteer Orchestra Takes Part.

The music of the mass was rendered by an orchestra composed of the leading Italian musicians of the city, all of whom had volunteered their services; by a quartet, and a chorus choir of fifty. Orchestra and choir were under the direction of M. Salemme.

Taking part in the mass were Archbishop Quigley, Father Mueller, secretary of the archbishop; Chancellor Barry, Father Pitelo of Melrose Park, and Father d'Ercole, pastor of the new church. An address was delivered by Father d'Ercole, outlining the work intended to be done in the parish during the coming year. After services the clergy, lay officers of the parish, and others repaired to the rooms on the first floor of the church, where a banquet was given in honor of the archbishop. During the dinner a musical program was performed by the soloists who had assisted at the mass.

Laymen at the Banquet.

The parade was composed of the following societies, marching in the order named: Societi Queen Margarita of Savoy, Societi Victor Emmanuel I., Calvalese, Albano di Lancunia, St. Nicolas di Bari, La Pieta, de la Dolorata, della Arti i Professioni.

CHURCH A DIVINE AMBASSADOR.

This Represents Its Principal Business, Says the Rev. Pearse Pinch in Forestville Church.

"We are ambassadors of Christ" expresses the business of the church, said the Rev. Pearse Pinch in his sermon at Forestville church yesterday.

"The business is more momentous than any other," he continued. "In asserting the dignity of this ambassadorship I am not pleading for any of that false and formal and freezing dignity that can turn a church into a refrigerator. I mean the dignity that knows its right to speak and cannot be shamed out of it.

"A true ambassador has no other business. There is no other proper business in this world but to get life reconciled and adjusted to the infinite and almighty God. Jesus taught definitely that we are not to hold our possessions as owners, but only as stewards. The only real business of life here is in getting ready to live forever. There is nothing this busy, rushing generation so much needs to learn. There is nothing that would so help men to be sane and wholesome in the life that now is."

CHRISTIAN WORK THEIR THEME.

Members of Alliance Open Convention Which Will Continue Through the Week.

The Christian and Missionary alliance opened its seventh convention in the Gospel tabernacle yesterday. The church in St. Louis avenue was filled with delegates from Chicago and the northwest when the Rev. W. H. Chandler of Wheaton preached the opening sermon. The session will last through the week and will be held in Willard hall. Prayer service will continue from 9 to 10 a. m. daily and bible studies will follow until noon. Missionary addresses will occupy attention from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. and inquiry meetings will end the afternoon session at 5:30 o'clock. Song service will open the evening sessions at 7:30 o'clock, and addresses will end at 9:15 o'clock. Stereopticon views of mission fields will be presented each evening by returned missionaries. The founder, the Rev. A. B. Simpson of New York, will be among the speakers, of whom there are more than a score.

ERIN'S SONS AT A PICNIC.

CHICAGO'S IRISH PEOPLE MAKE MERRY IN A GROVE.

Ancient Order of Hibernians Has Its Annual Outing—Women Join in the Athletic Contests and Visitors Recall Memories of Land Across the Ocean—Two United After Forty-five Years—Reels and Clogs Danced by the Older Persons.

Irish men and women of Chicago made merry at Gardner's grove yesterday, dancing to tunes brought across the sea and dear to the Celtic heart. It was the annual picnic of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Cook county, and the attendance was large, although threatening weather kept many from the grounds at One Hundred and Twenty-third street and Michigan avenue.

Women in Athletic Contests.

A baseball game was scheduled for the afternoon, but as some of the players were absent the game was called off. Races were run by young and old. The free-for-all race for young women was won by Ella McDermott, 15 Edgemont avenue, who is 19 years old.

The other races, prizes, and winners were:

First race, girls between ages of 10 and 12 years—Clara Heins, first prize, pair of shoes; Anna Hoy, second prize, box of candy.

Second race, boys between ages of 10 and 12—James McBride, first, baseball and bat; John Brown, second, catching glove.

Third race, girls between ages of 12 and 16—Margaret Fitzpatrick, first, pair of shoes; Nellie Fay, second, pair of gloves.

Fourth race, boys between ages of 12 and 16—Jerry Keefe, first, set of boxing gloves; Joe Curtis, second, woolen sweater.

Fifth race, young women—Ella McDermott, first, parasol; Mamie O'Leary, second, silk fan.

Sixth race, young men—T. Wittenberg, first, pipe; John Clifford, second, amber cigar holder.

Seventh race, married women—Mrs. M. Cruden, first, pair of shoes; Mrs. McDermott, second, silk parasol.

Eighth race, fat men, more than 200 pounds—J. J. Fitzgerald, first, box of cigars; M. Tobin, second, blackthorn cane.

Meets Friend of Boyhood.

Many old acquaintances were renewed, and one elderly man wept when he saw a boyhood friend. They had not seen each other since they separated forty-five years ago in Ireland.

While the older visitors danced the old Irish reels and clogs, the younger persons danced to the more modern music.

Speeches were made by State Organizer J. O'Hare and F. T. Monahan.

Part of the proceeds obtained from the picnic are to be given to a fund for an Emmet memorial building in the downtown district.

POLITICAL PICNIC A FAILURE.

Few of Burke's County Democracy Go to Milwaukee in the Bad Weather.

Bad weather made the County Democracy's excursion to Milwaukee yesterday almost a failure. The morning was gloomy and cold and word came from the Wisconsin city that it was raining there, so less than 100 of Robert E. Burke's braves made the trip. They went on the Christopher Columbus, but the majority came back by train.

The lake was so rough that few of the passengers enjoyed the ride. The boat arrived more than an hour late and remained there only thirty-five minutes. The democrats made no attempt to carry out their program. The parade and trolley ride were abandoned and nobody visited the park.

Mr. Burke remained at home and disappointed a number of Milwaukee's democrats, who wanted to see him. Vincent H. Perkins and Thomas Gallagher of the school board comprised the list of big chiefs who braved the elements.

Mayor Rose was ready to welcome the visitors, and Mr. Perkins assured the men there would be "no politics in this trip," but he consoled them by promising a junket to Denver.

BIDS FAREWELL TO METHODISM

Frank C. Sherman, Who Is to Join the Episcopal Faith, Preaches in St. Luke's Church.

The Rev. Frank C. Sherman, who expects this week to leave the Methodist church preparatory to entering the Episcopal faith, preached last evening in St. Luke's Methodist church. He said in part:

"Men differ from each other, not so much in their achievements as in their dominating life purposes. The most vital, the most searching question that can be asked concerning a man is not what is he accomplishing, but rather what is he trying to accomplish. Let no man be judged by what he does, but only by what he attempts to do.

"The greatest talent, that which means most to the world, is that of giving lofty ideals to men. Great men are they whose words and life shame us out of our ease and lethargy, and stimulate us on to a higher goal. Such a one has Jesus Christ been to the generations. He was the greatest teacher because he gave the highest ideal of human life; he was the greatest man, because he only of the sons of men realized his ideal."

ENTHUSIASM IN PEWS NEEDED.

Dr. L. L. Henson Says Men Should Become Interested in Religion Just as in Baseball or Golf.

People ought to be as enthusiastic over religion as they become over baseball and other sports, according to the statement of the Rev. L. L. Henson of Providence, R. I., who preached yesterday morning at the First Baptist church.

"Men get enthusiastic over golf and baseball and business. Why should we not get a little enthusiasm and interest into our religion? We do not want ice in the pulpit. Everybody admits that. But we do not want refrigerators in the pews, either. We must have zeal and enthusiasm if we are to be used of God in saving souls.

"Religion is not a lifeboat into which we climb in order to be saved. It is rather a life saving station, where each one who is taken in helps man the lifeboat to go out and help others."

TO THE PUBLIC.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

Ignorance has always maligned but never injured progress, hence the foolish ranting of the weakling.

Remarkable Results Obtained by Mrs. Lena A. White's Voice Shorthand System.

1,600 students graduated in the last three years at White's College of Shorthand. All of these students graduated in less than forty days after enrollment, and were immediately placed, permanently and successfully, in the best positions Chicago offers to expert stenographers.

Business Men Best Judges. Mrs. Lena A. White Secures Business Men's Gratitude.

1,600 of Chicago's most successful business men are today blessing Mrs. Lena A. White's inventive genius, in having revolutionized all forms of fossilized shorthand, typewriting, and inferior instruction in English, universally used in those so-called Business Colleges and Shorthand Schools, whose only recommendation is age.

Does More Than She Advertises to Do.

Mrs. Lena A. White guarantees to make you an expert stenographer and typewriter in 40 to 60 days, or refund your money; but the enrollment and registration cards on file at White's College will prove that Mrs. White graduates all her students in less than 40 days with her phenomenal Voice Shorthand System and her unprecedented methods of teaching.

A Marvel in Shorthand—Entire System Memorized in One Hour.

Mrs. Lena A. White's Voice Shorthand System comprises only 25 characters, which represent all the articulations of the human voice, and 12 short rules, all of which can be memorized by any one of average intelligence in one hour. No other shorthand system has ever been memorized, because they are made up of thousands of meaningless word-signs and phrases, which no human intellect has ever mastered.

Astonishes World With Typewriting Method and English Training.

Mrs. Lena A. White's touch typewriting method, as well as her unique and original training in English, have so greatly surpassed all other like branches of study that her students marvel at the results obtained.

All Shorthand Failures Made Expert.

Hundreds of complete failures of all other business colleges and shorthand schools teaching shorthand in Chicago have been made expert stenographers and typewriters in less than 40 days at White's College of Shorthand. Call and see their testimonials and home addresses, where you can interview them at your leisure, as they all live in Chicago.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO.

Man Tailored Suits.

The Ladies' Tailoring Department is fully organized and equipped for the coming fall and winter season. We invite you to visit this department on the fifth floor and inspect the new designs and materials. Specially low prices will be quoted during the present week.

Annual September Sales of Laces, Curtains, Carpets, Rugs and Upholstery Begins This Morning

Up-to-dateness has been the first consideration in selecting the stocks for the September sales, so that you will find in each department a splendid showing of the very latest products from the leading manufacturers of the world. Then by combining our great purchasing facilities we have been able to secure many unusual price concessions which are recognized as the right of the large buyer, and these concessions we are going to share with our customers. In every way we offer sufficient inducements in variety of stocks and reasonableness in price to make it greatly to the advantage of every prospective buyer to visit our fourth floor sections before purchasing.

Lace Curtains and Curtain Materials.

Our Lace Curtain stock is extensive enough to meet the demands of the entire city of Chicago, and it is sufficiently varied in assortments to gratify every individual taste.

For this particular event we have been for months quietly collecting curtains from the best manufacturers throughout Europe, and wherever the power of money could be used to advantage no quantity, if the goods and prices were right, has been too large for us to absorb.

It matters not what may be the wants of each and every customer, we believe we can meet these wants with an abundant variety to select from, and at prices which are not obtainable elsewhere.

A visit to our show rooms is the only way by which you can form any adequate conception of the intrinsic merit and attractiveness of the curtains which will be offered during this sale. No matter whether you want to buy or not, we want to become acquainted with your needs, and we would like you to become acquainted with our stock.

The styles of curtains offered in the September sale include the best makes that France, Switzerland, Germany, England, and our own American mills produce, embracing Arabian, Irish Point, Cable Net, Battenberg, Nottingham, Bonne Femme, Duchesse Point, Swiss Tambour, as well as all the new creations in ruffled curtains.
